Description/Notable Features

An unusually sited and formed, parapeted and stuccoed brick row house pair of one storey, with an iron verandah, balustrade using McLean's pattern of 1877 and front fence. A gabled entablature is central to the pair with an acroterion at the apex, scrolls, swags and balustrading on either side. Sited high on an embankment and back from the street, the pair possess high retaining walls to the verandahs and a long, raking garden dividing-wall between. Notable features include fence, verandah decoration, verandah roof and structure, elevated site.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, designed by the distinguished architect, William Pitt (of the Rialto and Oldfleet Collins Street), this represents an original example of the low number of small residential commissions known and reflects his skill in the use of the elevated site and leading garden wall, directing attention to the central parapet pediment. It also represents an unusually sited row house pair (above and distant from the street) with uncommon original elements such as the balustrade. Historically, another example of small developments by local residents, alongside their homes.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint in original or typical colours; consider zoning policy to maintain residential use and form i.e. as Column 4 use. Stone plinth (fence) painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method)

Other Comments

Integrity - Generally original. Streetscape - Isolated trio of similar buildings (including 66) which are distinctively sited, particularly when viewed from a distance.

Description/Notable Features

Architect, A. E. Duquid and builder, James Bailey were responsible for this two-storey stuccoed brick house.

Forming an obtuse angle at the street intersection, one bay is built at the street alignment, whilst the other is set back to accommodate a two-level iron verandah and iron picket fence. Rosettes and brackets under the eaves, a convex verandah roof and ornate cast-iron provide a late emphasis to the early hipped roof shape, architraved rectangular windows and otherwise plain stucco surfaces.

The five-panel front door is also typical of later architecture. Note the traditional fixing of the street name sign. Notable features include fence, verandah decoration, verandah roof and structure, eaves, corner site.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, a relatively unusual form for row house areas, being common for detached villa construction and made more so by adherence to the street frontages. It is near original and prominently sited: of regional importance. Historically, little is known about Small and hence the house possesses local interest only.

colours; investigate restoration of chimney cornices in late 19th century pattern and check originality of door; consider re-zoning to Residential A; record and preserve street name sign. Cornice, chimney altered, door altered (inappropriate - reinstate original design)

Other Comments

Integrity - Generally original except for removal of both chimney cornices.

Streetscape - Terminates a single storey row of earlier but similar cottages, 3-7 Curzon Street.

Description/Notable Features

Benalla Cottages comprise of a row of four single-storey, single-fronted Victorian terrace houses. The walls are of rendered masonry, and the transverse gable roofs are clad in corrugated galvanised steel. The verandahs span between rendered wing walls, and those at Nos. 46-50 have cast iron decoration. The facades have double-hung sashes and timber doors, however the window to No. 44 has been replaced. Nos. 46-50 retain their rendered brick chimneys with corbelled cappings. None of the fences appears to be original.

Statement of Significance

Benalla Cottages, at 44-50 Dryburgh Street, are of local historical and aesthetic interest. The houses are representative of the type of modest workers' housing that proliferated in Melbourne's inner suburbs in the late nineteenth century. Aesthetically, the row is a prominent element in the largely Victorian residential streetscape.

 First Owner
 West Melbourne, builder and stonemason, Alex Cooper (qv), constructed this originally four room brick house in 1868. Cooper also developed property nearby in Capel Street in the 1860s and 1890s (Refer 16-26 Capel Street). First, Robert Allen, then engineers Samuel and Cyrus Rettalick, and later Mrs. Elizabeth Street leased the house during last century.
 Integrity Fair Condition Fair

 History Not Assessed
 Description/Notable Features
 Slated hip-roof house sited on a splayed, corner street - alignment and with simply moulded architraves and wooden shutters to openings. A small rear yard, bounded by a basalt wall, opens onto Peel Street. Notable features include shutters, chimney pot and rear elevation.
 Statement of Significance
 Architecturally, an early and near original example of a relatively uncommon row house form which occupies a key site near to related residential streetscapes: of regional importance. Historically, developed by early land holder and developer-builder in the area: of local importance.
 Recommended Alterations
 Repaint in original or typical colours; consider zoning provisions to preserve original use and form; replace door with four-panel Victorian type, as guidelines or as original.
 Door (inappropriate - reinstate original design/sympathetic alternative)
 Other Comments
 Integrity - Generally original, except for the three-panel door. Streetscape - An isolated building, but performing an important corner role on site adjacent to identified residential streetscapes (Refer Capel Street, William to Victoria Street): major parts of which were also built by Cooper.

`History

The City of Melbourne Lawn Bowls Club was founded as The West Melbourne Lawn Bowls Club on 18 August 1866 at the Sabloniere Hotel, once on the corner of A'Beckett and Queen Streets, Melbourne.

The Club moved to the Flagstaff Gardens in 1879. In 1880, we were a foundation club when the Victorian Bowling Association (VBA) was formed.

Our inaugural president was Sir Charles McMahon, and the inaugural president of the VBA, Cr Sam Amess, was one of our bowlers. He was also a former Club president and a Lord Mayor of Melbourne.

The first VBA singles champion was also member of the Club and we have produced numerous state players since our inception.

The Club changed its name to City Bowling Club in 1904, and to the City Of Melbourne Bowls Club in 1964.

In January 1994 fire destroyed a large part of our clubhouse, decimating our facilities, organisation and records. However, with the tireless support and dedication of club members, the Club regrouped and continued to operate and prosper, even with limited facilities.

With thanks to the City of Melbourne Council and Council staff, the opening of our new Clubhouse marks the completion of a journey which began on that tragic day in 1994. We welcome the City of Melbourne to our club...After two seasons of operating from other clubs, whilst our home was being rebuilt, the Club moved back into its Flagstaff home in May 2009...Our new state of the art, six-energy star Clubhouse opened in 2009, with thanks to the City of Melbourne and is open to the public.'

THE CYCLOPEDIA OF VICTORIA.

p204-205, 1903

Mr. J. A. SINANIAN, the managing director of the J. A. Sinanian Proprietary Limited, proprietors of the Moreland Smelting Works, was born in 1866 in the city of Manchester, where his father Mr J. A. Sinanian carried on a large business as the proprietor of the Ararat Packing Warehouse, in Queen Street, with a branch house in Constantinople. He received a good public school education at St. Bede's College, Manchester, and being of an adventurous disposition spent five years after leaving college in a roving tour round the world. Many countries were visited, and two years were spent in Chili and Peru. On attaining his majority, however, he found himself, owing to unforeseen reverses, compelled to face the world. His education, though good of a sort, had only fitted him for a life of leisured ease. He had neither trade nor profession, and he found by stern experience that a limited knowledge of Latin, French, and Spanish made a poor equipment for the fray. He was, however, blessed with something better — a nature undismayed and undaunted by reverses, and a keen if untrained intelligence. For some time his fortitude was severely tried, and he fell upon evil days. Many means of earning a livelihood were essayed, amongst others as a general agent and commission broker, and the breaking up of old derelict vessels', etc. He also dealt in stocks and land, and, after a severe and unequal struggle, it at last became apparent to Mr. Sinanian that the only road to success for a man with limited means and no trade or profession was to break entirely new ground. Having some knowledge of metals, acquired during his stay in South America, he decided, after full consideration, to establish a smelting business. The Moreland Smelting Works, for the treatment of old metals — now probably the largest concern of the sort in Victoria, if not Australia — began operations in a humble way in 1889, and from small beginnings, by careful and intelligent management, the output was gradually increased, and Mr. G. Leishman, of Mirboo North, Gippsland, was taken into partnership. By the time the collapse of the boom came the business was firmly established, and by judicious nursing weathered the storm easily, although Mr. Leishman retired, and again went in for farming pursuits. Mr. Sinanian, having a keen eye for investment, was singularly fortunate in several outside ventures. These, however, were never allowed to interfere with the smelting business, which throve so that he soon found himself with many competitors, and the natural outcome of the severe competition engendered has been to compel business to be worked on an extremely low percentage basis, to the manifest advantage of both buying and selling customers. The business grew to such proportions that Mr. Sinanian had to build for himself a new factory at Dudley Street, West Melbourne, which, together with a dwelling alongside, covers nearly half an acre of ground, the architectural work in connection with the factory being carried out by Mr. Sinanian. Here metals of every description and their by-products are bought, and some idea of the magnitude of the transactions in old metals may be gathered from the fact that in practically one deal old brass tubes, brass borings, etc., to the value of some £2,400 were purchased from the New South Wales Government, besides large quantities from the Victorian railways and others. In this department the mixed lots are sorted and cleansed by expert workmen for treatment by the various smelting company limited, Mr. Sinanian retaining the bulk of the shares. An inspection of the premises of the company, with the furnaces in full blast, will prove a revelation to many, who have little idea of the magnitude of the business done. Built up by one without previous experience, and during a time of severe commercial depression, this flourishing and steadily increasing business speaks volumes for the innate shrewdness and business plants.

(Image of Premises of J. A. Sinanian Pty.. Ltd., Dudley St., West Melbourne.)

It may be mentioned that Mr. Sinanian makes a specialty of treating scrap zinc and zinc by-products from the galvanising pots, and has a separate plant for treating these latter staples alone, erected at a cost of some £900, in addition to the cost of his ordinary plant. At the rear of the premises are situated the many furnaces and other appliances for treating the various metals, which emerge thence in the form of pig lead, ingot zinc, ingot gun metal, etc. All of these, bearing the brand of the works, have been well and favourably received by the English and Continental as well as by the local markets. In fact, Mr. Sinanian 's business is chiefly an export one, and, as prices are governed by the home quotations, dealers and others can always rely on getting maximum values for their parcels. This business two years ago was converted into a proprietary... instinct, combined with courtesy, patience, and determination of the proprietor. These qualities are patent to all who are brought into contact with him in a business or social way, and he well deserves the prosperity that has resulted from the possession and use of them. The sales of zinc material exceed £12,000 per annum alone. The firm's pig lead is shipped to China, Ceylon, the various States, etc. Tons of solder are produced yearly, and the printers' metal department, devoted to type metal, stereo., linotype, monoline metal, etc., is now of such magnitude that the Government Printing Office recently purchased twenty tons in one order. The company now make a specialty of treating all linotype metal skimmings, which, together with solder, lead, and other metal residues, and the rejuvenating of old linotype metal so that it can be used again, forms a very important feature of the business. Mr. Sinanian married the daughter of the late Mr. T. Butler, of North Brighton, and is at the time of writing thirty-seven years of age, and divides his time between his country place at Ferntree Gully and his town residence. Being possessed of independent means, the business is now more a hobby than anything else with him. Accompanied by his wife and two children, he has recently returned from a trip to the old country, breaking the voyage at Ceylon, Cairo, and Paris, where they stayed for some time. Since his return Mr. Sinanian has made a trip to Fiji, accompanied by Mr.

'UTILISING OLD .METALS.

The substantial brick buildings of the J. A. Sinanian Proprietary, Limited, situated In Dudley-street, West Melbourne, known as the Moreland Smelting Works, are a monument to Australian enterprise, and afford employment to a large number of Australian artisans.

Metals of every . Description are brought, as also various kinds of metalliferous by-products, while some Idea of the magnitude of the operations in old metals may be gathered from the fact that In practically one deal, old brass tubes, brass borings, &c, to the value of some £2400 were purchased from the Government of Now South Wales,- In the company's store department the mixed lots of metals are sorted and cleansed by expert workmen for treatment by the various smelting plants. The works have a capacity equal to 6000 tons of metal-smelting per annum, but at present something like 2000 tons are got through comfortably in the course of a year, the turnover being given at £24,000. When the adoption of the lino-type system by the great newspapers of Australia created a demand tor linotype metal, Mr. Sinanian was one of the first Australians to foresee the demand, and arranged the furnacing conditions of his company's works accordingly. All metals associated with the printing trade are turned out in large quantities, as also some of the most useful alloys used In connection with the engineering and lead working trades. Within recent date some forty tons of linotype besides stereotype and morline metal are said to have been placed to the order of the Victorian Government, as also a goodly supply to the Government Printing Office, Tasmania, besides innumerable private orders. It is pleasing to note that the Moreland Smelting Company are extending their buying operations to Queensland, which should prove a good opportunity for the dealers of this State to get rid of obsolete metal refuse and hardware fragments, which are too frequently consigned to the rubbish heap as waste and useless products. Further particulars respecting ibis company's operations will be found in our advertising columns.'

been born in the year 1799, and one who in his "course of wandering over the world had seen much or the early days of what is now Melbourne and Victoria." He first visited this land in the early part of 1836, coming over from Launceston in a small schooner which carried sheep.
A few days after his arrival he witnessed the first funeral, that of a child, on a spot now traversed by Queen-street, but then close by the river's brink. There were at that time only a few huts forming the settlement of Yarra Yarra, in a wilderness covered with large trees and thick scrub. Batman's hut was perched on the hill which afterwards bore his name and was the only place of pretentious appearance, having an imitation brick chimney. A little up the bank of the River Yarra there were a few huts of "wattle and daub," in one of which a Dr.
Thompson and his wife resided ; with them Mr Thomson got his food, and he assisted them, as he playfully said, by acting as a "never of wood and drawer of water" to early Melbourne generally. The chief evidences of civilisation at that time were the fowls and tame kangaroos which wandered about the huts ; and the food was principally, if not entirely, damper and Irish salt pork, with tea and sugar of course. The larder could always be replenished with kangaroo and wild fowl, so that there was abundant fare for all. Mr. Thomson remained long enough to inspect the district as far inland as where Geelong now stands, and he made sundry incursions into the dense bush. He enlarged upon the rough sketch map then in use by the Batman Company, and taking it with him to Sydney which he visited soon after, it was there published, and as a great interest was then springing up in that city about the new settlement on the Yarra Yarra, his map was eagerly consulted. As might be expected Mr. Thomson had much folk-lore—such as it was—of those primitive days in the Australias over which he rambled at large—of the natives, of the wild white men, convicts, ticket-of-leave men, and settlers.

Much that he knew must have passed away with him, for he was not given to commit his mental scraps of information to paper. Of the sale of land in those early days it will be interesting to recall one of his stories :—
"On these occasions," he says, "many of which I have witnessed between the natives and Batman and the other whites, the latter enrolled themselves as a company.
Documents of these transfers or sales were drawn up by a Mr. Gellibrand, who had to devise a practical solution to enable the original owner or occupier to attest the deeds.
Some lamp-black and grease were mixed together, and, after such explanation of the business as could be introduced into the brain of the black fellow, we blacked his hand with the mixture and so showed him—very literally—how to affix his sign manual!
I often wondered how it would be possible afterwards, had necessity arisen, to have proved this act and deed, but so far I have not heard that any difficulty has been experienced." His voyage over here from Launceston, Tasmania, took eight or nine days. His description of the voyage was that it was very enjoyable. He made bait of the crimson lining of an old military cloak, and caught such quantities of barracouta to supplement the one piece of pork which they had on board that the crew were able to salt them down and make many presents afterwards when they came ashore. Mr. Thomson treasured a card of invitation to a supper and ball given to His Excellency Sir George Arthur, the then Governor of Tasmania. This gathering he attended in Launceston in 1836.

In his early travels here and elsewhere up and down the world Mr. Thomson did not carry money. "On arriving at an inn," he says, "I gave the landlord my name, told him I did not carry money and inquired if an order upon certain well-known bankers would do; and the answer was always in the affirmative, whether for shillings or for pounds. This was all the more necessary in these young Australian colonies, for in those days money did not come to hand with desirable regularity. On one occasion a letter of credit did not reach me till it was out of date, and I had some trouble about it."

But Mr. Thomson's money anxieties were never very serious. He was the youngest son of one of the old county families of his native district, and was throughout life most amply provided for so that he was able at all times to maintain the good social position into which he was born. In early life he was not robust; hence his studies were not closely followed, and his taste for travel had early and life-long gratification until the arrest of years made permanent location desirable.

About 45 years ago he returned to his native city, Belfast (Ireland), and erected a very fine mansion, which he named "Bedeque-house," in memory of some associations connected with family estates in a foreign country. This beautiful house had rich stores of curiosities and relics gathered in many lands. Various members of his family had seen distinguished military service. His uncle, Colonel Gordon, after whom he was named, and whose heir he became, took the island of St Vincent, and died there, as Governor, after many years' residence. The late Sir Arthur Kennedy, Governor of Queensland, was a schoolmate and old friend of Mr. Thomson's. General Sir E. Selby Smith, K.C.M.G., one of the commissioners of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition in London, is his nephew. The family estates of Castleton and Lowood were well known to North of Ireland men.

In the home country Mr. Thomson often received the late Rev. A. M. Henderson, with whom he was acquainted in later years as the minister of Collins-street Independent Church, Melbourne; and to this circumstance may possibly be attributed a connexion with that congregation which ripened into an attachment under the ministry of the late Rev. Thomas Jones. Mr. Thomson's chief interest as a traveller was in the scenes of the Holy Land, where influential introductions gave him large opportunities for observation. He has occasionally supplied illustrative facts, which have found their way into circulation, and some of his descriptive remarks upon the scenery of the region round about Mount Sinai, and of its weird grandeur during thunderstorms which he witnessed, have afforded instruction and pleasure to his friends at many times. Mr. Thomson never married, and he retained to the end of his days "bachelor habits." While remaining for several years in his native country he was often solicited to take a leading part in civic and religious matters, but he declined these honours. Yet he was keenly alive to what was passing in the world, and throughout life retained in full flavour those Tory sentiments which in his early days were the prominent characteristics of the leading families of the Province of Ulster in Ireland. When he became a decidedly religious man he took an active interest in visiting the sick, and in ministering to the deserving poor in many ways, and this practical Christianity only ended with the failure of physical ability a few months ago. His early training in a wealthy home gave to his manners an influence which lent force to his pleadings, and made his personal appeals more powerful. One instance of his charity may be mentioned in the case of a disabled woman whom he visited when on a tour in the Highlands of Scotland about forty years ago.

Finding that she needed more than good words he promised material help, and he arranged that this should be paid as long as the sufferer lived. To benefit his health, and to do some good to those to whom he was strongly attached, he returned to this colony in 1872, to find the settlement by the scrub-covered bank of the Yarra Yarra "crowned," as he said, "by the noble City of Melbourne," and to lay his bones here." His remains will now rest in ground which he selected several years ago in the Kew Cemetery. The interment takes place to-day, the funeral leaving his late residence, Bedeque-house, Dudley-street, West Melbourne, at 2 p.m. '

'IDEALS.

From the "Arena-Sun."

A Freetrade Journal on Labor's Ideals.

Our Labor Party here (Melbourne) has its ideals—Labor lifted to human equality, nay supremacy; the man or woman who labors becomes, under the ideals towards which the Party is striving, not a laboring man or woman, but an individual equal to any other individual and entitled to a just share in all that appertains to the individual irrespective of the distinguishing adjectives, "laboring" or "leisured."

The ideals, equality of privilege, equality of opportunity, and equal share of governmental burden to the individual are the ideals that lift their thoughts above daily needs, centre them in one purpose and focus them to one set resolve—equality.

Their ideals are based on elemental justice and in proportion as those ideals become clearly defined and perfectly comprehended, so in proportion will be the strength of the force unified by the clear conception of those ideals and in proportion to its unification by the soul of its ideals, so will it become irresistible to what opposes the attainment of its ideals.'

'Thompson and Royal Charter gold...

'The ship was just three hours from its destination in Liverpool when a terrible storm drove it onto rocks.

Carrying over four hundred people and gold worth millions in today's money... tracked the specimen back to a donation to the Public Library, Melbourne, from Mr Gordon Thomson, reported in 'The Argus' in 1874. "We don't know how Thompson ended up with the gold," says Dermot. The report says that the two men met in Ireland but the nature of their transaction is not recorded.

'Thomson himself was quite a character with a habit of collecting curious things. Irish-born into a wealthy family, he spent much of his life travelling the world and amassing ethnographic objects. His "very fine mansion" in Belfast called 'Bedeque-house' held "rich stores of curiosities and relics gathered from many lands." Among the relics were at least two treasures from Victorian history from his first visit to Melbourne in 1835, when the city was in its wattle-and-daub infancy. There he befriended William Buckley, who absconded from imprisonment to live with the Aboriginal people of Port Phillip Bay for more than 20 years. Buckley gave Thomson a greenstone axe-head that had "passed 20 years of its life of usefulness in Buckley's belt." The axe head and the Royal Charter gold specimen ended up in the Belfast museum along with hundreds of other objects Thomson collected on his travels.

When Thomson decided to return to Melbourne to live, he requested that the Belfast museum return the colonial objects, believing that they rightly belonged in their home country. Thus, in 1874, they travelled back over the oceans and were deposited in Melbourne public collections. We still have the gold but Buckley's axe has been missing for many years, its whereabouts unknown. Thomson built another 'Bedeque-house' in Dudley Street, West Melbourne. His 1886 obituary mourned the "death of one of the oldest Melbourne residents."

Description/Notable Features

The house at 40 Dudley Street is a double-storey Victorian terrace-style house, constructed in bluestone with a rendered facade. The hipped slate roof is concealed behind a parapet with a decorative frieze, and is penetrated by two rendered brick chimneys with corbelled cappings. There is a double-storey verandah to the front with a concave profile roof, and recent metal balustrading to the upper level. The facade has three timber-framed double-hung sash windows to the upper level, and two to the lower level. The house retains its cast iron fence.

Statement of Significance The house at 40 Dudley Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic importance. Erected in the mid-1860s, it demonstrates an early and important phase of residential settlement in the area. It is one of few remaining more substantial houses which were erected in the stretch of Dudley Street directly opposite the Flagstaff Gardens. William Robert (Nuttall) Maloney (1854-1940), humanitarian and politician, was born on 12 April 1854 at West Melbourne, son of Jane Maloney, née Dowling, then and later being supported by her brother-in-law W. J. T. 'Big' Clarke. Jane had married Denis Maloney in Sydney in 1847 and they later joined the Californian gold rush. Maloney was entered in the baptismal register as William's father, but he and Jane had parted. Many people came to assume that Clarke was the father and he provided for the boy in his will.

William attended a primary school in West Melbourne and the Errol Street National School. After a year in New Zealand he joined the Colonial Bank of Australia, left to spend a year or more at Scotch College, then rejoined the bank. At the Turn Verein he became an accomplished gymnast and was introduced to socialist ideas by German migrants. About 1874 he and his mother took up a selection at Longwarry, Gippsland, and over several years cleared 100 acres (40 ha).

Returning to Melbourne, Maloney attended night-school, matriculated, and in 1880 began a medical course at St Mary's Hospital, London (L.S.A., M.R.C.S., 1885). He became resident obstetric physician at St Mary's and later house surgeon at the Lock Hospital; London's poverty horrified him. He spent much time in Paris and in 1883 joined Tom Roberts and J. P. Russell on a walking tour in France and Spain; throughout his life he enjoyed associating with artists. Russell painted a fine portrait of him, now in the National Gallery of Victoria. Maloney adopted a Bohemian style: cream silk suit, red or yellow tie or bow-tie, panama hat, waxed moustache and goatee beard. He continued to travel widely all his life, eventually to Russia when 83.

He returned to Australia in 1887 and took a medical post on a Western Australian railway-construction works. Settling in North Melbourne next year he opened a general practice, and in March 1889 he was elected to the Legislative Assembly for West Melbourne on behalf of the Workingmen's Political League, largely on the railwaymen's vote. Thus he began his fifty-one-year stint as a Labor parliamentarian. Partly bound by the Trades Hall Council's programme, Maloney added woman's suffrage, old-age and invalid pensions and republicanism. That year he introduced reputedly the first bill in the Empire for woman's suffrage; in 1908, when the Victorian parliament belatedly complied, 20,000 women signed an address of gratitude to him.

Maloney's philosophy was always misty but he was essentially an international socialist in the European social democratic tradition. In the 1890s he threw himself indiscriminately into the activities of radical groups such as the Social Democratic and Single Tax leagues and the Knights of Labor, presided over May Day celebrations, and was active in the Australian Natives' Association. Then and later he was often an executive member of the Progressive Political League, the Political Labor Council and the Victorian Labor Party. A butt of the press, seeming too extreme and eccentric to be taken seriously, he was indeed rash, tending to make wild accusations which he would graciously withdraw; in January 1891 a duel with Lieutenant-Colonel Tom Price seemed imminent.

Old-age pensions was his chief cause, the anti-sweating movement next; in 1898 he chaired a royal commission on the Melbourne tramway employees' grievances, attempting to remedy outrageous working conditions, and later was president of the tramwaymen's union. On 2 November 1892 at the Melbourne Registrar's Office he had married Minnie Grace Pester (d.1934) of Ballarat; although agnostic, he insisted on Catholic baptism of their two children.

About 1896 'the Little Doctor' established at the Queen Victoria Market the North Melbourne District Medical Club (later, the Maloney Medical Institute, which continued until about 1950). In this refuge he treated for the most part a 'pathetic assortment of human wreckage'. From about 1907 he retained assistants but continued to regularly counsel the distressed. He reportedly lost his M.R.C.S. in 1897 for internationally sponsoring an 'electric healer'. He fell foul of the local branch of the British Medical Association for advertising 'advice and medicine, 3s. 6d', and probably also for his support for Mrs Bessie Smyth's campaign for birth control.

In 1901 Maloney stood for the Federal electorate of Melbourne and was soundly beaten by Sir Malcolm McEacharn. In 1903 he stood again and lost narrowly; on appeal a new election was granted and in March 1904, amid intense excitement, he defeated McEacharn by 810 votes; Sir Rupert Clarke was prominent on his platform. Maloney held the seat until his death, blocking the ambition of A. A. Calwell, who however greatly admired him. He was one of the 'torpedo brigade' which aimed to found the Commonwealth Bank; King O'Malley and Andrew Fisher were both his good friends. He was temporary chairman of committees (1910-17), a member of royal commissions on the pearling industry (1913) and the electoral laws (1914), of the joint committee on public accounts (1914-17) and of caucus executive (1914-31). He supported the White Australia policy and became obsessed with the Japanese threat. He was an anti-militarist, however, who vehemently resisted participation in the South African War, but joined the Australian National Defence League in 1906. He unhappily took more than his share of recruiting campaigning in World War I, but was a staunch anti-conscriptionist.

Maloney was often regarded as a light-weight politician and was never a serious contender for ministerial rank. Passing crazes such as bimetalism and Douglas Credit attracted him. Yet he was long before his time as campaigner for pensions, the maternity allowance and child endowment. He was essentially a social worker, not a class hater; he loved humankind, fought inequality and pressed the rights and needs of the poor.

He continued his fund-raising and his care for children, the aged, the unemployed and returned soldiers; he was president of the League of Child Helpers and, in the Depression, of the Melbourne Unemployed Committee. He gave away much of his income. In 1935 he made a film, as an appeal for milk for crèches and free kindergartens. About one thousand people of diverse backgrounds attended the eightieth birthday celebration in the town hall of one of Melbourne's best-loved citizens. In 1940 Maloney led the eight-hour day procession as the senior Labor pioneer. He died at St Kilda on 29 August that year and, after a state funeral, was cremated. His son and daughter survived him.

Description/Notable Features

A once elegant Victorian row-house, tall and generously proportioned. Although somewhat altered, it includes distinctive features which add to its heritage value. The ground floor colonnade includes full and elongated arch forms, mixed with a both a slender cast iron column and brick piers with render mouldings. On the first floor, the double hung window extends to the verandah level with and elegant panelled base, and above, the parapet has a particularly unusual sinuous form. It is not clear whether this is a later, perhaps early twentieth century adaptation, or a part of the original form. The building has several alterations, principally the modification of the first floor verandah. However there are also subsequent alterations. Some have occurred between 1983 and July 1999, probably without a permit, including further modification of the first floor verandah railing, removal of ground floor iron railing and removal of the render and rendered mouldings to the ground floor. Other have occurred since July 1999, including the removal of the distinctive panelled double hung window to the first floor and replacement with a modern door, and probable change to the front door. These alterations are also unlikely to have a permit.

Statement of Significance

This section of Dudley Street addresses the Flagstaff Gardens opposite with higher quality construction. It represents the southern edge of the residential form of North Melbourne and forms a clear boundary between the high-density central city area and its residential fringe. This building is part of a group of buildings of a similar period, scale and detailing which contributes to these characteristics.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments

This building has unusual features which add to its significance. It is a part of a group of similar period, style and type, which marks the boundary between the high-density central city area and its residential fringe. The high value of the collective group in this street reinforces the value to this individual building. Recommended for D grading.

Description/Notable Features

The building at 58-64 Dudley Street is a row of double-storey Victorian terrace houses. The walls are of rendered masonry with rustication at the ground floor level, and the hipped corrugated galvanised steel roofs are concealed behind a parapet. Each facade has a pair of French windows to the upper level, and a six-panelled timber entry door with fanlight to one side of a timber-framed double-hung sash window at ground floor level. The double-storey verandahs have cast iron balustrades and friezes. Alterations include the removal of the verandah roof to and the installation of two canvas awnings over the windows of No. 60, while much of the fabric of the balcony and verandah of No. 58 is not original, having been reconstructed in the late 1980s.

Statement of Significance

Rich Hill Terrace, at 58-64 Dudley Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. The houses represent the more substantial speculative housing which was erected in the area in the Victorian period. The houses are substantially intact and, as a group, make a positive contribution to the streetscape. The association of the terrace with engineer John Monash and politician John Harbison is of note.

Recommended Alterations

Restore cast-iron verandah (verandah roof on 58, 60, 64; restore fence on 58; repaint in original or typical colours; restore missing details such as parapet urns and joinery. Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. The terrace is a notable group within the streetscape. The alterations are reversible.

Integrity - Presumably urns have been removed from the parapet (see entablature); the cast-iron verandah has been removed wholly or in part from 58, 60 and 64: 58-60 have been generally renovated; the fence of 58 has been replaced.

Streetscape - Contributing part of a varied but generally early streetscape between Milton and King Streets.

'Sir John Monash

(1865-1931)

Soldier, Engineer, Administrator & Civil Servant

Born on 27 June 1865 at Richhill Terrace - 58 Dudley Street, West Melbourne, the son of Prussian-born Jewish parents Louis Monasch (1831-94, Melbourne General Cemetery), merchant and Bertha née Manasse; after Louis was naturalised in April 1856 he anglicised the name to Monash (pronounced Monash). Monash was educated at Scotch College (1877-81) in a class that included (Sir) James McCay (Box Hill Cemetery), later to figure so controversially during the First World War. He was dux of his class in his final year before studying Arts, Engineering and Law at Melbourne University (B.C.E., 1891; M.C.E., 1893; B.A., LL.B., 1895), but not without struggle; he abandoned his studies all together in 1885 due to his mother's death and short of money found work as an engineer working on the Princes Bridge (1885-88) and in charge of the Outer Circle suburban railway (1888-90). By the eve of the Great War, after experiencing business hardships and failures, Monash was now a pillar of Melbourne society with a reputation as a leading civil-engineer specialising in reinforced concrete constructions and president of the Victorian Institute of Engineers. While at university, Monash joined the 4th Battalion, Victorian Rifles in July 1884 and later the North Melbourne Battery after the former unit was disbanded in July 1886. At the outbreak of World War One, he held the rank of colonel and in September 1914 was appointed to command the finest brigade of the 1st A.I.F - the 4th Brigade. He oversaw the units' operations at Gallipoli where he developed a reputation for thoroughness and sound staff work, even though he had no role in the planning of many failures that characterised the campaign. The higher in rank, the better Monash performed. Promoted in July 1915 to brigadier-general, he oversaw the brigade's transfer to France the following June and the following month was promoted to command the newly formed 3rd Division at Salsbury Plain, England.

SURVEYED PLACES

Having instilled discipline and a sense of pride, the first major battle at Messines on 7 June 1917 was an overwhelming success due to the meticulous planning in spite of German knowledge of the impending attack. Later at Broodseinde Ridge in October, the division took part in what was the most successful operation yet undertaken by the A.I.F in the war. These successes and Monash's brilliant grasp of the tactical situation brought upon by the great German breakthroughs of March and April 1918, led to his appointment as Corps Commander on 31 May 1918, but not after being vigorously opposed by the official war historian Charles Bean (1879-1968) and (Sir) Keith Murdoch (1885-1952) who both favoured Major-General (Sir) Cyril White (1876-1940) causing immense distraction to the higher commanders during a vital period of the war. No finer man was more amply suited to the role of leading the Corps during the great decisive victories of 1918; his dogma was to simply feed the troops on victory. His greatest achievement was at Hamel on 4 July 1918, described as the first modern battle in which the tanks, infantry, artillery and airforce acted in cohesion. The following month this was again repeated on a larger and more successful scale during the Second Battle of Amiens on 8 August, a classic set-piece battle considered the greatest success of the war in both material captured, prisoners taken, ground gained and more importantly in moral to the Allied cause. Knighted in the field on 12 August 1918 by King George V, Monash's greatness as a commander was due to his forceful personality that induced respect enabling him to drive the most out of his men; his personal qualities of humility, intellectual capacity, orderly thinking and articulateness; a brilliant grasp of tactics and technical mastery of all arms; meticulous battle planning and organisation; and a fair portion of luck and good timing that eluded his contemporaries. But nor was Monash infallible: he never once visited the front line to gain a grasp of the ground; he had a tendency to ignore the advice of more informed junior commanders and had a reputation for bullying and ruthlessness during a battle; and was known as a showman who craved publicity and honours. After the armistice, Monash was given charge of repatriating some 160,000 troops in less than eight months considered a remarkable achievement. In his final years, he took on the chairmanship of the State Electricity Commission (1920-31) overseeing the arduous task of building a great public utility to supply abundant cheap electricity and freeing the state from the reliance on unreliable and costly power from New South Wales. Residing at Iona - 33 St. George's Road, Toorak, Monash died from coronary vascular disease on 8 October 1931; an estimated 250,000 mourners paid tribute with some 50,000 alone at the cemetery.

Each facade has a pair of French windows to the upper level, and a six-panelled timber entry door with fanlight to one side of a timber-framed double-hung sash window at ground floor level. The double-storey verandahs have cast iron balustrades and friezes. Alterations include the removal of the verandah roof to and the installation of two canvas awnings over the windows of No. 60, while much of the fabric of the balcony and verandah of No. 58 is not original, having been reconstructed in the late 1980s.

Statement of Significance

Rich Hill Terrace, at 58-64 Dudley Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. The houses represent the more substantial speculative housing which was erected in the area in the Victorian period. The houses are substantially intact and, as a group, make a positive contribution to the streetscape. The association of the terrace with engineer John Monash and politician John Harbison is of note.

Recommended Alterations

Restore cast-iron verandah (verandah roof on 58, 60, 64; restore fence on 58; repaint in original or typical colours; restore missing details such as parapet urns and joinery.

Other Comments

Upgraded from E to D. The terrace is a notable group within the streetscape. The alterations are reversible. Integrity - Presumably urns have been removed from the parapet (see entablature); the cast-iron verandah has been removed wholly or in part from 58, 60 and 64: 58-60 have been generally renovated; the fence of 58 has been replaced.

Streetscape - Contributing part of a varied but generally early streetscape between Milton and King Streets.

History

Rich Hill Terrace was built for John Harbison in 1862, as rental properties, although the Italianate style of the houses suggests it may have been extended or refurbished later, possibly in the 1880s. John Harbison was born in County Armagh, Ireland, and arrived in Melbourne in 1849. He acquired land and was elected to the Melbourne City Council in 1860 becoming an Alderman in 1863. He had two terms as a Member of the Legislative Assembly for West Melbourne in 1864-65 and North Melbourne 1866

Description

The building at 58-64 Dudley Street is a row of double-storey Victorian terrace houses. The walls are of rendered masonry with rustication at the ground floor level, and the hipped corrugated galvanised steel roofs are concealed behind a parapet. Each facade has a pair of French windows to the upper level, and a six-panelled timber entry door with fanlight to one side of a timber-framed double-hung sash window at ground floor level. The double-storey verandahs have cast iron balustrades and friezes. 'THE EXHIBITION.

Two causes combined yesterday to limit in some degree the attendance of visitors at the Exhibition-the disagreeable state of the weather, and the half-crown charge for admission. At no period of the day was the building in any way crowded, so that those who were present had every facility for examining and comparing the different exhibits. It will be seen from the return given below that the season-ticket holders were much more numerous than those who paid at the door...In the fine arts department there are some beautiful specimens of heraldic painting executed by Mr. Thomas Stevenson, heraldic artist at Stevenson and Elliot's.'

Morris Register of Victoria website, 2016

<http://moreg.org.au/>

`RUSKIN

...Most Morris cars of the period (Interwar) to be seen in Australia, would have bodywork from one of the many coachbuilders who took advantage of the policy of allowing the import of motor cars in chassis form while complete cars carried a penal import duty. One such body builder was Ruskin Motor Bodies Ltd., of Dudley Street, West Melbourne in Victoria.

SURVEYED PLACES

Ruskins evolved out of the early Melbourne motor business of Tarrant Motors which appeared during the first decade of the 20th century, spawning several operating subsidiaries including Smith's coach building business in Queensbridge Street, South Melbourne in 1903. Four years later the motor body department moved to larger premises in Exhibition Street, Melbourne and adopted the title the "Melbourne Motor Body Works".

In 1909 larger premises in Lygon Street were acquired when contracts were obtained from Fords. There followed further expansion with a new factory in Lonsdale Street during the First World War. In 1925 the Ford contract came to an end when Ford built their own plant at Geelong and the Melbourne Motor Body Works concentrated on the manufacture of bodies for a range of British and American car chassis. In 1929, the trade depression hit hard and a workforce of 400 fell to just 40. In February 1930 the company changed its name to Ruskin Motor Bodies Pty Ltd. The new name was derived from that of the famous English author, John Ruskin (1819 – 1900), and the company exemplified its ideals from the quotation by that author. "All works of taste must bear a price in proportion to the skill, time expense and risk attending their invention and manufacture. These things called dear are, when just estimated, the cheapest. They are attended with much less profit to the artist than those which everybody calls cheap. A disposition of cheapness and not for excellence of workmanship is most frequent and certain cause of the decay and destruction of arts and manufacture."

As "Ruskin Motor Bodies Pty Ltd," bodies were made on numerous chassis and it would have been during this period that Colin MacDonald's Ten Four was bodied. A contract was made with Morris Motors Ltd. and another with Hudson for their Tarraplane chassis. These two make accounted for much of the firm's workload up to the outbreak of the war when, in common with most of the Australian motor industry, the company became involved in defence requirements, increasing its workforce to 600 in the process.'

`RUSKIN

...Most Morris cars of the period (Interwar) to be seen in Australia, would have bodywork from one of the many coachbuilders who took advantage of the policy of allowing the import of motor cars in chassis form while complete cars carried a penal import duty. One such body builder was Ruskin Motor Bodies Ltd., of Dudley Street, West Melbourne in Victoria.

Property number: 102952

Ruskins evolved out of the early Melbourne motor business of Tarrant Motors which appeared during the first decade of the 20th century, spawning several operating subsidiaries including Smith's coach building business in Queensbridge Street, South Melbourne in 1903. Four years later the motor body department moved to larger premises in Exhibition Street, Melbourne and adopted the title the "Melbourne Motor Body Works".

In 1909 larger premises in Lygon Street were acquired when contracts were obtained from Fords. There followed further expansion with a new factory in Lonsdale Street during the First World War. In 1925 the Ford contract came to an end when Ford built their own plant at Geelong and the Melbourne Motor Body Works concentrated on the manufacture of bodies for a range of British and American car chassis. In 1929, the trade depression hit hard and a workforce of 400 fell to just 40. In February 1930 the company changed its name to Ruskin Motor Bodies Pty Ltd. The new name was derived from that of the famous English author, John Ruskin (1819 – 1900), and the company exemplified its ideals from the quotation by that author. "All works of taste must bear a price in proportion to the skill, time expense and risk attending their invention and manufacture. These things called dear are, when just estimated, the cheapest. They are attended with much less profit to the artist than those which everybody calls cheap. A disposition of cheapness and not for excellence of workmanship is most frequent and certain cause of the decay and destruction of arts and manufacture."

As "Ruskin Motor Bodies Pty Ltd," bodies were made on numerous chassis and it would have been during this period that Colin MacDonald's Ten Four was bodied. A contract was made with Morris Motors Ltd. and another with Hudson for their Tarraplane chassis. These two make accounted for much of the firm's workload up to the outbreak of the war when, in common with most of the Australian motor industry, the company became involved in defence requirements, increasing its workforce to 600 in the process.'

STADIUM BUILDING TO START AT ONCE

By HAROLD BALFE

CONSTRUCTION of new Melbourne Stadium, to replace the old stadium destroyed by fire on January 24, will begin at once with erection of steelwork by Vickers Ruwolt, of Richmond.

Mr. R. Lean, general manager, Stadiums Pty. Ltd., said yesterday if no problems arose to cause delays, the new stadium should be ready by the end of September. Mr. Lean said: "We must be back on the job with a minimum of delay. Within the next few months we will have arriving, a number of leading boxers from overseas. "Because of this we have had to considerably modify original plans providing for an elaborate and costly stadium that would have taken a long time to build. "When the original stadium was built 42 years ago, in eight weeks, it cost £30,000. But the new place will cost at, least four times as much.

Much better however, the new Melbourne Stadium will answer all requirements for boxing; wrestling, and entertainment, and full consideration will be given to spectator comfort. Reconstruction according to present plans will require considerably more steelwork than originally intended.

Other contractors will move in on the job as soon as the steelwork is erected by Ruwolts.

Part of the old brick walls will be retained, and the rest of the work will mainly be carpentering.

In design the new stadium will be similar to the old one, but it will be extended to take in the lane that runs between Dudley and Roslyn sts., at the eastern end.

This will allow seating to be increased from 9,000 to 10,000. Vastly improved, seating arrangements will include a ringside area of 5,000 tubular steel chairs. There will be more up-to-date dressing room and public convenience accommodation.

The new stadium will be air-conditioned and later sound-proofed. '

Festival Hall is a concert and sporting venue, located at 300 Dudley Street, West Melbourne, Victoria, Australia. It is one of Melbourne's larger concert venues and has hosted a variety of local and international acts over many years.

Formerly known as the West Melbourne Stadium (shortened to The Stadium), it was originally built in 1915 by John Wren[1] (Chairman) and Dick Lean (General Manager) of Stadiums Ltd as a multi-function venue for boxing and pro wrestling. It quickly became known to locals as "the House of Stoush", as over the years some of the greatest names in Australian boxing have duked it out, including Lionel Rose, Johnny Famechon, Anthony Mundine, Lester Ellis and Barry Michael. pro Wrestling also featured regularly, as did Roller Derby, ballroom dancing, cultural and religious gatherings, and the first Indoor Tennis Exhibition featuring John McEnroe. It was used by the Painters and Dockers as a meeting place, and during the Great Depression, unemployed men seeking work would gather at Festival Hall to be picked for dock work.

Hollywood Legend, Judy Garland played there for her 1964 tour. After being over an hour late, Garland stormed of the stage and was rushed back to the Southern Cross Hotel. It made headlines worldwide.

'The Stadium' was destroyed by fire in 1955 but was rebuilt in time for the 1956 Olympics, where it was used for boxing, basketball, and gymnastics events.[2][3]

Dick Lean Jnr, (son of the original General Manager, Dick Lean) joined Stadiums in 1960 and set about successful promotion of major music acts of all genres from both the U.K. and U.S.A, increasing the use of the venue significantly. 'The Stadium' was renamed 'Festival Hall' in the early 1960s to reflect its increasing use as Melbourne's largest live entertainment venue at the time.

Since its renovation Festival Hall's versatile set-up has been used for many events including its weekly conversion into Australia's largest television studio for the production of The Price is Right for Seven Network.

Festival Hall can be used for fully seated events of up to 4,586 including the main floor or for up to 5,445 if the floor is used for standing, sight lines permitting. The addition of floor-to-ceiling curtains around the main floor and between the side sections allows seating for up to 1,741 people or 2,600 standing on the main floor in intimate surrounds with the use of the balcony area opposite the stage above the main floor entrance providing an additional 272 seats. The main floor has an area of 1,288 m², providing ample room for comfortable dining for up to 1,000 seated guests plus dance floor, and the stage offers a further 160 m² of elevated space. Festival Hall has been used for black tie dinners, product launches, conferences, motivation sessions, art exhibitions, large Christmas parties, religious and cultural events, and even as an examination venue for Swinburne University. Festival Hall has a strong presence on the web with a fan group at Facebook and even a Twitter account...

 Description/Notable Features

A two-storey stuccoed brick house with a one-level cast-iron verandah and iron picket fence. Detail is sparse but includes opening-architraves, sill brackets and a cornice. The verandah roof is concave and the house roof line parapeted. The whole appears earlier than the documented date, with the iron verandah added later, much in the style of the other Cullen buildings in Eades Place. Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration, verandah roof and structure. Chimney appears earlier.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of little individual importance, except at a simple evocation of the period, but obtains importance from its streetscape contribution: of regional importance. Historically, associated with Sam Cullen, one of the brothers who virtually built this entire streetscape and an owner-builder which is typical of the study area: of regional interest.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint in original or typical colours.

Other Comments

Integrity - Generally original.

Streetscape - Contributive part of a highly cohesive and early residential streetscape.

Description/Notable Features

Edward Williams acted as owner-builder for this dichrome brick and stuccoed, two-storey row house. An austere segment-arched entablature, at the parapet, and flanking scrolls comprises, with the vermiculated side walls, the only stucco decoration; 'quoins' being achieved in contrasting brick colours (cream, brown). A cast-iron verandah frieze brackets and a front fence survive.

Notable features include the verandah, brick finish and the fence.

Statement of Significance Architecturally, of little significance except as a near original example of a common form: of local importance. Historically, little is known of Edward Williams: of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint trim in typical or original colours. Bricks part painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method)

Other Comments

Integrity - Generally original except perhaps, for parapet urns.Streetscape - Contrasting in colour but matching the other houses in form, siting and detail in this residential precinct.

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983)

History

In 1883 Edward Williams built this house on a site where previously he had owned a smaller wooden house. After 1890 he leased it to Kate Stewart.

Description

Edward Williams acted as owner-builder for this dichrome brick and stuccoed, two-storey row house. An austere segment-arched entablature, at the parapet, and flanking scrolls comprises, with the vermiculated side walls, the only stucco decoration; 'quoins' being achieved in contrasting brick colours (cream, brown). A cast-iron verandah frieze brackets and a front fence survive.

Integrity - Generally original except perhaps, for parapet urns.

Streetscape - Contrasting in colour but matching the other houses in form, siting and detail in this residential precinct.

Significance

Architecturally, of little significance except as a near original example of a common form: of local importance.

Historically, little is known of Edward Williams: of local interest.

Recommendations

Repaint trim in typical or original colours. Bricks part painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method)

Property number: 103021

In c1862-3, the Crown Grantees, brothers Henry and immediately it was completed. 32 was occupied by Henry

Cullen after it had been leased for three years, by which

Description/Notable Features

A storey was added to 30, 32, in 1872-3, as was also the case with 28, in c1880. A two-storey, stuccoed and parapeted brick row of 3 houses which shows clearly the above stages of development by its upper fenestration. A bullnose, slatted frieze verandah of c1915 has replaced the previous, presumably, concave roof verandahs. The cornice is plain: architraves and bracketed sills being the only ornament, as 12-18 (qv). Notable features include verandah added c1915.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of little individual importance but, as a

Cullen Brothers' product, is synonymous with much of the streetscape; of local importance. Historically, contains the first three houses constructed by the Cullens in the street, although these have been added to since, and is sited on the Cullen's land grant: of local importance.

SURVEYED PLACES

Retain verandah but investigate evidence for and feasibility of replacement with a period type i.e. as 8-10; replace picket fences, using pickets at 12-18 as a model; repaint in typical or original colours.

Other Comments Integrity - The verandah has been added c1915, replacing a previous one; the presumed timber picket front and dividing fences have been replaced; and horizontal balustrading has been placed at the verandah perimeter.

Streetscape - A contributive part of a highly cohesive streetscape.

Description/Notable Features

A storey was added to 30, 32, in 1872-3, as was also the case with 28, in c1880. A two-storey, stuccoed and parapeted brick row of 3 houses which shows clearly the above stages of development by its upper fenestration. A bullnose, slatted frieze verandah of c1915 has replaced the previous, presumably, concave roof verandahs. The cornice is plain: architraves and bracketed sills being the only ornament, as 12-18 (qv). Notable features include verandah added c1915.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of little individual importance but, as a Cullen Brothers' product, is synonymous with much of the streetscape; of local importance. Historically, contains the first three houses constructed by the Cullens in the street, although these have been added to since, and is sited on the Cullen's land grant: of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Retain verandah but investigate evidence for and feasibility of replacement with a period type i.e. as 8-10; replace picket fences, using pickets at 12-18 as a model; repaint in typical or original colours.

Other Comments

Integrity - The verandah has been added c1915, replacing a previous one; the presumed timber picket front and dividing fences have been replaced; and horizontal balustrading has been placed at the verandah perimeter.
Streetscape - A contributive part of a highly cohesive streetscape.

38 Eades Place is the oldest of these four row houses built in 1871 for John Darbyshire who was probably also the builder. He was an owner/occupier until he was bought out by Henry Munn, a boot and shoemaker, in 1877. Next came 34 Eades Place in 1879 owned and occupied by William Chambers and his wife for the next twenty years. Henry Munn built 36 in 1884 and c1894 he added 40, in which he was residing by 1895; his other houses being leased to John Mountain and Edwin Buckley.

Description/Notable Features

A two-storeyed stuccoed and brick parapeted row of four houses, each of different construction date (and owner in 34,38), but all appearing to be part of a whole. Due to the acquisition by Munn of 36-8, 40 was added by him to match 38.: the same philosophy may have determined a general match to 34 by 36 when Munn built the latter six years after the former. All have simple parapet cornices, are built to the street alignment, possess symmetrical fenestration and utilise, albeit misaligned, string-moulds. Shutters and paired doorways are in common but 34,36 have parapet entablatures, gabled and arched with scrolls and dates, where 38-40 have not. Notable features include shutters and on street siting.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, each is original, simply ornamented and fenestrated which is typical of the date of the initial buildings of the group but not the later two (36,40) and thus the group may be an early expression of the desire for visual cohesion: of regional significance. Historically, Further examples of the owner-builder predominance in the study area: of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint in original or typical colours; record shutter details. Door replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design/sympathetic alternative)

Other Comments

Integrity - Generally original except for possible parapet urns on 36.

Streetscape - A high streetscape affinity to each other and other similarly simply elevated buildings in the street i.e. 28-32, 8-10, in this cohesive residential streetscape.

'CITY COUNCIL ELECTIONS. Mr. J. W. PEIRCE AT WEST MELBOURNE

Mr. J. W. Peirce, the retiring councillor for Bourke Ward, met about 30 ratepayers at the James Watt Hotel, Spencer-street, last night. Dr. Lloyd occupied the chair. Mr. Peirce said that when he sought election three years ago he made many promises to the ratepayers, but he had never broken faith with them. It was in consequence of his action in the City Council that 75 extra lamps were erected in the ward, and the Flagstaff-gardens were improved, so that citizens could take their wives through them at night time. The 350 trees recently planted in the streets of the ward were the outcome of his energies. It had been proposed to erect a refrigerating room in the reserve of the Victoria Market, but he thought the land would be turned to better account if shops were erected on it, and he had this done. The shops already opened were returning 12 per cent, on the money expended on them. He acted on four committees of the council, and read a return of attendances to show that he was most regular. The work of the council was really done in committee, and not by those gentlemen who aired their eloquence at council meetings. It had always been his object to keep down the rating on citizens, and the council would soon be in such a position that it would not know what to do with its money. The Western Market would soon be acquired by it, and the returns which would be received from it would pay the expenditure of one ward.... While for 28 years their members of Parliament had been promising to obtain for them a recreation reserve, he had done so within six months of his election, and that was for no other reason than that he exercised some influence in both Parliament and the council.'

ARBOR DAY, North and West Melbourne

'...The tree planting portion of the day's programme was then taken in hand, trees being planted by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Director of Education, Messrs. Aikman and Edgar, members of the board of advice and others.

At the King-street school, West Melbourne, Arbor day was also duly observed. The morning was occupied in lessons bearing on trees and their cultivation, and in the afternoon the board of advice attended, and a squad of cadets paraded with the flag, and the bugle band played. Trees were planted in the ground, and a large number of visitors were present.'

'WEST MELBOURNE, 1866

During the ministry of the Rev. James Taylor, Collins Street was the centre of much evangelistic activity. At one period six branch Sunday Schools were in operation and the members of the Preachers' Class conducted many Gospel services. One of the schools was at Chetwynd Street, North Melbourne, then known as Hotham. There the scholars numbered 130, and a Church was formed, of which the Rev. S. Finkelstein was pastor in 1868 and the Rev. G. P. Lush in 1869. When the school building in Chetwynd Street proved too small, the work was transferred to the Common School in Errol Street. As the congregation grew, land was acquired in Hawke Street, West Melbourne, and a good stone building erected. This was opened by the Rev. J. Taylor in March 1866. At that time a young evangelist, Waiter Douglas arrived from London via New Zealand, and was asked to carry on the work. . This he did with great earnestness. A continuous Mission was maintained from July to November 1866. So the West Melbourne Church was cradled in evangelism. Many conversions resulted, and the Sunday School flourished. In 1870 the Church was formally constituted by the Rev. [James Martin, and became independent of Collins Street. The leaders of the School were Mr. T. MacFarlane and D. Hamilton, of Collins Street, and in course of time the scholars numbered 500. The pastors were Revs. W. Garner (1870) and H. Phillips (1873). In 1882 a Sunday School and preaching station were opened at West Footscray by earnest young men from the West Melbourne Church. Ten years after the Church was opened the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon was written to regarding a pastor, and at his instigation the Rev. A. J. Clarke became the minister of West Melbourne. He was an earnest evangelist, the congregations increased, and the transept was added to the building. The following have been the pastors since Mr. Clarke's time:-W. C. Bunning, E. Isaac, E. Harris, H. Clark, E. L. Watson, F. J. Miles, T. P. Tringham, E. Bungey, S. Blackney, T. V. Paul and the present pastor, J. Curtis, Among the leading workers whose names should not be forgotten were Daniel Hamilton, S.S. Superintendent for many years; Robert Self, for 52 years deacon and local preacher; R. Hannaford, for 28 years S.S. Superintendent; A. Matthews, leader of the Young Men's Bible Class; D. Locke, deacon for many years; and T. Mathers, Church Secretary for about 40 years, with their wives and many gracious women. With such a history and with such pastors and fellow-labourers, it is no wonder that for many years West Melbourne was one of the most important in the Denomination, but in the course of years its surroundings have completely changed. It has ceased to be a desirable residential district; many of its members moved away to Footscray, Newmarket, &c., and others have not yet been received in their place. Possibly in coming years some at least of the former experiences may be revived. '

SURVEYED PLACES

Description/Notable Features

Single fronted and transverse gabled roof (slated) row houses, formerly of polychrome brick and possessing iron picket fences and verandahs. Notable features include the verandah and fence.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of little individual importance, although early for coloured brick construction, but contributing to one of the rare streetscapes in West Melbourne: of local importance. Historically, an early speculative row where the developer resided in one of the houses: of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Remove paint from bricks, repaint trim in typical or original colours; restore iron if evidence available.

Verandah detail removed (inappropriate - reinstate as original/sympathetic alternative to the original)

Other Comments

Integrity - Cast-iron (presumed) decoration has been removed and the brickwork painted.

Streetscape - Part of an altered but cohesive residential streetscape.

Description/Notable Features

Single fronted and transverse gabled roof (slated) row houses, formerly of polychrome brick and possessing iron picket fences and verandahs. Notable features include the verandah and fence.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of little individual importance, although early for coloured brick construction, but contributing to one of the rare streetscapes in West Melbourne: of local importance. Historically, an early speculative row where the developer resided in one of the houses: of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Remove paint from bricks, repaint trim in typical or original colours; restore iron if evidence available. Verandah detail removed (inappropriate - reinstate as original/sympathetic alternative to the original)

Other Comments

Integrity - Cast-iron (presumed) decoration has been removed and the brickwork painted.

Streetscape - Part of an altered but cohesive residential streetscape.

Image shows former slate roof.

History

Over a period of two years (1870-72) these row houses were built for John Marley. He owned them until c1890, after which they passed into the hands of Thomas

McDonald who was the manager of the Colonial Bank in Victoria Street. The residents included John Marley and his wife in 33 Hawke Street (1872-c1890); Arthur Pretty who moved from here to Chetwynd Street in 1883 (Refer to 62-4 Chetwynd Street); and others such as James Barrowman (1875); William Stewart (1879-82); Alexander Massey and Edward Ettershank (1896-7).3

Integrity - Cast-iron (presumed) decoration has been removed and the brickwork painted.

Streetscape - Part of an altered but cohesive residential streetscape.

Description/Notable Features

A two-storey, face-brick and plain parapeted row house with a cast-iron verandah of two levels and an iron picket fence: the iron pattern is notable. Notable features include fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early example of a common house type of limited integrity but which contributes to a streetscape: of local importance. Historically, little is known of Woodham (perhaps a librarian?) : of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Remove paint from bricks; repaint trim as original or typical. Bricks painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method) balustrade part gone, frieze gone (inappropriate - reinstate original design)

Other Comments

Integrity - The bricks have been painted and the parapet may have been altered.

'2 storey brick building built 1980's.'

'Architect Victoria'

Winter 2012: 14

'Official Journal of the Australian Institute of Architects Victorian Chapter'...

'This was in the Hamer period of Liberal government, as was the infill phase, the next stage in Government housing, at its outset. This saw a complete refocus on the single or two-storeyed house, as a terrace, dropped into a row of other houses, or continuing a suburban street pattern. Here a convergence of later ideas was brought to bear: mixed urban use as prescribed by Jane Jacobs in 1963¹⁷ seemed more reachable

if you integrated new housing visually within older suburbs. And concerns about social stigma of conspicuously different housing projects could be addressed by embedding new houses in established streets. The revision of a-contextual modernism, and its excessive focus on industrial and production imagery, could be addressed by a return to contextual linkage through older and distinctively local textures, colour, material and forms. The Carlton and North Fitzroy housing of Station, Kay, and Canning Streets, the incursions there by Edmond and Corrigan, Greg Burgess, Peter Crone and Norman Day, accompanied by the act of buying older houses (establishing a new social role and meaning in that process).

By 1983-4 this genre had expanded to larger groupings of 26, as with Leo development Jong's Public Works development in North Melbourne of up to over 100 or more units; also Cox and Carmichael's Highbett development... (image) Capel Street Housing, West Melbourne, Peter Elliott (1988).¹

A two-storey stuccoed brick row house pair with a two-level cast-iron verandah and transverse gabled roof line, behind a bracketed and corniced parapet. Pronounced brackets and transverse chimney shafts, combined with the parapet ornament, distinguish this design from others by builders. Notable features include the verandah.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, originally of a design which presented subtle variations on what is a common theme, but limited integrity of 41 and additions to 39 determine that it is of local importance and contributive to a streetscape only.

Historically, little is known of the developer or his tenants:

of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Replace wall with timber or iron pickets, as evidence suggests; repaint in typical or original colours. Fence

(inappropriate - reinstate as original/sympathetic alternative to the original)

Other Comments

Integrity - 41 has been altered with the verandah and fence replaced; 39 is generally original with its presumed timber picket fence replaced by a high brick wall.

Streetscape - Contributive part of one of West

Melbourne's few streetscapes.

Description/Notable Features

The house at 55 Hawke Street is a single-storey, single-fronted Victorian house with a transverse gabled roof behind a rendered pedimented parapet. The verandah has cast iron decoration and spans between wing walls which are ornamented with decorative pine cones and rendered consoles. Alterations include the recladding of the roof in glazed terracotta tiles, replacement of the front window and replacement of the front fence.

Statement of Significance

The house at 55 Hawke Street is of local historical and aesthetic interest. The house represents the type of modest speculative housing which proliferated in North and West Melbourne in the nineteenth century. Aesthetically, the houses is reasonably intact and, with its neighbours, makes a positive contribution to the mixed streetscape.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. The house is a reasonably intact representative of the nineteenth century workers' cottages which were constructed in large numbers in North and West Melbourne in the Victorian period. The alterations are generally reversible.

Victorian Chapter'...

This was in the Hamer period of Liberal government, as was the infill phase, the next stage in Government housing, at its outset. This saw a complete refocus on the single or two-storeyed house, as a terrace, dropped into a row of other houses, or continuing a suburban street pattern. Here a convergence of later ideas was brought to bear: mixed urban use as prescribed by Jane Jacobs in 1963¹⁷ seemed more reachable if you integrated new housing visually within older suburbs. And concerns about social stigma of conspicuously different housing projects could be addressed by embedding new houses in established streets. The revision of a-contextual modernism, and its excessive focus on industrial and production imagery, could be addressed by a return to contextual linkage through older and distinctively local textures, colour, material and forms. The Carlton and North Fitzroy housing of Station, Kay, and Canning Streets, the incursions there by Edmond and Corrigan, Greg Burgess, Peter Crone and Norman Day, accompanied by the act of buying older houses (establishing a new social role and meaning in that process).

By 1983-4 this genre had expanded to larger groupings of 26, as with Leo development Jong's Public Works development in North Melbourne of up to over 100 or more units; also Cox and Carmichael's Highett development... (image) Capel Street Housing, West Melbourne, Peter Elliott (1988).¹

Architect

Builder

First Owner

John Jones, a contractor, built these houses, during 1879-81, living in 74 for the next fifteen years at least. Jones sold 76 to George Pitkethley by 1881 and 78 to Hugh Tait in the same period: Pitkethley alternately occupied and rented his house to persons such as boot retailer, William Leeming (qv), and Pat Morgan, whilst Mrs. Agnes Tait occupied 78 for many years. Of note is that Jones used architects, Ellerker and Kilburn on other work.

Description/Notable Features

Three stuccoed brick, two-storey row houses with two-level cast-iron verandahs: each stepped back with the street angle, and down with its slope. 74 has a scrolled and pedimented parapet entablature above its cornice, contrasting with the plain parapets of 76-8. Apart from the normal lions heads and brackets to party wall faces, a nail-head motif re-occurs through all facades, whilst orbs were used at the parapet piers. A serpentine motif in the iron friezework is contrasted with the more formal guilloche in the balustrading. A further differentiation of 74 from 76-8 is the iron picket fence it possesses, compared with the spade-head timber picket which survives on 76. Notable features include fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early example of a common form of row house which is a near original and forms the major part of a picturesque streetscape: of regional significance. Historically, a superior example of a resident builder-developer's work, where a clear differentiation of his residence from the lease properties is made and these houses are one group of several homes built in the area between 1867-85: of regional significance.

Recommended Alterations

Replace picket fence on 78; replace urns on 74; repaint all in typical or original colours; consider rezoning to Special Residential 2 or similar, to preserve domestic use and form.

Other Comments

Integrity - The spade-head picket fence has been replaced on 78 and the parapet orbs are missing from 74. Streetscape - Contributing part of a residential streetscape made picturesque by the stepped siting laterally and vertically and the common transverse gabled roof lines of each house 74-82 and the shared single-fronted, 19th century row house form of 68-82 Hawke Street.

History Not Assessed

Description/Notable Features

A two-storey, stuccoed brick house with a two-level cast-iron verandah, a gabled parapet entablature and an iron picket fence. Like 74-78 Hawke Street, the guilloche pattern is used in the balustrade panels and a serpentine motif in the friezes, also nail-head ornament is at the parapet, suggesting that John Jones may have constructed this house for Easton. Notable features include the fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early and original, if architecturally undistinguished, example of a common row house type and part of one of West Melbourne's few streetscapes: of regional importance. Historically, little is known of the owner or tenants: of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint in typical or original colours; replace urns to pattern of 74-8 Hawke Street or as evidence suggests; consider re-zoning to Special Residential 2, or similar, to preserve the house in its original use and form. Door replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design/sympathetic alternative) gate replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design)

Other Comments

Integrity - Parapet urns are missing.

Streetscape - Contributive part of the picturesque row house group of 74-80 (Refer 74-8 Hawke Street).

continuing a suburban street pattern. Here a convergence of later ideas was brought to bear: mixed urban use as prescribed by Jane Jacobs in 1963¹⁷ seemed more reachable if you integrated new housing visually within older suburbs. And concerns about social stigma of conspicuously different housing projects could be addressed by embedding new houses in established streets. The revision of a-contextual modernism, and its excessive focus on industrial and production imagery, could be addressed by a return to contextual linkage through older and distinctively local textures, colour, material and forms. The Carlton and North Fitzroy housing of Station, Kay, and Canning Streets, the incursions there by Edmond and Corrigan, Greg Burgess, Peter Crone and Norman Day, accompanied by the act of buying older houses (establishing a new social role and meaning in that process).

By 1983-4 this genre had expanded to larger groupings of 26, as with Leo development Jong's Public Works development in North Melbourne of up to over 100 or more units; also Cox and Carmichael's Highett development... (image) Capel Street Housing, West Melbourne, Peter Elliott (1988)

'The first sulphuric acid manufacture in Victoria goes probably back to 1862, when Messrs. Forbes and Co. produced it on the Yarra Bank 'in a very small way'. The enterprise was followed by Clarke and Hoffman, later Smith and Co. and finally Cuming Smith and Co., who round about 1872 built a modern, medium scale mineral acids complex producing concentrated sulphuric acid, nitric and sulphurous acid, ammonium nitrate and phosphatic fertiliser. The acid chambers were sizeable 90 x 20 x 14 feet, compared with the UK plant built shortly before then by Muspratt 120 x 24 x 20 feet. The manager of the establishment, James Cuming, the entrepreneur's son, had received his chemical education in Victoria; the firm received two gold medals at the Melbourne International Exhibition and was 'recommended for the Emperor of Germany's grand prize to the premier industry in the colony'.[11] The Victoria Bone Mills at Yarraville founded 1870 was part of this early complex.[12] Remarkably, 3 000 tonnes of calcium superphosphate were exported to Mauritius and New Zealand. Also at Yarraville were the Victorian Pyrites and Smelting Works and a substantial sugar refinery, the Victorian Sugar Company's Works, and Melbourne Woollen Mills. Nearby, at Footscray, the Apollo Company Works, established in 1873, produced organic chemicals from slaughter yards, glycerine, stearine, oleine and household soap. The company's successor in Sydney, Apollo Stearine Candle Coy., and another Melbourne soaper,[13] J. Kitchen and Sons eventually, in 1912-14, were absorbed by Lever Bros. Ltd.'

'Australasia's history

William Hesketh Lever was the first person to stamp soap with a brand name and wrap it before selling it to the public. The brand was Sunlight soap and the year was 1885. In the late 1880s, Lever Brothers Sunlight soap was first imported to NZ from the UK. In 1899, Lever Brothers began soap production at Balmain in Sydney, followed by the commencement of production in New Zealand in 1919.

On 2 September, 1929, the UK-based Lever Brothers and the Dutch union of fats and oils businesses Margarine Unie, signed an agreement to create Unilever. The businesses initially aimed to negotiate an arrangement to keep out of each other's principal interests of soap and margarine production, but ultimately decided on an amalgamation instead.

The years following saw significant expansion around the world, and Australasia was no exception. In 1959, Unilever acquired McNivens Ice Cream in Australia followed by Streets and Sennitts. In 1963, the business acquired Rosella Foods (established 1896). In 1968, the John West operation began in Australia and in 1971 Unilever acquired Lipton Tea.

Modern history

In 1982, the Rosella factory in Richmond, Victoria, closed and dry foods production transferred to Knoxfield. In 1988, the Bushells, Rosella Lipton and John West businesses combined to form Unifoods in Australia. In the same year, the New Zealand acquisitions of Oxo, Bushells, Faggs and Quality Packers merged with John West to form Unifoods NZ...'

Manufactured by the Widdis Diamond Dry Cells Proprietary, Limited, 119

Hawke street, West Melbourne. Diamond Dry Cells have earned a well deserved reputation for general excellence. In illustration of this fact it may prove of interest to quote what a representative of the Australasian manufacturer has to say:- "I tried-out three Diamond Dry Cell batteries on my two-valve set at home and found them most satisfactory in every way. In fact, they were more efficient than others I had previously used of American manufacture. The volume of sound given was something like 20 per cent greater than I had previously been receiving." This is an expression of opinion gained from practical experience, and is wholly, authentic, and indicates that dealers in wireless accessories and users cannot do better than secure Diamond Dry Cells. It is interesting, therefore, to note that Widdis Diamond Dry Cells Proprietary, Limited, have a well-equipped factory in West Melbourne, and are making many types of first-class dry cells, using Australian raw material, wherever possible. The range of standard, manufactures, four types of single cells, three round and one square, nine sizes of B battery for radio work, with voltages of 22 1/2, 45, and 90, and a C battery of 4.5 volts. In addition, cells are made if necessary to fulfil special requirements. Practically all the dry cells required by the Postal Department, the Australian Navy, the Victorian Railways, and the South Australian Government are supplied by this company. These batteries are obtainable from all radio dealers in South Australia, or from the distributor, L. A. Harper, CBS. Buildings, King William street, Adelaide. '

Newspapers:

'The Australasian' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1864 - 1946)
 Saturday 1 October 1927

'GERRARD WIRE-TYING MACHINES CO. PTY. LTD.

During the year 1926 over 12 million cases of Australian products were reinforced and sealed with Gerrard wire-tying machines. Pillage prevention is a problem which the Gerrard Company, 119-125 Hawke street, West Melbourne, claim to have solved successfully with the aid of their machines and wire-seal strapping: also the addition of saw edge corrugated fasteners. By this means one-piece lids and sides are made, and the package is sealed effectively against pillage and ullage.

The Gerrard Company make a speciality of labour-saving devices for the packing-room, which include a new automatic tacker for sealing labels to the packages; a scientific lever for opening cases without effort or damage to the wood, and also a portable lidpress for apple-packing.. Many interesting export packages' were attractively shown in their, new pavilion in Lennon avenue.'

Saturday 29 September 1928

'GERRARD WIRE TYING MACHINE PTY. LTD.

A very interesting exhibit of wire-tying machine and packing-room appliances is being shown by the Gerrard Company, 119-125 Hawke street. West Melbourne, in their attractive pavilion in Lennon avenue. The range of. Machines includes models for tying small cartons and parcels to the heaviest bale and package, using up to 8 gauge round bands of steel. The universal adoption of this economical and effective system for binding and sealing packages by manufacturers is shown by a statement recently issued by the company.

SURVEYED PLACES

In Australia during the year 1925, six million cases were wire sealed; the following year the total increased to twelve millions, and during 1927 the amazing total of seventeen million packages were bound and scaled with the Gerrard machines. The better packing of Australian export apples is a feature of this exhibit. The standard softwood cases attractively labelled is shown in strong contrast to the stained hardwood dump, on which overseas buyers report so unfavourably. The introduction of the Adeco Lid Press facilitates easy lidding of the new case without bruising the top layers of the fruit, and the Trugrade Apple Gauge provides the best means for obtaining the "perfect pack".'

Australian Dictionary of Biography (ADB)

'Connibere, Sir Charles Wellington (1864–1941)

by Paul H. De Serville

Sir Charles Wellington Connibere (1864-1941),

businessman and philanthropist, was born on 6 February 1864 at St Kilda, Melbourne, son of George Connibere, Devon-born draper and later mayor of St Kilda, and his wife Emma Joan, née Richards, from Somerset. Charles and his two brothers Ernest William Richards (1862-1957), and Frederick George (1868-1945) started in a small way as softgoods merchants in 1889, under the name of Connibere, Grieve & Connibere. Their partner, John Grieve (father of Robert Cuthbert), died in 1899.

Charles Connibere went to London as the firm's agent about 1895; when he returned in 1920, the brothers sold the firm to Sargood's, formed Connibere Bros and invested their money in city property. Shrewd businessmen, they always sold out at the top of the market and, as Ernest later acknowledged, worked in great harmony. They were reputed never to make a mistake in a business deal or in a charitable gift. Neither they nor their sister Emma Eliza, married. They lived quiet, abstemious lives in Toorak, 'model bachelors, reserved, correct to the point of austerity'.

Their list of known benefactions was considerable. In 1929 the brothers built three wards at the Orthopaedic Hospital, Mount Eliza. They and their sister paid for the building of the Young Women's Christian Association headquarters as a memorial to their father. Charles supported the Melbourne City Mission, the Victorian Institute of Hospital Almoners, and with George, the Eye and Ear Hospital. At the same time the brothers gave £5000 to the Prohibition League and an unnamed amount to the Sunday Christian Observance Council.

Their gifts rarely took the public eye, one exception being the cheque for £30,000 which Charles Connibere handed W. M. Hughes at a luncheon for the Jubilee Fund in 1935. He stipulated that the money be used to build a maternity wing at the Women's Hospital, and later gave a further £10,000 to ensure that the building opened debt free. In January 1936 Charles Connibere was appointed K.B.E. Both Sir Charles and George were active in church affairs, the first on the council of the Melbourne Diocese, the second a member of synod.

The demands of war increased their philanthropy. They bore the expense of the Young Men's Christian Association restroom in Elizabeth Street, where any man in uniform could have free refreshments, and they built Y.M.C.A. huts at Balcombe and Puckapunyal camps. At the time of his sudden death at Toorak on 25 June 1941, Sir Charles was on the board of numerous hospitals and charities (including the Red Cross). That year Ernest and George gave the Royal Melbourne Hospital £138,860 for a nurses' wing as a memorial to their brother. Two years later they gave £23,750 to St Andrew's Hospital for a similar wing. On 10 August 1945 George Connibere died after a long illness.

In 1945 and 1946 Ernest gave £10,000 to the Food for Britain Fund, and a further £10,000 each to the Melbourne City Mission, Ormond College and St Andrew's Hospital. He put up the money for a kindergarten at Port Melbourne, yet he considered his religious work more important than his charitable interests. He paid for two religious programmes on commercial wireless stations, distributed Sankey's hymn-books and supported schemes for the advancement of religious instruction.

Interviewed when he was 92, Ernest—still a dapper man in frock coat and butterfly collar—declared that his one hobby was 'service to my fellow man'. In pursuit of this aim, he and his brothers had donated well over £750,000 to charity and religion. Ernest died on 12 November 1957, leaving the remainder of his estate, valued for probate at £296,872, to charity.

History
David Shearer, who ran an agency business with his brother John in William Street, was the first owner-occupier of this house from 1863. Twenty years later it had been acquired by Reverend Edward T. Miles, of the William Street Independent Church (demolished), who leased it to Mrs. Hodges, Henry Wright and William Abbott before the turn of the century. The house was sited on a wood yard, operated by Shearer during the 1870-80 period.

Description/Notable Features
Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration, verandah roof and structure and an elaborate / high standard design of cement rendered surfaces. This house comprises two stages of development, presumably that of Shearer from the 1860's and more obviously that of the Rev. Miles in the 1880's. It is a highly decorated, two storey stuccoed brick house with a parapeted roof line, a two level cast iron verandah and an iron picket fence. The arched entablature and shell, the guilloche pattern parapet balustrading and the pronounced orbs, set on the parapet piers create a more richer than normal skyline profile. Paired brackets support the deep cornice, assisted by dentil mouldings above a swagged entablature frieze. An unusual aspect of the verandah is the central column to the upper level which does not continue to the ground. The cast iron is panelled complete with fringing and brackets, and the arched entrance portal possesses a spoked fanlight. The lower window bay with its corner, Corinthian pilasters and panelled sub sill wall face is uncommon, the whole appearing to be architect designed. Integrity - Generally original. Streetscape - Part of a superior group of houses, Nos, 13-19, which contrast with and complement the St. Mary's complex adjoining.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of a common type but is near original, skilfully and richly decorated containing unusual details and is one major part of a late 19th and early 20th century civic residential streetscape, of high regional importance. Historically, the present form relates to the Rev. Miles and particularly to a church which has since been demolished, being its only physical memorial and once possessed a central role in the community and comprised part of a church precinct, of high regional significance.

Recommended Alterations

Recommendations - Repaint in original or typical colours, consider re-zoning to Special Residential 2 or similar, to preserve its house use and form.

History

The first owner-occupier of 15 Howard Street was Thomas Coultas, partner in a Swanston Street tailoring firm. (See also Southwell Coultas, 76,78,84 Molesworth Street). He owned the house from 1876 until 1885, but it was rented from 1879. After Coultas, other owner-occupiers were James Smith (1890) and John Quinlan (1896) an hotel broker of Collins Street.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration (unusual), verandah roof and structure and unpainted decorative brickwork.

Local builder, Thomas Noble, constructed this two storey, coloured brick and stucco, parapeted house with a two level cast iron verandah and sympathetic timber picket fence. The iron friezes and balustrading are panelled, the latter of an unusual lyre-shape design, whilst other sparse ornament includes vermiculation, panels and brackets on each side-wall. Like No. 13 the upper verandah post does not continue to ground. (Refer to No 13 Howard St)

Integrity - Generally original, the fence having been replaced/modified sympathetically. Streetscape - Part of a valuable row house precinct, adjoining the St. Mary's complex. (Refer 13 Howard Street).

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, a near original example of a common type, being distinguished by its iron and contributing to a streetscape, of regional significance. Historically, another speculative property, associated by ownership with businessmen, prominent in Melbourne, of local significance.

Recommended Alterations Fence (sympathetic - no recommendations) Part bricks painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method). Recommendations - Repaint trim with typical or original colours, consider rezoning to Special Residential 2 or similar to preserve residential use and form.

History

In 1875, John Stedeford, who owned considerable property in both North and West Melbourne (Refer to 465-71, 473-83 Queensberry Street, and 279-85 Victorian Street), built this house and occupied it for ten years, when it passed into the hands of Thomas Moore of William Street (Refer 345-9 William Street). He leased it to Henry Taylor, Thomas Holloway and Walter Downing.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration, and verandah roof and structure. French door original? A two storey, wide frontage coloured brick and stucco house with a two level cast iron verandah, like Nos. 13, 15, the upper post does not continue to ground. The house is parapeted, with a cornice, but decoration is confined to the unusually fine panelled cast iron work (which incorporates the lyre pattern as does No. 15) and the nail head motif on the verandah side walls. French doors open to the upper verandah whilst wide brick arches have been placed in the adjacent brickwork. Integrity - The former timber picket fence may have been cut back or replaced and the brick arches have been closed in. Streetscape - Part of a valuable residential streetscape, adjoining the St. Mary's complex (Refer No 13 Howard).

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early generally original example of a common residential form, but possessing unusual cast iron and brickwork details and a part of a streetscape. Historically, a former residence of John Stedeford who built the important streetscape in Queensberry Street, between Chetwynd and Leveson Streets and completed many other projects in the inner metropolis as owner builder or owner, of high regional importance.

Recommended Alterations

Fence (sympathetic - no recommendations) Part bricks painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method) Recommendations - Replace picket fence as desired with spade head or original profile, repaint trim in original or typical colours, consider re-zoning to Special Residential 2 or similar to preserve residential use and form.

'WIRE TYING MADE EASY

Machines Do It Now

One of the most interesting mechanical developments in Australia in the post-war years has been that of automatic and semi automatic wire-tying machines for the reinforcing and sealing of boxes, cartons, and bundles. This has been brought about by the Gerrard Wire Tying Machines Co., Pty., Ltd., which had its origin in Victoria. It is a purely Australian concern. Eight different types of wire tying machines are manufactured in Australia, and the whole of the galvanised wire : strappings in gauges ranging from -No. 10, for use on very large, heavy cases of woollen goods, motor chassis parts, &c., down to No.19, used on parcel post packages, are drawn to Gerrard specifications by Australian steel wire mills. In addition to the complete range of wire tying machines' made, the Gerrard Company also , manufactures an efficient flat-band, strapping machine for use when wire is not considered suitable for a particular job. 'Tom an idea born in Australia, with machines largely developed here by Australian designers and engineers, Gerrard has built an Australian business with over 5000 users, who, in 1937, wire-strapped more than 25,000, 000 boxes and packages of primary and secondary products. The Brisbane office, in Makerston Street, and the Townsville agency (Swales Engineering Works)', carry stocks of machines and wire strapping. An efficient mechanical staff is carried for immediate service attention to users' machines.

'Huon and Derwent Times' (Tas. : 1933 - 1942) Tuesday 16 October 1934

'GERRARD WIRE TYING MACHINES.

Mr W. L. Gregory has come to Hobart especially to demonstrate Gerrard's latest machine for wire strapping fruit cases and the 'Gerrard Service -Fountain Stencil,' which operates in much the same way as the ordinary fountain pen, thereby being a great saver of time in the marking of fruit cases. Gerrard and Company's display and demonstration will be seen at G. N. Debnam's exhibit, and those orchardists who look for speed, economy and efficiency should not fail to visit this company's very instructive and interesting exhibit.'

'The Australasian' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1864 - 1946) Saturday 29 September 1928

'GERRARD WIRE TYING MACHINE PTY. LTD.

SURVEYED PLACES

A very interesting exhibit of wire-tying machine and packing-room appliances is being shown by the Gerrard Company, 119-125 Hawke street (qv). West Melbourne, in their attractive pavilion in Lennon avenue. The range of machines includes models for tying small cartons and parcels to the heaviest bale and package, using up to 8 gauge round bands of steel. The universal adoption of this economical and effective system for binding and sealing packages by manufacturers is shown by a statement recently issued by the company.

In Australia during the year 1925, six million cases were wire sealed; the following year the total increased to twelve millions, and during 1927 the amazing total of seventeen million packages were bound and scaled with the Gerrard machines. The better packing of Australian export apples is a feature of this exhibit. The standard softwood cases attractively labelled is shown in strong contrast to the stained hardwood dump, on which overseas buyers report so unfavourably. The introduction of the Adeco Lid Press facilitates easy lidding of the new case without bruising the top layers of the fruit, and the Trugrade Apple Gauge provides the best means for obtaining the "perfect pack".'

 History

The house at 98 Ireland Street first appears in the Sands & McDougall directory for 1912, listed as 'vacant'. The first occupant was Robert Yound, who lived there until 1913. He was succeeded by James Brown, who is listed as the occupant from 1914 to 1917.

Description/Notable Features

Yangtsze is a single storey cottage in the Victorian Survival style. The walls are of constructed of rendered masonry and the roof is concealed behind a balustraded parapet. The facade has an entrance door and a pair of timber framed double hung sash windows with rendered sills are to one side of the timber door. The balustraded parapet which has a central pediment bearing the name 'Yangtsze' in raised lettering, and ornamented with paterae and a vermiculated panel. A brick chimney with terracotta pots penetrates the roof. The fence is not original.

Statement of Significance

Yangtsze, at 98 Ireland Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. The house is representative of a minor phase of residential development in West Melbourne. Largely Victorian in detail and decoration but constructed c1911, the house is a particularly ornate example of the so called Victorian Survival style and makes a positive contribution to the streetscape.

Bronze sculpture

Corner of King and Jeffcott Streets, West Melbourne
Melbourne artist Andrew Rogers came to sculpture following a career in business. His work is well represented on Melbourne's streets, but he has been particularly successful internationally. His work has been commissioned in the Middle East, Europe and the Americas, and two of his largest works are installed in the Arava Desert, Israel, and the Atacama Desert, Chile. In June 1995, Central Equity Homes commissioned Rogers to design a sculpture to locate outside their West Melbourne residential development. The 6.5-metre City Living is the result of that commission. Cast in Fitzroy's Meridian Foundry, the sculpture consists of five naked figures, including an infant, balanced against half disks attached to a central column. Two of the disks feature iconography that links this 'family' to both the domestic space and the city fabric. While this is a large piece set on an imposing concrete base, a certain lightness is achieved through the aerial poses of the figures. City Living was donated to the City of Melbourne in 1996.'

Sir, — We noticed in "The Age" of yesterday in the letter

We would like to correct this, as at present we are manufacturing one 2 h.p. electric motor, and 8 h.p. electric motor, and 15 h.p. electric generator, one 40 h.p. electric generator; and these- are for firms who have had our manufactured electric plants working for several years. We have also sent plants to Now Zealand and South Australia.—

TO SUB EDITOR OP THE AGE.

Sir,— Several times recently we have read reports in your esteemed paper stating that electrical machinery could not be made here. We wish to say emphatically that electrical machinery can be manufactured here, and that we have for the last seventeen years manufactured same for all- purposes.

What we require to build this industry up to a proper footing is a protective duty of not less than 25 per cent., as in the old Victorian tariff. A bonus given for articles made would not meet the difficulty, as prejudice (which is steadily- dying out) is yet so strong that we should not have a chance while the importers are allowed to bring in machinery under a ridiculous 10 per cent, duty, as at present proposed. Trusting that a more reasonable view of this important industry will be taken by our legislators. — Yours. &c..

Statement of Significance for proposed Sands and McDougall Pty Ltd. complex

What is significant?

Sands and Kenny (1857-61) and Sands and McDougall, (1862-c1974) were the publishers of the directory to commercial and general Melbourne, later, the Melbourne and suburban directory and the 'Directory of Victoria' providing the longest issue of any other directory publisher in Victoria. They also published a directory of Canberra.

From their first retailing outlet, the Victoria Stationery Warehouse in Collins Street West (No.46) and stores in Little Flinders Street, their expansion provided for the erection of this factory building to the design of Thomas Watts and Sons, by builder F. Lavers of Hawthorn. Products made there included cardboard and paper containers, maps, those associated with book binding and general stationery and letterpress printing was combined with general publishing.

Thomas Watts and Sons accepted tenders for erection of the adjoining 3 level warehouse in Spencer Street, Melbourne in 1900 for Sands and McDougall Ltd. In 1914 Reynolds Bros of 118 Rose Street Fitzroy erected a factory for Sands and McDougall West Melbourne in Jeffcott Street designed by A and H Peck. [22]

The design firm, Thomas Watts and Sons, is also known for commercial buildings, such as Robb's Building (1866) formerly in Collins Street; stores for the City Property Co. in Flinders Lane (1889); stores for Alston and Payne in McKillop Street (1888) and the similarly gigantic and brick Victoria Sugar Company Works, Beach Street, Port Melbourne (since renovated as apartments).

Reputedly riveted wrought-iron columns and beams are the internal structure with timber floors fire-proofed by the Traegerwellbech arched corrugated plate linings, with in combustible infill. The former Victoria Bond 565-71 Lonsdale Street, Melbourne - a five-storey store claimed as the first to use the all-wrought-iron frame combined with the Traegerwellbech system, 1887, since demolished. As befits its manufactory function, ornament derived from the Italian Renaissance is applied sparingly (refer later Laurens - Munster Terrace complex).

Contributory elements include:

Main wing 1888-9

- a grand six-storey, red brick and stucco parapeted factory building set on the Jeffcott Street corner;
- symmetrically arranged three main façade bays, each with a hipped roof form over, as expressed by massive parapet pediments;
- cemented parapet cornice and string moulds dividing the storeys;
- basalt sills and voussoirs to formerly double-hung sash window openings;
- bracketed cement hood over the entry;
- painted wall signs with the firm's name on north and south sides;
- contribution as a period landmark being a major corner site, in original condition and with gigantic proportions set amongst low-rise neighbours and the centre-piece of an associated complex of red brick industrial buildings in the locality and the former Melbourne Remand Centre that was clearly inspired by this building.

Warehouse, Spencer Street 1900

- a three-storey, red brick and stucco parapeted warehouse adjoining the factory;
- symmetrically arranged three main façade bays, each with a hipped roof form over, as expressed by cemented parapet pediments, with flanking scrolls;
- cemented parapet cornice and string moulds dividing the storeys;
- basalt sills and voussoirs to formerly double-hung sash window openings;
- painted wall signs with the firm's name on north and south sides;

contribution as a period landmark being a major corner site, in original condition and with gigantic proportions set amongst low-rise neighbours and the centre-piece of an associated complex of red brick industrial buildings in the locality,

Openings altered with single pane glazing in place of double-hung sash windows, entry altered.

Jeffcott Street factory 1914

- face brick (bricks painted over) one level plus basement building set on stone paved lane between main building;
- double gabled parapeted roofline, corrugated iron clad roof behind;

Openings altered, entry altered.

How is it significant?

Sands and McDougall Ltd. factory and warehouse complex is significant historically and aesthetically to West Melbourne, the City of Melbourne and Victoria.

Why is it significant?

Sands and McDougall Ltd factory and warehouse complex is significant.

- Aesthetically, like many other warehouse or factory buildings of the period and earlier, this complex dominates its residential contemporaries in scale and adopts the Italian Renaissance Revival ornament of commercial designs current since the 1870s but in this case executed in red brick with stucco trim. The main building of 1888-9 is a large and original, prominently sited and competently ornamented 19th century factory building which possesses early use of all iron fire-proofed framing and was designed by the distinguished architectural firm, Thomas Watts and Sons. It is of State importance as an indicative and surprisingly original example of the fast disappearing large industrial buildings of the late 19th century;
- Historically, the complex includes the earliest known surviving and most substantial buildings linked with this most well known of stationery firms that had a national presence and is one of the most significant industrial complexes in Victoria, representing a specialised area of manufacture that differs from the more typical heavy industry.

'CARNIVAL AT NORTH MELBOURNE

On Saturday afternoon and evening a carnival was held on the -North Melbourne Recreation reserve in aid of the North and West Melbourne Red Cross Society and the North Melbourne branch of the Lady Mayoress Patriotic League. At half past 2 o'clock a procession of stockmen, firemen children in fancy costume and various comical characters left the town hall, and proceeded to the reserve headed by the North Melbourne Vice Regal Band. On the ground cycling races were run and a burlesque football match between the Association and League and Army and Navy played. In addition to the president of the committee (Councillor Davidson), Mrs J K Troup (president of the ladies committee) Miss Clack (Hon treasurer) and Miss E Mulcahy and Mr V E McKenna (joint hon secretaries), took an active share in the carnival. In the evening there was another procession from the city to the reserve, where an excellent programme was gone through consisting of moving pictures, bind selection of songs exhibitions by the Darktown Fire Brigade, and other forms of amusement.'

'ANZAC'S PLACE IN BRITAIN.

SPEECH BY LORD SOMERS.

North Melbourne War Memorial.

The unveiling of the granite column erected by the North and West Melbourne Red Cross Society at the corner of Victoria and Errol streets, North Melbourne as a memorial to those who fell in the war, took place yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large gathering. The ceremony was performed by His Excellency the Governor (Lord Somers), and Lady Somers subsequently laid the first wreath at the base of the memorial. This was followed by others placed in memory of dead relations and friends until the flowers rose to a height of several feet. Lord Somers said: - " Perhaps it is appropriate that I, as the representative of the Mother Country - and who in a greater degree than the mothers, can feel pride and gratitude when her sons rally round her in the hour of her need - should be given the privilege of taking an active part in this service of commemoration. The name Anzac is carved deeply in that old mother's heart, and generations to come will know what that name means. They will know that Anzac means loyalty, unselfish service, and sacrifice. For those who mourn a personal loss we pray that their memories of past happiness, their just pride in the achievements of their dead, and the possession of our deepest sympathy, may lighten the burden of their grief, and bring them peace.

In the world of to-day, with its speed and swift changes, memory is likely to be short lived. But this memorial has a message which will go out to us day after day and year after year. It stands as a perpetual reminder of the men and women of our flesh and blood who, in a cause which they knew to be right, gave up their lives. Its message to us is to carry on their tradition, and to revive and keep alight that spirit of good fellowship, unselfish service, and self sacrifice which they exemplified.

Only thus can those ideals for which they died be brought to fruition."

Mr. Clement Davidson, president of the society, said that 1,240 men enlisted from North and West Melbourne, and of these 520 died on service. It was hoped that the sacred spot now dedicated would long be remembered as a memorial to their heroism. The memorial had cost £300 and this sum had been given by citizens. Mr. H. J. Martin, acting State president of the Returned Soldiers' League said that the men of the Australian Imperial Forces could only repair the loss of their fallen comrades to the community by living stronger lives in its service. The memorial should serve to call all Australians to maintain a citizenship which would be a pattern to all nations. Boy scouts and girl guides of various North and West Melbourne troops formed a guard of honour for Lord Somers. The children of all district Sunday schools were present. Prayer was offered by the Rev. R. C. M. Long, and the Rev. David Lewis read the Scriptures. The last Post was sounded by Mr. J. Page, and the Rev. D. Daley pronounced the Benediction. Singing was led by a united church choir, conducted by Mr. H. H. Alder, and music was supplied by the Returned Soldiers' Memorial Band, conducted by Mr. R. G. Abbott, and by the Footscray City Highland Pipe Band, conducted by Pipe-major J. Lawrie and Drum-major H. Hill.

The monument was erected by H. B. Corbin and Sons Pty. Ltd.'

Former Phoenix Clothing Factory - Group Classification 347-349 King Street, MELBOURNE, MELBOURNE CITY
 Statement of Significance
 Last updated on - August 23, 2005

Individual Statement of Significance : 347-349 King Street is an unusual three-storey stone and brick shop, residence and store complex, distinguished by its first floor loggia (the earliest known example) and its external integrity. The section facing King Street dates from 1854-1859, while the ground floor of the rear store section is probably of the 1860's. The building is part of a coherent mid 19th century commercial streetscape.

Additions to the rear of the building relate to its use by the Phoenix Clothing Company, an early 1870's Melbourne clothing factory. This building appears to be a very rare survivor in the Central Business District, and amongst the earliest known surviving factories in the state. In fact, the whole of the building has important historical associations with the notable Fenwick Brothers, who owned it from the 1850's and founded the Phoenix clothing Company in 1870.

Orlando Fenwick (1822-1897), who once lived on the premises, was a prominent Victorian clothing manufacturer and importer, and took a leading role in Melbourne harbour development schemes. He was also a Melbourne City Councillor over a long period, and Lord

Mayor. More recently the structure has associations with J.H. Langdon and company, wool merchants, who also owned the adjoining buildings at 351-355 King Street.

The site constitutes an important representation of Melbourne's nineteenth century industrial development, from the importation of clothing in the gold rush era to the establishment of the flourishing clothing manufacturing industry which occurred in the wake of post gold rush metropolitan growth and the introduction of tariff legislation in the 1970s.

The Phoenix factory was one of Melbourne's larger and more highly mechanised nineteenth century clothing manufacturers, and has been credited with introducing advanced overseas technology to Victoria. It appears to be a very rare survivor of early Central Activities District Manufacturers and amongst the earliest known surviving factories in the state. It is the only early Melbourne clothing factory which is known to survive. It is a survivor of an industry which has been especially important in Victoria's history, particularly in relation to the issues of protection and industrial legislation. This industry is also of key importance to new fields of historical research, such as the development of assembly line production processes and women in the workforce.

The essential design and structure of the complex provides a substantially intact representation of contemporary factory design and working conditions, and of aspects of nineteenth century building technology. Parts of its design may be directly related to the requirements of the Factory Acts for ventilation, sanitation and lighting.

Also part of a Group Classification with B1701 351- 5 King Street

Group Statement of Significance : 351-355 and 347-349 King Street, Robert Kidd's buildings (351-5) and the Fenwick Brothers complex (347-9) were both built in the period between the gold rush of the early 1850s and the development of the colony's secondary industries in the 1870s. Parts of each complex relate to both important historical phases, in particular the former Phoenix Clothing Factory at the rear of 347-9 King Street and Isaac Davidson's clothing factory at the rear of 355 King Street. These early factories share a party wall, were once united via twin archways, and are still linked by a pitched loading lane from King Street.

In King Street, the early date of the facades (1857 and 1856-9) distinguishes them among commercial streetscapes elsewhere in Melbourne and compares directly with the notable basalt stores of King Street South.

VHR H0801

Last updated on - December 15, 1999

What is significant?

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is a three storey stone and brick shop, residence and store complex. It contains fabric from several different periods of building and alteration. The earliest section dates from the early gold rush era, while three storey additions were made in 1859 and the ground floor of the rear store/factory section probably dates from the 1860s. An 1869 photograph of the building showed a loggia, but this has been filled with windows.

How is it significant?

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical and architectural significance to the State of Victoria.

Why is it significant?

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance as one of the oldest examples of a commercial building and factory in the State. Its King Street facade contains rare gold rush-era elements, from a time when King Street was an unmade although busy road with bullock drays and other carriers' wagons, loaded with goods, continually passing on their way to Bendigo and the other diggings. The factory proper dates from the 1860s and provides important evidence of the character of early industrial organisation in Melbourne. The Phoenix Clothing Company was established in the wake of post gold rush metropolitan growth and benefited from the introduction of tariff legislation in the 1870s. The Phoenix factory was one of the few mechanised 19th century clothing manufacturers, and has been credited with introducing advanced overseas technology to Victoria. Although there have been many structural changes to the building over the years, the essential design and structure of the complex provide a substantially intact representation of contemporary factory design and working conditions, and of aspects of 19th century building technology.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance as evidence of the character of Melbourne's early development. The combination of residence, shop and factory is a reminder of a time when the city was much more compact, and residence and workplace were often located in the same building or very nearby. The building also demonstrates the long-term continuity of industrial usage in this part of Melbourne.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance for its associations with the notable Fenwick Brothers, and Albion T. Walkley. The Fenwick Brothers were London clothing manufacturers and importers, who owned the site from the 1850s and established the Phoenix Clothing Company there in the 1870s. Orlando Fenwick (1822-1897) who once lived on the premises, was a prominent Victorian clothing manufacturer and importer. He also took a leading role in Melbourne harbour development schemes and was a Melbourne City councillor over a long period and Mayor of the city. Walkley, the factory manager from 1875 and owner of the manufacturing section of the business from 1878, was responsible for introducing into the Victorian clothing trade the innovative mechanical knife system of cutting which revolutionised the industry in the pre-WW1 period.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of architectural significance because of its first floor loggia, perhaps the earliest example in Melbourne (although it has subsequently been built in, it is restorable) and as part of a coherent mid-19th century commercial streetscape which gives some idea of the architectural character of this part of Melbourne in the post-gold

Notable features include stone masonry.

All three terrace houses are two storeys, constructed in brick with coursed bluestone facades. Access was directly off the street in the manner of English town houses. Each house has quoins, a motif which is repeated around the front door and windows. Whilst all three buildings are constructed on the street alignment the parapet and string course is not continuous, reflecting the differing stages of construction.

Statement of Significance

A group of three two-storey bluestone houses (one originally incorporating a shop) built between c1863 - 69. Their simple architectural form is indicative of their age.

They are significant remnants of the early residential settlement on the north-western fringe of the city.

What is significant?

The Langdon Building at 351-355 King Street was built as three terrace houses by the owner-builder Robert Kidd. He built them in stages as follows: No.351 in 1863, No.353 in 1865 and No.355 in 1869. Kidd lived at No.353. The middle house of the three was a shop from 1870 but has now had its shopfront removed. All three terrace houses are two storeys, constructed in brick with coursed bluestone facades. Access was directly off the street in the manner of English town houses. Each house has quoins, a motif which is repeated around the front door and windows. Whilst all three buildings are constructed on the street alignment the parapet and string course is not continuous, reflecting the differing stages of construction. The Langdon Building was used as an early clothing factory and was later combined with the adjoining the Fenwick Brothers Phoenix Clothing building. These early factories share a party wall and were once linked via twin archways.

How is it significant?

The Langdon Building is of architectural and historical significance to the State of Victoria.

Why is it significant?

The Langdon Building is architecturally significant as an excellent example of the use of Victoria's ubiquitous bluestone as a construction material. Spanning three periods of construction, the Langdon Building has a consistent use of facing bluestone. There is a contrast between the fine ashlar finishes of the architraves, quoins and string courses and the rougher finish of the wall areas.

The Langdon Building is historically significant as a rare complex of three residential buildings amalgamated for industrial use. It is a rare example of a surviving clothing factory in the central business district. From 1870 the Langdon Building was a clothing factory and had a close relationship to the notable Phoenix Clothing Factory buildings to the south. It demonstrates the adaptation and adjustment of owners to changing economic conditions in Melbourne.

In the Divorce Court to-day Mary Ethel Brew, of the Bay View Hotel, King-street, West Melbourne, sought a divorce from John Charles Brew, commercial traveller. The petitioner was married at Melbourne on December 3, 1901, and there was one child.

The petitioner stated that after the marriage they left for Perth, where the respondent said that 'he had a position at £500 a year. As a matter of fact he had no position, and he did no work there. She furnished a house and they lived on £400 which her mother had given her on her marriage.

In August, 1902, before the birth of the child, the respondent told her that she, would either have to go into a hospital or into the street. She returned to Melbourne, and, aided by her mother with money, took an hotel, where the respondent joined her again.

He made himself very unpleasant, accusing her of immorality. One of his habits was to sleep with a knife under his pillow. He drank and knocked her about. In March, 1905, he packed his bag and went away, and she had only seen him once since then. A decree nisi was granted.'

(1983)

History - Michael Moran, who owned other hotels around the area built the Bay View Hotel on this site in 1864-5 and was also the publican until at least 1870. He continued to own the hotel for over ten years, when it was taken over by the West End Brewery, later in association with Carlton and United Breweries (1896).¹ Other licensees included Kierin Caulfield; 2 Miss Milton and Mary Rush. 3 (Refer 32-4 Capel Street)

Description - Builders. J. Holmes and later, James Healy, built this stuccoed brick and stone, parapeted hotel of two- storeys. 4 A simply moulded cornice, architraves and six-pane sashes denote the building's age. The remnants of a three room cottage (1867) survive on the north side. 5

Integrity - Generally original except new, unruled stucco and other minor aspects such as replacement of doorway and door.

Streetscape - Isolated corner element with some relationship to two two-storey row houses on the north and east sides (Walsh and King Street).

Significance - Architecturally, a typical corner sited.

Simply designed hotel building which exhibits a form used from early in Melbourne's history until the 1880s: of regional importance.

Historically, as an hotel, the social centre of the locality and associated with hotelier, Moran, who was also connected with the Rob Roy and Mansion House hotels in West Melbourne: of regional interest.

Recommendations - Repaint in typical or original colours;

consider restoration of doorway and door.

Yuncken Freeman

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

'Yuncken Freeman Architects Pty Ltd. began as a practice when Otto (Rob) Yuncken (the son of master builder, Otto Yuncken) and John Freeman left their positions as senior associates in A & K Henderson. They were accompanied in their departure by John's brother, Tom Freeman, and William Balcombe Griffiths, also employees at A & K Henderson. In 1945 Roy Simpson was recruited into Yuncken Freeman on the recommendation of a fellow student during his time at the School of Design in Melbourne University. The new firm, Yuncken, Freeman Brothers, Griffiths & Simpson Architects, was located in the same Henderson Building, near the Mitre Tavern and its area was a social hub for a community of architectural firms, fellow students and friends from the Architectural Students' Society including Leslie M Perrott senior; Marcus Barlow; Bates, Smart & McCutcheon and others.

By the 1940s the operations of the firm was disrupted by World War II, which unavoidably grew to be a much serious threat than before. Rob Yuncken and Roy Simpson eventually enlisted into service, providing planning and design services to the U.S. Army Engineers Corps, for territory reclaimed by General MacArthur's campaign. When the dust settled in 1946, Yuncken and Simpson returned to Melbourne. Only to find the members of the original group scattered. They did however reunite to continue their practice.

In 1947, Yuncken Freeman Brothers Griffiths & Simpson Architects was appointed by the Victorian Government to initiate an emergency housing project in London. Simpson, who had experience during his days in the U.S. Army, headed the project where he provided designs for pre-built housing that could be assembled by unskilled labour. Fifty years later, these homes are still occupied. He was awarded the Gold Medal in 1997 by the Royal Australia Institute of Architects (RAIA) for his significant contribution to architecture.

From 1963 the firm was known as Yuncken Freeman Architects Pty Ltd. after the Royal Australian Institute of Architects approved the principle of architects practising as proprietary limited companies. Balcombe Griffiths and Roy Simpson (being the youngest of the original group) were the sole survivors of the five original partners, along with descendant John Yuncken, subsequently added Barry Patten and John Gates (1953), Robert Peck and Jamie Learmonth and others. Key staff included Angel Dimitroff (Myer Music Bowl) and Llew Morgan (Eagle Star and BHP House). Patten introduced the firm's characteristic international Modern style, based on the work of Mies Van Der Rohe, as seen in their 411 King Street offices, Eagle Star & BHP House. Robert Peck, as YFA managing director in the late 1970s and a City of Melbourne councillor, chaired the City's new committee on old buildings until he lost his seat in 1979. The advisory committee included representatives from the National Trust, Town & Country Planning Board, Ministries for Planning and Local Government, the Historic Buildings Preservation Council and the Building Owners and Managers Association (BOMA).

As with many architectural firms, YFA was forced to sack 15 architects and the 8 directors took a 20% pay cut in the mid 1970s, only 5 years after completion of the State Government Offices. Director, Barry Patten told 'The Age' newspaper "The situation is very bad- there just isn't any work available". Five years ago about 80% of their work had been in the private sector and the rest in Government but the situation had reversed by 1975, with government budget cuts and the private sector hardly moving. 'We have employed people for years and we are now finding it very difficult to keep them occupied. It is very worrying.'
`.....Flagstaff House 411 - 415 King Street, Melbourne, Australia 1968

Yuncken Freeman office

Typical of the Yuncken Freeman works led by Patten, Flagstaff house is very characteristic of the Chicago Modern. The building uses a simple ribbed steel cage structural system and sits low in Melbourne's skyline.

Designed to serve as offices, this building became home to the Yuncken Freeman firm in 1970. The interior was as elegant as the exterior with a vast open plan on two levels, fringed by glazed offices. All of the furniture was modular and black, slab sided to present working boxes as drafting tables. Gone were the jutting arms of drawing office machines, replaced by paralines or parallel straight edges, with adjustable acrylic T-squares.'

`The Argus' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1848 - 1957) Tuesday 9 October 1877

`Ah Cheung, a tea merchant in Little Bourke street, was summoned at the District Court yesterday, by Mr. George Donald, inspector of weights and measures, for using imperfect Beales in the business It was proved that the scales were three quarters of an ounce in favour of the defendant, and also that six of his weights were too light He WBB fined 20s , with 2s costs. A similar charge was preferred against Samuel J Hennessy, a butcher in Nicholson street Fitzroy, and evidence was given that his scales were improperly balanced, and that five of his weights were about two and a half ounces too light in the aggregate In this case a fine of 30s, with 20s costs, was imposed The scales and weights of both defendants were forfeited.'

`The Argus' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1848 - 1957) 5 July 1878
`A case was heard ... at the District Police Court yesterday, in which Hugh McMonagle, a green-grocer, was summoned by Mr. George Donald, inspector of markets, for hawking without a licence. It was proved that the accused was selling potatoes in Berkeley-street, Carlton, on the 18th of last month. As it was his first offence, the inspector had expressed his willingness to withdraw the charge before entering court, if the defendant paid the usual dues and the expenses incurred in instituting the proceedings, but he had failed to do so. The defendant now assured the Bench that he would agree to and fulfil the complainant's conditions...'

`The Argus' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1848 - 1957) Friday 14 October 1881

`In the County Court yesterday, Francis Brown, who described himself as being out of business, sued George Donald, inspector of weights and measures, for damages. The defendant, in his capacity as inspector, seized a weighing-machine belonging to the plaintiff, on the ground that it was a false balance. The inspector subsequently brought an action in petty sessions against Brown for having false weights in his possession, and obtained a verdict, which was subsequently reversed by the Supreme Court. The plaintiff now claimed damages from Donald for trespass and also for malicious prosecution, A technical point was raised, that according to the provisions of the Weights and Measures Statute, the action should have been brought within three months, and upon that ground the plaintiff was non suited. Mr Walsh appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr.Hood for the defendant.'

Victorian Heritage Register H2133*Victorian Heritage Register citation (H2133)What is significant?*

The underground men's public toilet in West Melbourne, built in 1938, is one of eleven built in Melbourne in the early twentieth century in response to public demand for public toilet facilities in Melbourne that were both sanitary and discreet. Street-level toilets were regarded as indecently open to public view.

Underground toilets removed toilets from public view, and had already been built in Scotland, England and Sydney. The establishment in December 1890 of the Melbourne & Metropolitan Board of Works, responsible for building and maintaining an underground sewerage system, had provided the necessary infrastructure. The first underground public toilet in Melbourne, which included facilities for women as well as men, was opened in Russell Street in 1902. Several more were built before World War I: a men's in Queen Street in 1905; a men's and women's in Elizabeth Street opposite the Queen Victoria Market in 1907; a men's in Swanston Street in 1909 (now demolished); a women's in Elizabeth Street outside the GPO in 1910 (a men's was added in c1927); and a women's outside the Town Hall in Collins Street in 1914 (a men's was added c1960). A men's was built in Flinders Street in 1918. Four more were built in the inter-war period: this one in West Melbourne, one in Carlton, and two in East Melbourne (one of which has been demolished).

The underground public toilet is in a small park at the corner of King and Hawke Streets, West Melbourne, near the south end of the Errol Street shopping strip. Above ground elements are very similar to the earlier underground toilets built in Melbourne between 1902 and 1918, and consist of two stairway entrances enclosed by iron railings, iron gates and cast iron combined ventilation pipes and sign posts. An additional feature at ground level, found only on this toilet and the one in Carlton built in 1939, is the Moderne style polychrome brick ventilation shaft with decorative wrought iron panels. The toilet has now been decommissioned and the entrances are covered by concrete slabs. The condition of the interior is unknown.

Why is it significant?

The underground public toilet in West Melbourne is of historical and architectural significance to the state of Victoria.

How is it significant?

The underground public toilet in West Melbourne is of historical significance as one of the group of public toilets built in Melbourne in the early twentieth century which reflects an important era of sanitary, technological and social reform, as well as contemporary attitudes to public decency. It is a reflection of a major engineering achievement, the development of Melbourne's underground water, drainage and sewerage system, and the advances in sanitation and public health made possible, following the establishment of the Melbourne & Metropolitan Board of Works in 1890.

The underground public toilet in West Melbourne is of architectural significance as an example of an unusual building type, and of early twentieth century civic design. The iron railings, gates and columns and the brick ventilation shaft are of interest as examples of street furniture of the period.

'CITY COUNCIL ELECTIONS. Mr. J. W. PEIRCE AT WEST MELBOURNE

Mr. J. W. Peirce, the retiring councillor for Bourke Ward, met about 30 ratepayers at the James Watt Hotel, Spencer-street, last night. Dr. Lloyd occupied the chair. Mr. Peirce said that when he sought election three years ago he made many promises to the ratepayers, but he had never broken faith with them. It was in consequence of his action in the City Council that 75 extra lamps were erected in the ward, and the Flagstaff-gardens were improved, so that citizens could take their wives through them at night time. The 350 trees recently planted in the streets of the ward were the outcome of his energies. It had been proposed to erect a refrigerating room in the reserve of the Victoria Market, but he thought the land would be turned to better account if shops were erected on it, and he had this done. The shops already opened were returning 12 per cent, on the money expended on them. He acted on four committees of the council, and read a return of attendances to show that he was most regular. The work of the council was really done in committee, and not by those gentlemen who aired their eloquence at council meetings. It had always been his object to keep down the rating on citizens, and the council would soon be in such a position that it would not know what to do with its money. The Western Market would soon be acquired by it, and the returns which would be received from it would pay the expenditure of one ward.... While for 28 years their members of Parliament had been promising to obtain for them a recreation reserve, he had done so within six months of his election, and that was for no other reason than that he exercised some influence in both Parliament and the council.'

'The Age' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1854 - 1954) Monday 2 July 1906

ARBOR DAY, North and West Melbourne

'...The tree planting portion of the day's programme was then taken in hand, trees being planted by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Director of Education, Messrs. Aikman and Edgar, members of the board of advice and others. At the King-street school, West Melbourne, Arbor day was also duly observed. The morning was occupied in lessons bearing on trees and their cultivation, and in the afternoon the board of advice attended, and a squad of cadets paraded with the flag, and the bugle band played. Trees were planted in the ground, and a large number of visitors were present.'

Seabrook and Fildes

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

'Norman Hugh Seabrook was born in the Melbourne suburb of Northcote in 1906. He received his education at Brighton College, Wesley, and Hassets Commercial College Prahran, and gained his Architectural articles working for A.R. Barnes in 1924-26.[1] He continued his studies at the University of Melbourne Architecture Atelier from 1927–31, before working for 18 months in Britain and travelling in Europe, possibly gaining first-hand experiences of the Dutch Functionalists and working on projects influenced by them in Britain.[2] On his return to Melbourne in 1933 he won the competition to design the new MacRobertson Girls' High school, which he completed with the assistance of Alan Fildes, who he entered into partnership with in 1936. The partnership ended in 1956 with the death of Fildes. Seabrook taught briefly at the University of Melbourne in the 1950s, and continued practicing as Seabrook Hunt and Dale until his retirement in 1976. He died two years later in 1978...

Seabrook and Fildes was a Melbourne architecture practice that played a significant role in the introduction of modernist architecture to Victoria in the 1930s. They are most well known for the Dutch modernist inspired MacRobertson Girls High School, designed by Norman Seabrook in 1933.....

The partnership between Norman Hugh Seabrook (12 January 1906-9 September 1978) and Alan Fildes (1909–1956) was formally established in 1936, and was amongst the few in Victoria to show an influence of European modernism. By applying and adapting European modernist design principles to a broad range of civic, industrial, commercial and residential buildings, Seabrook and Fildes played a primary role in the dissemination of modernist architecture in Victoria. The practice operated as Seabrook, Fildes and Hunt from 1955 up until Fildes death in 1956, carrying on as Seabrook, Hunt and Dale until Norman Seabrook's retirement in 1976.
...MacRobertson Girls' High school was constructed in 1933-34 to Norman Seabrook's competition-winning design. It remains one of the first and best examples of Modernist architecture in Melbourne and was said by Robin Boyd to have signalled 'the 1934 revolution' of Victorian architecture.[5- Robin Boyd, Victorian Modern:

One Hundred and Eleven Years of Modern Architecture in Victoria, Victorian Architectural Students Society, Melbourne, 1947,p.28] Influenced by Dutch Architect Willem Marinus Dudok's Hilversum City Hall, the school was arranged in a functionalist manner, breaking the program down into series of intersecting cream-brick volumes according to De Stijl principles, interrupted by large strips of red-framed windows and blue-glazed window sills.[6] The building was a radical departure from school buildings of the time, even including a rooftop classroom, and was the first Willem Marinus Dudok inspired building designed by Seabrook, the principles of which would be repeated and adapted through much of the practices later work'

'Statement of Significance

What is significant?

The MacRobertson Girls' High School at Albert Park, South
Melbourne, was built in 1934 with funds donated by Sir MacPherson Robertson as a gift to the state of Victoria, celebrating the Centenary of its foundation. The building provided a permanent home for the former Melbourne Girls' High School, which was renamed in honour of its benefactor. The bold modern design, which had taken first prize in a strongly contested architectural competition for the new school, was prepared by the young architect Norman H Seabrook, at that time recently returned from working in Britain. Seabrook has been recognised in subsequent decades as a significant and talented architect and a major figure in the evolution of twentieth century architecture in Victoria.

How is it significant?

The MacRobertson Girls' High School is of architectural, historic and social significance to the State of Victoria.

Why is it significant?

The modern design of the school, clearly informed by Seabrook's first hand knowledge and experience of the work of leading contemporary Dutch architect Willem Dudok and his followers on the Continent and in Britain, was revolutionary for Victoria at this time and was influential in the introduction of the modern modes and the growth in their acceptance in the 1930s in this state.
The planning of the school was refined in terms of its conceptual clarity, its traffic efficiency, and the skilful zoning of the various activities within the school, and established a new standard to be emulated in the many schools produced in the following decades by the Public Works Department under chief architect Percy Everett.

The exterior retains much of its significant character and fabric despite the impact of some changes and additions.
A number of the interiors of the school were also notable, and despite some superficial changes these retain the bulk of their original fabric substantially intact.

The MacRobertson Girls' High School has important historical associations with noted industrialist and philanthropist Sir Michael MacPherson Robertson, who donated over £100,000 to the state of Victoria as a gesture of goodwill and thanks in the year of its centenary. £40,000 of this money was set aside for the new school. The school is also of significance for its associations with its direct antecedents: the Model School in Spring Street; the Melbourne Continuation School, Victoria's first state secondary school, later renamed Melbourne High School; and Melbourne Girls' High School, the first single sex girls' state secondary school in Victoria. Each of these schools has played a notable part in the evolution of the state's education system, as has the MacRobertson Girls' High School.

The MacRobertson Girls' high School has social significance as one of Victoria's premier education institutions, as a major school for girls, and alongside the Melbourne High School and the University High School, as one of three high schools recognised as outstanding and special within the state secondary education system. It has additional significance for its links with past students and staff, many of whom have enjoyed distinguished careers and public note.

Design by Shalless:

What is significant?

Ross House, formerly called Charleville, 292 COTHAM ROAD KEW, Boroondara City was built as a two-storey mansion in 1889 for Charles Donaldson. It was designed in the Italianate style by the architect H Shalless (sic) and built by G Ginham. Dr Tom King, surgeon purchased Charleville from Donaldson in 1939 and renamed it Ross House.

How is it significant?

Ross House is of historic and architectural significance to the State of Victoria

Why is it significant?

Ross House is of historical importance to the State of Victoria for its association with Melbourne's urban development. The house is historically important in illustrating late nineteenth century social values and the importance of establishing status through the construction of an imposing residence. Ross House, a substantially intact mansion of the nineteenth century 'boom period, is architecturally important in exhibiting good design and the aesthetic characteristics in a domestic application of the Italianate style.'

History

Hugh Houston moved from further south in King Street to No 583 King Street after he had built these houses in 1883.

They were built in the name of his wife, Mary. He continued to own the houses for over ten years, residing there until after 1885 when he probably moved to Flemington. Tenants in the other houses included David Dawson, John Reed and James Bowman.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration and verandah roof and structure. Prolific local architect, Henry Shalless designed, and local builders, Butler and Gunn, constructed these two stuccoed brick, two storey houses. They are parapeted, with distinctive full arched entablatures, shells, and flanking piers and urns above the scrolled name panel. Two level cast iron verandahs shelter arched and architraved windows, with pilasters, whilst the entrance has a spoked fanlight connected to panelled side lights. Iron picket fences are used at the frontage.

Integrity - Urns gone from No. 583 parapet.

Streetscape - Valuable corner element of a richly decorated residential streetscape from Roden to Hawke Streets.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, one of the relatively small number of architect designs within this common form type, the houses are near original, ornamented in a competent manner and are a valuable part of a significant streetscape of high regional importance. Historically, two of a row of speculative houses, aimed at an aspiring market, and associated with an old West Melbourne resident, Houston, who developed a number of other properties in the area ; of local importance.

brickwork. Two storey, parapeted coloured brick row house pair, with cast iron verandah of two levels and an iron front fence. Segment arched entablatures are flanked by cast iron finials set on piers. Subtle differences denote the custom built nature of the houses, such as the arched entrance and fanlight of No. 587 compared with the more austere flat-arched entrance of No. 585. Integrity - Generally original except for parapet finials, on extreme ends of each house parapet. Streetscape - Contributing part of a valuable residential streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, a near original example of a common type and part of a significant streetscape, regional importance. Historically, custom built row houses in contrast to the more normal speculative dwellings; of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Part brickwork painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method) Parapet orbs gone (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative.

Recommendations - Restore finials to parapets, repaint in typical or original colours.

History

Frederick Stones who earlier had owned the Three Crowns Hotel in Victoria Street (Refer to 365 Victorian Street) built this house in 1883, owning it for over fifteen years. He did not live there but leased it to Mrs. Sarah Hannah, John Reid and Madame de Schand. (Refer 595-7 King Street)

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration and verandah roof and structure. A two storey, stuccoed brick parapeted row house pair with a two level cast iron verandah, iron fence and rectangular parapet entablature, flanked by finials, with urns at the party walls. Cast iron is panelled and the entrances have spoked fanlights.

Integrity - Generally original. Streetscape - Part of a valuable residential streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, a near complete example of a common type and part of a significant streetscape; of regional significance. Historically, one of several Stones developments in the area and another example of

History

Edith Stones had these two houses built in c1890-5, 1903-4 on a site previously occupied by Frederick Stones (qv) Wooden house. She lived in No. 595 King Street and leased the other house to Mrs. Jane Kerr and Thomas Oliver, who had earlier lived in No. 599 King Street. The Stones family had developed many properties in this area. (Refer Nos. 589-91 King Street).

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration and verandah roof and structure. Unusual porch and notable gates. A two storey, parapeted row house pair with two level cast iron verandahs, iron fences and rectangular entablatures, flanked by scrolls. An unusual part is the stuccoed porch which links the verandah with the boundary, this is clumsily integrated into the standard format with the bracketed corbel which terminates the verandah side wall being matched, in a differing role on the opposing side of the portal. Integrity - Generally original, parapet urns/orbs may be missing. Streetscape - Contributive part of a valuable residential streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an unusual late and near original, variation on a common type which has been built with the 19th century Italian Renaissance vocabulary, in a period when Medieval derived stylism had been active for over a decade also a contribution to a significance streetscape which epitomises this earlier period; of regional importance. Historically, one of the later Stones family developments and one of many in that street and the area; of local importance.

Edith Stones had these two houses built in c1890-5,

1903-4 on a site previously occupied by Frederick

Stones (qv) Wooden house. She lived in No. 595 King Street and leased the other house to Mrs. Jane Kerr and

Thomas Oliver, who had earlier lived in No. 599 King Street. The Stones family had developed many properties in this area. (Refer Nos. 589-91 King Street).

Description

A two storey, parapeted row house pair with two level cast iron verandahs, iron fences and rectangular entablatures, flanked by scrolls. An unusual part is the stuccoed porch which links the verandah with the boundary, this is clumsily integrated into the standard format with the bracketed corbel which terminates the verandah side wall being matched, in a differing role on the opposing side of the portal.

Integrity - Generally original , parapet urns/orbs may be missing.

Streetscape - Contributive part of a valuable residential streetscape.

Significance

Architecturally, an unusual late and near original, variation on a common type which has been built with the 19th century Italian Renaissance vocabulary, in a period when Medieval derived stylism had been active for over a decade also a contribution to a significance streetscape which epitomises this earlier period ; of regional importance. Historically, one of the later Stones family developments and one of many in that street and the area ; of local importance.

Recommendations - Repaint in typical or original colours.

 `INTERESTING WILL CASE.
 JAMES OLIVER'S ESTATE.

In the First Civil Court yesterday, before Mr Justice Hodges, the hearing of the case arising out of the will of the late James Oliver, of West Melbourne, was continued. Under the will property to the value of over £ 12,000 is bequeathed to testator's son Thomas Oliver, and his wife, the personally, £5,270 absolutely, and the realty, £7,020, in trust for their children.

Against this will Isabella Hutton, daughter of testator, and J. S. Oliver, a grandson, have entered caveats, and the case is being taken on the first one. The grounds of objection are (a) that the will was not executed by testator: (b) want of testamentary capacity, (1) confined to the period shortly before and at the time of execution, (2) existing before such period and due to imbecility, of which the symptoms first manifested themselves on or about November 1, 1898; (c) undue influence exercised by the applicants, Thomas Oliver and Jessie Stirling Christie Oliver; (d) the documents did not express the testator's will.

Mr. Duffy, K. C., and Mr. Stark (instructed by Mr. C. J. M'Farlane) appeared for the executors and executrix, Thomas Oliver, W. B. P. Crocket, and Jessie Stirling Christie Oliver, in support of the will; and Mr. Purves, K.C., and Mr. Agg (instructed by Messrs. Fink, Best, and Hall) appeared for the caveator.

Thomas Oliver, one of the beneficiaries, continuing his evidence, said his father had spoken about getting his will made, but refused to go to a lawyer. He said lawyers "are a' scoundrels." (Laughter.)

After his father had spoken more than once the witness got a will form, and at his father's request made a will out in favour of himself and his wife, but that was never executed, and later his father produced a will of December 1 last, drawn up by Crocket. As his wife's name was not put in in full he pointed this out, and his father on December 5 handed him the contested will, asking him to keep it. His wife handed it back, saying that testator might wish to alter it. His father was mentally clear and physically strong for his age at the time he made the will, and continued to be so afterwards. He related the different dealings with properties given to other members of the family by testator before his death. Cross-examined by Mr. Purves, witness said he had been under medical treatment recently.

For alcoholic poisoning?-- I presume that is it. Witness (continuing); -- His father knew of his drinking habits, but had never complained of them. He had never been told he had delirium tremens. He left the Union Steamship Company in 1888, when the inspector had ordered him to the head office in Dunedin to submit to inquiry.

When he resigned he had about £300 in the Metropolitan Bank. He had got debentures from his brother-in-law, Mr. Hutton, to repay debenture he had borrowed from an estate he was trustee for several years ago. When he went out of the firm of Dean, Clark, and Co. in 1895, he got the money he paid into the firm back in cash and bills. He had never heard that his father promised his brothers on their deathbeds to look after their families.

Under the will of 1892, the estate was divided into fourths, one to go to each child or his or her issue, subject to a deduction of any advances made in testator's lifetime.

Mr. Purves, -- There were no breaches between your father and his children or their descendants between that will and your alleged will? -- Certainly there were with the boys in connection with properties at Gembrook and

SURVEYED PLACES

Narre Warren.

Those were after the date of the last will?-- I cannot say that for certain. I do not know why my father left me no personal interest in the estate in the will of March, 1898, and did not make me an executor.

Did he not tell you he would cut you off with a shilling, and you said, "Give me the shilling, and I'll go and get two drinks"?- No. (Laughter.)

Witness (continuing), -- He did not dictate the instructions his father took to Crocket. He would not swear for his wife at all. He had not taken steps to keep members of his family from seeing his father alone.

James Scott Ridley, retired bank manager gave evidence that the testator was a shrewd, capable man at the time the will was made and afterwards.

Jessie S. C. Oliver, wife of Thomas Oliver, and one of the beneficiaries under the will, said she had handed the document back to testator, saying he might want to alter it, but he replied that he did not change like the wind. Mrs. Hutton was the only one who objected when the will was read, and she said it was most unjust. Visits had been exchanged between testator and other members of the family freely, but not so frequently of late years. Testator had complained of the conduct of certain of his grandchildren.

To Mr. Purves,-- She did not prevent any members of the family from seeing testator alone. She did not hear testator say after making the last will that he was going to leave his property equally. Some time before the accident her husband was drunk, and Mr. Oastler came in and held him. She did not complain of his treatment, nor did the testator say that he had knocked his old father down.

Joseph Whitaker, medical practitioner, said that he knew testator, and had not noticed anything to show he was suffering from mental decay.

Reverend James Gibson gave evidence that the testator was a mentally and physically strong man, "as strong as most Scotchmen, and that is saying a good deal." (Laughter.)

Mr. Purves,--Are you a Scotchman?--No; I'm an Australian, but -I was a Scotchman.

I presume he was Scotch enough, and sane enough, to put 3d. in the plate rather than 6d.?--That is not always a Scotch characteristic.

Andrew Shiels, medical practitioner, said he had known testator for years, and looked upon him as a shrewd and thrifty man.

To Mr. Purves,-- When he was asked his opinion he had said that testator was perfectly capable of making a will, but certainly it was not what he would have expected of him, and he could not understand him putting his son in the position of trustee. He had written that he could not understand him making such a will as that in question.

William Low, medical practitioner, also gave evidence of testator's strength of mind and body.

To Mr. Purves,--He had treated Thomas Oliver several times in the last two and a half years for alcoholism. You prepared him for this trial?--Yes

He wanted patching up?-- I suppose so. Did you patch him up for the funeral of his father?--Witness hesitated.

Come along, you'll leave all the lawyers in town after you if you go on. Did you?--

Yes.

Several other witnesses of the testator's capability of managing his own affairs having been examined, the hearing of the case was adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.'

History

As James Oliver was a carpenter by trade he built these homes, although some years apart, No. 599 King Street in 1874-75 and No. 601 King Street in 1879. He continued to own them for over twenty years, residing in No 599 until he passed it on in 1884 to Thomas Oliver presumably his son. Tenants in No. 601 included George Stooke, the butcher, James Deas and Andrew Shiels.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration and verandah roof and structure. Unusual pattern balustrade. A two storey, wide frontage, stuccoed brick and parapeted row house pair with a two level cast iron verandah, iron fence and arched parapet entablature with flanking scrolls and associated urns. The iron balustrade is of an unusual pattern (possibly imported) whilst the more typical friezes are set in panels. A large top and side lit entrance doorway is unusual for the early construction date. Integrity - Generally original.

Streetscape - Contributing part of a valuable residential streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early generally original example of a common form with interesting details also part of a significant streetscape, of regional significance.

Historically, another example of a builder- owner-developer who chose to live in his product and thus has built a relatively well appointed pair of houses.

Research notes state: wood house replaced by 10 room house in 1879, adjoining existing 10 room house, when Geo Stooke occupied the new house.

(1983)*History

As James Oliver was a carpenter by trade he built these homes, although some years apart, No. 599 King Street in 1874-75 and No. 601 King Street in 1879. He continued to own them for over twenty years, residing in No 599 until he passed it on in 1884 to Thomas Oliver presumably his son. Tenants in No. 601 included George Stooke, the butcher, James Deas and Andrew Shiels.

Description

A two storey, wide frontage, stuccoed brick and parapeted row house pair with a two level cast iron verandah, iron fence and arched parapet entablature with flanking scrolls and associated urns. The iron balustrade is of an unusual pattern (possibly imported) whilst the more typical friezes are set in panels. A large top and side lit entrance doorway is unusual for the early construction date.

Integrity - Generally original.

Streetscape - Contributing part of a valuable residential streetscape.

Significance

Architecturally, an early generally original example of a common form with interesting details also part of a significant streetscape, of regional significance. Historically, another example of a builder- owner-developer who chose to live in his product and thus has built a relatively well appointed pair of houses.

Recommendations - Repaint in original or typical colours.

infant Melbourne township, the Benevolent Asylum was opened on 27 November 1851 to 'relieve the aged, infirm, disabled or destitute of all creeds and nations' in the town's early days. The asylum was built by the Victoria Benevolent Society, a group of philanthropic citizens determined to house the colony's 'deserving poor' in more dignified fashion than the dreaded workhouses of the new English Poor Law. In accordance with a pattern already established for the development of charities in Victoria, the government granted the land and provided funds to match private subscriptions to build the asylum.

The overwhelming influx of immigrants to Victoria in the early 1850s placed enormous demands on the asylum, which initially served as an immigrants' home, blind asylum, orphanage, lying-in hospital and lunatic asylum. However, as other institutions were established, it focused increasingly on housing the aged poor. The impressive three-storey Tudor-style building on 'Institution Hill', straddling North and West Melbourne, was extended four times in its first 20 years. In 1873 the society commenced negotiations with the Victorian Government about relocating from the overcrowded site, but with no result. The society responded by erecting more wards on the 10-acre (4 ha) site, reaching a capacity of 685 beds. The depression of the 1890s severely strained the resources of the asylum, 878 applicants being turned away in 1892. The asylum finally relocated to a 150-acre (60 ha) site at Cheltenham in 1911 and the old buildings fronting Curzon Street in North Melbourne were demolished. By then almost 15 000 people had been assisted by the society.

With the establishment of other asylums throughout rural Victoria, the Benevolent Asylum was renamed the Melbourne Benevolent Asylum in 1868. Now known as the Kingston Centre, it remains at Cheltenham but provides a vastly different aged care service from its 1850s forerunner.

The house at 33-35 Miller Street was constructed c.1866.

It is first listed in the Sands & McDougall directory in 1867, when it was occupied by Matthew Waterstrom. The house at that time was unnumbered. Waterstrom continued to occupy the house until 1890, by which time it was numbered 33.

Description/Notable Features

The house at 33-35 Miller Street is a single-storey, single-fronted Victorian cottage. The walls are of rendered masonry and the hipped corrugated galvanised steel roof is concealed behind a parapet. The verandah spans between wing walls which have decorative console brackets. Alterations include replacement of the verandah roof and front window, and the application of inappropriate ornament to the parapet. A garage has been added to the west of the house. None of the fence elements appears to be original.

Statement of Significance

The house at 33-35 Miller Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. Historically, the house is demonstrative of the early phase of development of the area in the mid-nineteenth century. Aesthetically, although the building has been altered, it relates visually to its neighbours and makes a positive contribution to the streetscape.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. Although the house has been altered, its individual value is reinforced by its setting. The house is a remnant of the mid-Victorian period.

'Benevolent Asylum (Kingston Centre) demolition 1911 Set in rolling green countryside 2 km north-west of the infant Melbourne township, the Benevolent Asylum was opened on 27 November 1851 to 'relieve the aged, infirm, disabled or destitute of all creeds and nations' in the town's early days. The asylum was built by the Victoria Benevolent Society, a group of philanthropic citizens determined to house the colony's 'deserving poor' in more dignified fashion than the dreaded workhouses of the new English Poor Law. In accordance with a pattern already established for the development of charities in Victoria, the government granted the land and provided funds to match private subscriptions to build the asylum.

The overwhelming influx of immigrants to Victoria in the early 1850s placed enormous demands on the asylum, which initially served as an immigrants' home, blind asylum, orphanage, lying-in hospital and lunatic asylum. However, as other institutions were established, it focused increasingly on housing the aged poor. The impressive three-storey Tudor-style building on 'Institution Hill', straddling North and West Melbourne, was extended four times in its first 20 years. In 1873 the society commenced negotiations with the Victorian Government about relocating from the overcrowded site, but with no result. The society responded by erecting more wards on the 10-acre (4 ha) site, reaching a capacity of 685 beds.

The depression of the 1890s severely strained the resources of the asylum, 878 applicants being turned away in 1892. The asylum finally relocated to a 150-acre (60 ha) site at Cheltenham in 1911 and the old buildings fronting Curzon Street in North Melbourne were demolished. By then almost 15 000 people had been assisted by the society.

With the establishment of other asylums throughout rural Victoria, the Benevolent Asylum was renamed the Melbourne Benevolent Asylum in 1868. Now known as the Kingston Centre, it remains at Cheltenham but provides a vastly different aged care service from its 1850s forerunner.

Valkyrie

`The Ride of the Valkyrs (1909) by John Charles Dollman
In Norse mythology, a valkyrie (from Old Norse valkyrja "chooser of the slain") is one of a host of female figures who choose those who may die in battle and those who may live. Selecting among half of those who die in battle (the other half go to the goddess Freyja's afterlife field Fólkvangr), the valkyries bring their chosen to the afterlife hall of the slain, Valhalla, ruled over by the god Odin. There, the deceased warriors become einherjar (Old Norse "single (or once) fighters"[1]). When the einherjar are not preparing for the events of Ragnarök, the valkyries bear them mead. Valkyries also appear as lovers of heroes and other mortals, where they are sometimes described as the daughters of royalty, sometimes accompanied by ravens and sometimes connected to swans or horses.

Valkyries are attested in the Poetic Edda, a book of poems compiled in the 13th century from earlier traditional sources; the Prose Edda and Heimskringla (by Snorri Sturluson), and Njáls saga, a Saga of Icelanders, all written in the 13th century. They appear throughout the poetry of skalds, in a 14th-century charm, and in various runic inscriptions.'

`Benevolent Asylum (Kingston Centre) demolition 1911
 Set in rolling green countryside 2 km north-west of the infant Melbourne township, the Benevolent Asylum was opened on 27 November 1851 to 'relieve the aged, infirm, disabled or destitute of all creeds and nations' in the town's early days. The asylum was built by the Victoria Benevolent Society, a group of philanthropic citizens determined to house the colony's 'deserving poor' in more dignified fashion than the dreaded workhouses of the new English Poor Law. In accordance with a pattern already established for the development of charities in Victoria, the government granted the land and provided funds to match private subscriptions to build the asylum. The overwhelming influx of immigrants to Victoria in the early 1850s placed enormous demands on the asylum, which initially served as an immigrants' home, blind asylum, orphanage, lying-in hospital and lunatic asylum. However, as other institutions were established, it focused increasingly on housing the aged poor. The impressive three-storey Tudor-style building on 'Institution Hill', straddling North and West Melbourne, was extended four times in its first 20 years. In 1873 the society commenced negotiations with the Victorian Government about relocating from the overcrowded site, but with no result. The society responded by erecting more wards on the 10-acre (4 ha) site, reaching a capacity of 685 beds. The depression of the 1890s severely strained the resources of the asylum, 878 applicants being turned away in 1892. The asylum finally relocated to a 150-acre (60 ha) site at Cheltenham in 1911 and the old buildings fronting Curzon Street in North Melbourne were demolished. By then almost 15 000 people had been assisted by the society. With the establishment of other asylums throughout rural Victoria, the Benevolent Asylum was renamed the Melbourne Benevolent Asylum in 1868. Now known as the Kingston Centre, it remains at Cheltenham but provides a vastly different aged care service from its 1850s forerunner.

SURVEYED PLACES

SURVEYED PLACES

'North Melbourne Courier and West Melbourne Advertiser' (Vic. : 1895 - 1913) Friday 7 May 1897 `DEATH OF MR. H- H. BINDON, J.P.

On Tuesday, shortly after 10 a.m., an old identity of North and West Melbourne passed away,' in the person of Mr Henry Herbert Bindon, J.P., who expired at his residence, Miller-street, West Melbourne, at tile age of 63 years.

The deceased gentleman has been ailing about 10 weeks, and was recently operated on, but afterwards it was not thought he would last very long, and his medical adviser, Dr. Archibald Black, shared in the general opinion. The whole system was internally impaired, but cancer of the stomach was the most malignant feature of his disorder. Mr. Bindon was born at Portsmouth, England, and was tile son of Major Bindon, of the British army, and a nephew of the late Judge Bindon, of the Victorian County Court Bench. He was a fellow student of Admiral Cyprian Bridge, now in command of the Australian Squadron. He was educated for the army, and the following extract from the Newfoundland Times (America) dated March 7th, 1855, refers to him as under :-"26th Foot-Henry Herbert Bindon, gentleman... son of Major Bindon, resident here." How ever, a military career was not to Mr. Bindon's tastes, and he did not follow it, but soon relinquished it for service in the mercantile marine. As a sailor he made many voyages to and from all parts of the world, and he gained wide knowledge, which stood him in good service in after years; and the possession of which it was easy to discern when conversing with him. Arriving in this colony at the end of the fifties, he entered the service of the old Melbourne and Hobson's Bay Railway Company, and afterwards-that-of-the Victorian Railways, and speedily rose to the rank of first-class driver. Harry Bindon was a household word in the station buildings, in the yard, in the running sheds, and on the footplates; and he, at the time of his resignation, was regarded by his fellow enginemen as quite an institution, and their guide, philosopher, and friend." Subsequent to his resignation, Mr. Bindon engaged in business for himself,-and continued-to evince those faculties of shrewdness and common sense which his long and varied career had endowed him with.. About six years ago he was gazetted a justice of the peace, and has sat regularly (up to his last illness) on the North Melbourne bench, and also frequently at the City and District courts. .He filled the position of assessor in connection with the City Council for about nine years, and as deputy returning officer was a- prominent -figure--at local parliamentary elections. He was also a member of the West Melbourne Board of Advice for about 5 years. As magistrate he was very painstaking, and on holidays, while others were enjoying themselves, would make the rounds of the North and West Melbourne, City, Bourke-street west, and other lockups, discharging the drunkards and remanding other offenders. The above gentleman formerly resided in Port Melbourne but has been a citizen of West Melbourne for about fifteen years. He leaves a widow and a family of two sons and four daughters to mourn his loss, whom, we have no doubt, are the objects of widespread sympathy and condolence. In disposition Mr. Bindon was straight forward and candid. He possessed generous impulses, and did many little acts of unknown and unchronicled kindness. Genuine distress had his ready sympathy, and he was a man of action rather than sentiment. One thing he was utterly unable to do, and that was to cherish resentment, and even regarding those with whom he had differences he retained no feeling of enmity.

The funeral took place yesterday at ... and was largely attended. The remains were interred in the Melbourne General Cemetery. A portion of the burial service-I was read by Canon-Carrlisle in St. Mary's, Queensberry-street, and the latter part by the same gentleman, at the grave. The town hall flag was flying half-mast out of respect to the deceased during Wednesday and yesterday. A number of beautiful wreaths and floral tributes were forwarded by friends as tokens of regard and sympathy. Among the donors were Messes. W.B. Simpson, W. B. Crocket, Pupils of the Parkville Ladies' College, Mrs. Oliphant, Mises Russell, Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. and Miss Clack, Mrs. Sutcliffe, Mr. Keys, and others. The funeral arrangements were conducted by Alfred Allison, of 221 Victoria-street, West Melbourne. '

`Old West Melbourne...

`TO THE EDITOR OF THE AGE.

Sir, — I "have been much interested In the letters about old identities of North Melbourne, and would like to hear of some of the old West Melbourne folk. In my day the Benevolent Asylum faced Curzon-street and .was surrounded by spacious grounds, bounded by Curzon, Miller." Abbotsford and Elm streets. Victoria-street ended abruptly at the front gate and then continued on the other side at Abbotsford-street. I can still hear in memory the old asylum bell ringing in the evening, and see the old folk walking round the tree-sheltered grounds. I remember seeing the superintendent, with his bag and white top hat, letting himself in at-a private gate in Abbotsford-street. We lived on a block almost every house on which was occupied by an old Scotch family. There were the Ramages, Simpsons, Robertsons, Flndlays, Bagleys, Swanstons, Alders, Watsons, Crystals, McBeans and others. The grocery store at the -comer of Lothian and Miller streets was kept by the O'Brien family, the butcher's shop near them by Swanby, and afterwards by Read. Other old families within half a mile included the Landers, Ingrams, Binyons, Dotts, Crockets, Youngs, Smiths, Overs, Modnetts, Sells, Whiles, Irvines. The streets were lit by gas lamps. I remember the electric light being installed, also sewerage. Does anyone remember Cranky Fred the "bottle-oh," who used to go down on his knees and pray for the bad boys who stood and laughed. They would say "Pray, Fred," and down he would go. In those days West Melbourne was a quiet, select spot. Everyone seemed to know everyone else.—

Yours, &c,, ANCIENT. Rupanyup, 11th September'

Description/Notable Features

Simply elevated, this stone house represents the Colonial Georgian style continued here from British practice, the nature of the stone lending local content. It is parapeted, symmetrical and faced with basalt masonry with dressed quoins plinth and sills. The side-walls are coursed rubble. Statement of Significance

SURVEYED PLACES

A simply detailed stone house which is both early for its locality and representative of a part of the locality's early history i.e.. Stone quarrying along the Moonee Ponds and Maribyrnong River. Given its construction date of 1861, it is part of a small group of stone parapeted detached houses built during this decade in the state, the parapeted form being more demanding to construct and more common in commercial stone buildings.

Recommended Alterations

The house is considered of regional or metropolitan significance i.e.. heritage level B. Fence replaced; door replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design/sympathetic alternative) Stone painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method)

Other Comments

External Integrity - The fence (presumed timber picket) and the door has been replaced; new tiles added to sill (?); new concrete paving at front and new roofing. Other sundry service lines and out buildings have also been added.

Streetscape - Prominently sited on an elevated corner overlooking the bay and railway yards but in a mixed streetscape of industrial and residential uses.

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983)

(completed after 1983)

History

Robert Finlay commissioned builder, William Little of Barkly Street to erect a 'cottage' at Miller Street in 1861.

He occupied what was valued as a stone house with four rooms on land 30 x 100 feet. The description and occupancy varied little in the next forty years. During that period Finlay's occupation is unclear. A Robert Finlay was a silversmith on the South Bank of the Yarra River in the 1880s and, later, a shipwright, but this Robert Finlay appeared to live in South Melbourne. The vantage point of the house, overlooking the bay, may be related. In electoral rolls of c1900, Finlay is described as a 'gentleman' or 'independent means'. He lived there with Elspeth (his wife?) and Bessie (his daughter ?) who was a seamstress.

Ann C. O'Brien (Mrs Anne O'Brien lived off 40 Lt. Lonsdale Street in c1900) owned the house from the early 1900s, until the Victorian Iron Rolling Co. Pty.'s tenure of the early 1920s. By then the house was five rooms and the land 33 x171 feet and, by c1940, it was 6 rooms but 33 feet x111, later owner-occupiers were Herbert Jarnes & Edward Allan Ng Tye Din, fruiterers.

Description

Simply elevated, this stone house represents the Colonial Georgian style continued here from British practice, the nature of the stone lending local content. It is parapeted, symmetrical and faced with basalt masonry with dressed quoins plinth and sills. The side-walls are coursed rubble.

External Integrity

The fence (presumed timber picket) and the door has been replaced; new tiles added to sill (?); new concrete paving at front and new roofing. Other sundry service lines and out buildings have also been added.

Streetscape

Prominently sited on an elevated corner overlooking the bay and railway yards but in a mixed streetscape of industrial and residential uses.

Significance

A simply detailed stone house which is both early for its locality and representative of a part of the locality's early history i.e.. Stone quarrying along the Moonee Ponds and Maribyrnong River. Given its construction date of 1861, it is part of a small group of stone parapeted detached houses built during this decade in the state, the parapeted form being more demanding to construct and more common in commercial stone buildings.

‘Gin found a ready market when it was first introduced into England from Holland in the 1690s. It was far cheaper than wine or brandy and easily distilled making it a common brew for many people struggling to survive in the squalor of urban living in the eighteenth century. [1] It was later, in the nineteenth century, that Gilbey’s gin was first produced and not until the 1930s that the company responsible for its production came to Moorabbin.

Two brothers, Walter and Alfred Gilbey, and a friend, Henry Gold, first started the Gilbey company. Returning from the Crimean War in 1857 they established a small cellar in London where they sold port, sherry and brandy. With advertisements in the local papers their enterprise thrived to the extent they were able to open a branch in Dublin. It was in 1872 that they expanded further by opening a gin distillery, and fifteen years later, their first Scotch whisky distillery. [2]

Fred Collins, manager of the advertising department of Gilbey’s, migrated to Australia in the early 1880s because of poor health, but he kept contact with his former employers. Perhaps because of this contact and Collins’ assessment of a potential market, the Gilbey brothers decided to use him to develop the Australian and New Zealand trade. By 1927 Gilbey’s imported produce was facing increased competition from locally produced gin, so the company adopted the strategy of shipping their product at a higher strength in drums to be rebottled in Australia, effecting a considerable saving in duty and enabling the price to the consumer to be brought down to meet local competition. A site for the bottling establishment was purchased in West Melbourne but in the 1930s it was decided to construct a distillery and bottling plant in Moorabbin...’

‘DISTILLERY OPENED.

W. and A. Gilbey Ltd.

The new distillery and bottling plant of the Australian branch of W. And A. Gilbey Ltd , at the corner of Rosslyn and Milton Street West Melbourne, was officially opened yesterday. All the gin which the company sells in Australia will now be distilled in the new premises. Representatives of industry, members of Parliament, and city councillors attended a luncheon given by the company. The opening ceremony was performed by Miss Norma Collins, daughter of the company’s principal Australian representative (Mr. Edmund Collins), in the absence of the assistant Minister for Trade and Customs (Mr Forde), was unable to attend. Mr. Forde congratulated the company by telegram Welcoming the visitors, Mr. Collins said that the company had shown its confidence in Australia by investing its capital here Moreover, it was a very large holder of Commonwealth bonds (Hear, hear.) He hoped that the Commonwealth Government would always insist that bottling be done in bond to ensure the purity of liquor Mr. J R Davidson, sales manager for Tooth and Co Ltd., Sydney. Congratulated the company. The Federal president of the United Licensed Victuallers of Australia (Mr J A. Safe); Mr. A. V. Board, director of the Distillers Co. Ltd.. Of Edinburgh; and the secretary of the Liquor Trades Defence Union of Australia (Mr. J. J Liston) also spoke.’

a terrace, dropped into a row of other houses, or continuing a suburban street pattern. Here a convergence of later ideas was brought to bear: mixed urban use as prescribed by Jane Jacobs in 1963¹⁷ seemed more reachable if you integrated new housing visually within older suburbs. And concerns about social stigma of conspicuously different housing projects could be addressed by embedding new houses in established streets. The revision of a-contextual modernism, and its excessive focus on industrial and production imagery, could be addressed by a return to contextual linkage through older and distinctively local textures, colour, material and forms. The Carlton and North Fitzroy housing of Station, Kay, and Canning Streets, the incursions there by Edmond and Corrigan, Greg Burgess, Peter Crone and Norman Day, accompanied by the act of buying older houses (establishing a new social role and meaning in that process).

By 1983-4 this genre had expanded to larger groupings of 26, as with Leo development Jong's Public Works development in North Melbourne of up to over 100 or more units; also Cox and Carmichael's Highbury development... (image) Capel Street Housing, West Melbourne, Peter Elliott (1988)¹

History - These shops and residences were all built c1865, possibly by Thomas Pearson a contractor, who retained 61 and 63 Peel Street and sold the other two to Mrs. Chadwick, possibly the wife of Thomas Chadwick, a publican of Flemington. Pearson lived in one of his houses until he sold them in 1871, later owners being Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. White who owned them for over twenty years. Mrs. Chadwick's houses were sold in 1878, later owners being A. &M. McSweeney. Some of the tenants were of quite long-standing e.g. John Geary and Miss Mary Geary, a music teacher; probably his sister. (1870-1885); Bridget Gaffney (1881-1897). 3 (McSweeney -refer 333-5 Queensberry Street). Of note is a permit application for one two-storey house in Peel Street, by Mrs. Chadwick in 1864; the builder was Charles Fewster. However, whether built by Fewster or Pearson, all houses have similar characteristics. 4

Description - A row of parapeted two-storey houses with formerly two level cast-iron and timber verandahs which are now partly shop fronts. 61-3 has a gabled parapet entablature, with scrolls, which bears the name 'Peel Terrace A.D. 1868' (rate books give an addition of two rooms per house in 1869, which indicates general improvements in 1868 5), 57 has simple corniced parapets. Common brick and stucco corniced chimneys are shared by the row, as is the stucco side-wall ornament: however, 61-3 is face brick and 57-9 stucco faced.

Iron patterns also differ as do the verandah posts (round section foliated capitals on 57-9, square section capitals and posts on 61-3).

Integrity - Shop fronts have replaced all the ground levels and associated windows, doors decoration and fences, sometime early this century; chimney cornice is part gone on 61 and the whole chimney gone on 57; cast-iron friezes (if they existed) are gone from 61-3 and the balustrading obscured (or removed) on 59-61; the face-brick of 61-3 has been painted; parapet orbs/balls are missing generally, see 63.

Streetscape - Part of a varied formerly residential streetscape of low integrity, relating to 65 (built for John Brown in 1865) and by scale, form and siting, to 55.

Significance

Architecturally, early examples of a common type but much altered, being changed in use, and part of an isolated group of mixed use structures: of local importance.

Historically, indicative of former generally residential nature of street, also an example (part), of owner-builder speculation: of local interest.

Recommendations

Consider restoration to residential use including rezoning to Special Resident 2 or similar; consider restoration of existing period elements by removal of upper level signs, restoration of cast-iron and parapet balls and repainting in typical or original colours.

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983)

History - These shops and residences were all built c1865, possibly by Thomas Pearson a contractor, who retained 61 and 63 Peel Street and sold the other two to Mrs. Chadwick, possibly the wife of Thomas Chadwick, a publican of Flemington. Pearson lived in one of his houses until he sold them in 1871, later owners being Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. White who owned them for over twenty years. Mrs. Chadwick's houses were sold in 1878, later owners being A. & M. McSweeney. Some of the tenants were of quite long-standing e.g. John Geary and Miss Mary Geary, a music teacher; probably his sister. (1870-1885); Bridget Gaffney (1881-1897). 3 (McSweeney -refer 333-5 Queensberry Street). Of note is a permit application for one two-storey house in Peel Street, by Mrs. Chadwick in 1864; the builder was Charles Fewster. However, whether built by Fewster or Pearson, all houses have similar characteristics. 4

Description - A row of parapeted two-storey houses with formerly two level cast-iron and timber verandahs which are now partly shop fronts. 61-3 has a gabled parapet entablature, with scrolls, which bears the name 'Peel Terrace A.D. 1868' (rate books give an addition of two rooms per house in 1869, which indicates general improvements in 1868 5, 57 has simple corniced parapets. Common brick and stucco corniced chimneys are shared by the row, as is the stucco side-wall ornament: however, 61-3 is face brick and 57-9 stucco faced.

Iron patterns also differ as do the verandah posts (round section foliated capitals on 57-9, square section capitals and posts on 61-3).

Integrity - Shop fronts have replaced all the ground levels and associated windows, doors decoration and fences, sometime early this century; chimney cornice is part gone on 61 and the whole chimney gone on 57; cast-iron friezes (if they existed) are gone from 61-3 and the balustrading obscured (or removed) on 59-61; the face-brick of 61-3 has been painted; parapet orbs/balls are missing generally, see 63.

Streetscape - Part of a varied formerly residential streetscape of low integrity, relating to 65 (built for John Brown in 1865) and by scale, form and siting, to 55.

Significance

Architecturally, early examples of a common type but much altered, being changed in use, and part of an isolated group of mixed use structures: of local importance.

Historically, indicative of former generally residential nature of street, also an example (part), of owner-builder speculation: of local interest.

Recommendations

Consider restoration to residential use including re-zoning to Special Resident 2 or similar; consider restoration of existing period elements by removal of upper level signs, restoration of cast-iron and parapet balls and repainting in typical or original colours.

Cites: email from Peter Crick of Tract Consultants Pty Ltd to City of Melbourne 6 Nov 2013 re City North C198 re this house, as its architect and designer, of Perrott Lyon Mathieson:

'Originally called the NEST house (abbreviation for New Expanding Shelter Technology)

Designed to accommodate the expanding or extended family within one building 3 levels on a small inner city footprint at the time.

There was also construction innovation with the engineered three level timber frame clad with a new material at the time Hebel light weight concrete block. The U shaped plan with party wall configuration was designed for repetition, forming quadrangle structures creating higher density low rise development.'

Cites extract from the AUSNEST booklet which states that 'Principal David Tribe and architect Stephen Birrell of Leading Edge Design in conjunction with Perrott Lyon Mathieson designed the home...' also that public/private joint venture proponents were City of Melbourne, Housing Industry Association, and Jennings Housing. SURVEYED PLACES

What is significant?

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is a three storey stone and brick shop, residence and store complex. It contains fabric from several different periods of building and alteration. The earliest section dates from the early gold rush era, while three storey additions were made in 1859 and the ground floor of the rear store/factory section probably dates from the 1860s. An 1869 photograph of the building showed a loggia, but this has been filled with windows.

How is it significant?

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical and architectural significance to the State of Victoria.

Why is it significant?

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance as one of the oldest examples of a commercial building and factory in the State. Its King Street facade contains rare gold rush-era elements, from a time when King Street was an unmade although busy road with bullock drays and other carriers' wagons, loaded with goods, continually passing on their way to Bendigo and the other diggings. The factory proper dates from the 1860s and provides important evidence of the character of early industrial organisation in Melbourne. The Phoenix Clothing Company was established in the wake of post gold rush metropolitan growth and benefited from the introduction of tariff legislation in the 1870s. The Phoenix factory was one of the few mechanised 19th century clothing manufacturers, and has been credited with introducing advanced overseas technology to Victoria. Although there have been many structural changes to the building over the years, the essential design and structure of the complex provide a substantially intact representation of contemporary factory design and working conditions, and of aspects of 19th century building technology.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance as evidence of the character of Melbourne's early development. The combination of residence, shop and factory is a reminder of a time when the city was much more compact, and residence and workplace were often located in the same building or very nearby. The building also demonstrates the long-term continuity of industrial usage in this part of Melbourne.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance for its associations with the notable Fenwick Brothers, and Albion T. Walkley. The Fenwick Brothers were London clothing manufacturers and importers, who owned the site from the 1850s and established the Phoenix Clothing Company there in the 1870s. Orlando Fenwick (1822-1897) who once lived on the premises, was a prominent Victorian clothing manufacturer and importer. He also took a leading role in Melbourne harbour development schemes and was a Melbourne City councillor over a long period and Mayor of the city. Walkley, the factory manager from 1875 and owner of the manufacturing section of the business from 1878, was responsible for introducing into the Victorian clothing trade the innovative mechanical knife system of cutting which revolutionised the industry in the pre-WW1 period.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of architectural significance because of its first floor loggia, perhaps the earliest example in Melbourne (although it has subsequently been built in, it is restorable) and as part of a coherent mid-19th century commercial streetscape which gives some idea of the architectural character of this part of Melbourne in the post-gold rush period. - See more at:

representation of contemporary factory design and working conditions, and of aspects of 19th century building technology.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance as evidence of the character of Melbourne's early development. The combination of residence, shop and factory is a reminder of a time when the city was much more compact, and residence and workplace were often located in the same building or very nearby. The building also demonstrates the long-term continuity of industrial usage in this part of Melbourne.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of historical significance for its associations with the notable Fenwick Brothers, and Albion T. Walkley. The Fenwick Brothers were London clothing manufacturers and importers, who owned the site from the 1850s and established the Phoenix Clothing Company there in the 1870s. Orlando Fenwick (1822-1897) who once lived on the premises, was a prominent Victorian clothing manufacturer and importer. He also took a leading role in Melbourne harbour development schemes and was a Melbourne City councillor over a long period and Mayor of the city. Walkley, the factory manager from 1875 and owner of the manufacturing section of the business from 1878, was responsible for introducing into the Victorian clothing trade the innovative mechanical knife system of cutting which revolutionised the industry in the pre-WW1 period.

The Former Phoenix Clothing Company building is of architectural significance because of its first floor loggia, perhaps the earliest example in Melbourne (although it has subsequently been built in, it is restorable) and as part of a coherent mid-19th century commercial streetscape which gives some idea of the architectural character of this part of Melbourne in the post-gold rush period. - See more at:

First Owner

Hennessy Bros. commenced trading from this site in c.1927, although it is possible that the group of shops was constructed much earlier. In 1875, rate books list Richard English owning two brick houses, with three rooms each, and a brick store of eight rooms. In 1881, these buildings are first described as two brick shops, each with three rooms, and a brick house with two rooms and a store, presumably at the rear. Hennessy Bros. ran a bakery from site until the 1950s, with other business in t

Description/Notable Features

The Hennessy Bros. building is a single-storey inter-War shop constructed of rendered brick. The rendered parapet with a central pediment is the principal element of the building, containing the words 'HENNESSY BROS BAKERS' in large, raised rendered lettering. The shopfront beneath the canopy has been altered.

Statement of Significance

The Hennessy Bros. building at 287-291 Victoria Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The building is demonstrative of inter-War commercial development in the area. Except for the shopfronts the building is relatively intact; the elegant parapet signage is of particular note.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. The building is a good and relatively intact example of its style and type.

Designed in 1873 by architects, Terry and Oakden and built in 1875-6 for the recently formed Victorian Education Department, the West Melbourne State School is of State significance as an externally near original prize winner from the state-wide 1873 competition held to establish prototypes for the future schools built for the Department. Although this school design was known to be used only once, and resulted from a decision to award the judges (as well as the contestants) prizes, the publicity which accompanied the competition must have been influential, either directly or indirectly, in shaping the massive amount of school construction carried out by the Department until new stylistic directions followed in the early 1900s.

The school is also of local importance as a long-term public building in West Melbourne and the extensive documentation of its function through building plans, building files and student rolls allow further historic interpretation of the site and enhance its historical significance.

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983): V1: 255 Eades Place

History - During 1875, the present school building was erected at a cost of 6,749 pounds, with Percy Walker, who had been head master of St. Mary's Anglican School in Howard Street, in charge. By 1876, there were 2,313 children on the roll, although the average attendance was around 955, with a staff of twenty-six. By the end of the century, the attendance had decreased to 750. Repair work had to be carried out in 1910, after a period of decline since the day in 1838, when it was... 'ranked with the cleanest in the city.'¹ This school was one of 13 schools of 3 differing categories offering prizes in a 1873 competition amongst private architects arranged by the new education ministry. (SS 1402, Errol Street was another). Architects, Terry and Oakden won this commission, although in retrospect, the design did not become a pattern for future schools as others did.²

Description - A face brick and stucco school of two-levels arranged in a slated gabled roof E-plan, with a central entrance wing and bellcote over. Buttresses and both Gothic and Tudor-arched openings created an almost ecclesiastical flavour. Quatrefoil piercing and window hood moulds are further Medieval (English) elements, as is the oculus under the bellcote, although of more Italian origin. Other similar schools included S.S. 1396 at Brighton 1874; S.S. 1270 at Buninyong (trussed gables), 1873 and SS 1436 at Mount Pleasant.

Integrity - Other detached wings have been added within the grounds; the presumed timber picket fence has been replaced.

Streetscape - Bounding the west side of the Eades Place precinct.

Significance - Architecturally, distinguished by the lack of replication of the design meted out to others from the- 1873 competition but taken as part of the whole, it was influential on all following designs within the Education Department, until the 1920s, by underscoring the Medieval precedent for school design. It is also a contemporary part of the Eades Place precinct: of high regional importance.

Historically, West Melbourne's only State School and the second State School in the study area: of local importance.

Recommendations - Restore picket fence to original or typical details (Refer Burchell, p,97 photograph); repaint trim in original or typical colours.

`QUEENBERRY STREET STATE SCHOOL.

THE NEW TEACHER Mr. DANIEL GILCHRIST.

As so much has been said of late about the respective claims of Mr. Daniel Gilchrist and Mr Peter Madden to the new state school in Hotham it may not be out of place to let our readers see that in appointing Mr. Gilchrist the department have acted with a simple regard to honour and justice.

Mr. Gilchrist has been teaching in the Government schools of this colony for about 28 years, 14 of which he has been in charge of schools in the Hotham district, whereas Mr. Madden did not come into the service of the Government until some six years ago, when he left St. Mary's Roman Catholic school in West Melbourne and joined the State schools. Even if Mr Madden's time in St. Mary's school be added to his time in the State school he is left many years the junior of Mr. Gilchrist in the service. Then, again, Mr. Gilchrist is one of the few teachers who hold their classification with honors. In this again he is distinguished from Mr. Madden. His teaching, too, has produced first-class results. During five consecutive years his school in Hotham averaged nearly 90 per cent, one year being almost 93 per cent. We believe also that he holds a certificate of qualification to give instruction in military drill-a very useful qualification for a man having charge of so large a school as the one now under his care. In addition to this, his academical standing is worth noticing.

He is a member of the universities of Aberdeen and Melbourne. While a student at Aberdeen he was a prizeman in Latin and Greek, and obtained a first place in order of merit in the class of natural history. These qualifications will satisfy the public that he is the right man in the right place. A school so large should have a man of some standing and experience at its head. But in addition to his qualifications for the position it has been pointed out that his appointment was made in pursuance of a promise given by the Education Department about five years ago.....' `The Coburg Leader' (Vic. : 1890 - 1913) Saturday 21 July 1894

`Last week's Government Gazette publishes the annual classified roll of State schools and State school teachers. We note that Mr. Albert Mattingley is the first in the order of seniority of heal teachers, holding certificates 2nd Class Honors, singing and drawing, and having unbroken service from the 1st June, 1857. Mr. Peter Madden, long of our town, but now at Footscray, is 17th, and holds a Certificate of Competency and Science with service since August 21, 1866. Mr. George H. Carter, of West Melbourne, stands at No. 36 with a Certificate of Competency and Drill, and dates from 1st October, 1866. It goes without risk of denial that between the two first-named gentlemen most of the youth of North and West Melbourne since the 50's were handled by them, and mentally shod for the world's rough usage. `Early in 1869 Mr. Peter Madden took charge of St. Mary's Boys' School, and held that post till State aid was withdrawn, about 1876. His assistants were Luke Nugent and Wm. Under the Education Act, Mr. Madden passed into the State department, and was stationed at Footscray for many years, he died last year, on his way from the old country to Melbourne, and was buried in the Atlantic. Noone biography

John Noone

Artist (Printmaker), Artist (Photographer)

A photographer and lithographer. He was the official photographer of the Melbourne Public Library and Museum and exhibited his work within Australia as well as in London. He is most well known for his photographs of early Melbourne.....

professional photographer, lithographer and printer, claimed to have 'the oldest established [photographic] studio' at Melbourne in 1858. On 8 September his sensational advertisement was published in the Melbourne Argus : 'J. Noone, 9 Collins St. W. With a view to giving the utmost publicity to his Photographic Establishment, has made arrangements with the Proprietor of the Township of Talbot for distribution of 700 ALLOTMENTS therein to all persons who shall have portraits taken at his establishment during the ensuing two months. Portrait + allotment of land for 1 guinea'.

Although indicative of the publicity then needed to counter the increasingly competitive photographic studios in Melbourne, this was not perhaps quite as generous as it seemed. The allotment system (still current in parts of Britain) allowed applicants to cultivate a tiny plot of land and, at most, erect a garden shed on it; if not utilised appropriately the plot would be reallocated, and Talbot was hardly the metropolis. Nevertheless, whatever the conditions, Noone's offer proved so popular that all available allotments were claimed within a few weeks.

From 1858 to 1862 Noone continued to advertise as an artist and photographer of Collins Street. Most appositely, he was subsequently employed as a photographer in the Victorian Crown Lands Office (1866-88), showing photolithographed maps and plans he had executed for the department in the 1866 Melbourne Intercolonial Exhibition. He was also the official photographer for the Melbourne Public Library and Museum. At the 1869 Melbourne Public Library Exhibition, held at the Library, he exhibited 42 photographs from its Dresden Gallery collection which he had taken in the course of his employment, together with five photolithographs 'after Albert [sic] Durer'. The Public Library and Gallery trustees exhibited a further 12 of his Durer photolithographs, published as The Albert Durer Album (Melbourne 1869), and sent two of them to the 1873 London International Exhibition. Noone himself showed 12 photographs of Melbourne.

Photolithography was a Melbourne speciality, having been invented there in August 1859 by John Walter Osborne . On 27 September 1870 the Sydney Morning Herald noted that 'beautiful specimens' had been included in the Victorian court at the Sydney Intercolonial Exhibition, 'exhibited by Mr John Noone, who now carries on Osborne's process'. His 42 photolithographs of wood-engravings (the Dresden Gallery collection again) and two unnamed specimens (presumably the Durers) were together awarded a bronze medal. Other photolithographs he produced at the Crown Lands Office included James Meek 's Chronological Tree of the History of Victoria .

Noone is also known for his photographs of early Melbourne (La Trobe Library), including a series of views of the city and its major buildings taken in December 1869 from the tower of Dr Fitzgerald's residence in Lonsdale Street West for presentation to the officers of HM Flying Squadron, 'by order of the Hon. James McKean, Commissioner of Crown Lands & Survey, and President of the Board of Land and Works'. In the photography section of the 1870 Sydney Intercolonial Exhibition he showed seven views of Melbourne which were commended by the jury. Others appeared in later exhibitions in London and Sydney as well as Melbourne.

`Athlunkard Street, Limerick

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Athlunkard Street (Irish: Sráid Áth Longphuirt) is a street on King's Island, in Limerick City, Ireland. The street ends at the Abbey River, at the O'Dwyer Bridge. On its other end, after its intersection with Mary and Nicholas streets across the way from St. Mary's Cathedral, Athlunkard Street continues on to Matthew Bridge under the name Bridge Street.

Via the O'Dwyer Bridge and Athlunkard Avenue in Corbally, Athlunkard Street in Limerick leads toward the Athlunkard Bridge in Corbally, across the River Shannon from the townland of Athlunkard, County Clare, the Irish name of which, Áth Longphuirt, meaning "ford of the longphort," refers to a 9th-century Viking longphort (defended ship encampment) once located at that ford over the Shannon.[1]'

'Table Talk' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1885 - 1939) Friday 4 December 1896 p 7 Article

'MB, Thomas Bowden, of Roden-street, West Melbourne, is being sued in the Supreme Court of Victoria (by Martin Tobin) for "improperly and maliciously attaching the wages of the plaintiff in the Railway Department." Damages are laid at £500'.

'The Argus' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1848 - 1957) Thursday 11 February 1897 p 4 Article

'The legal profession was yesterday robbed of a client in an action before Mr Justice Williams in the Banco Court, in which the plaintiff, Martin Tobin, an employee in the Railway department, conducted his own case, and sought to recover £1,000 damages for slanders alleged to have been uttered by the defendant, Thomas Bowden, plaintiff's landlord, and an ex-railway employee. Plaintiff states that in 1891 the defendant spoke to a man named White the words that plaintiff was a rogue, and swindled him out of his property, and that he (the defendant) would get plaintiff sacked from the Railway department. Plaintiff also alleged that in 1892 defendant uttered to one John M'Guinness the words that the plaintiff was a swindler, and has robbed him of his property. Defendant denied both these allegations. Plaintiff, in cross-examination, said that he had brought a similar action in the County Court in 1892, but was non-suited, with costs. His Honour held that the plaintiff had failed to prove either of the allegations, and gave a verdict for the defendant, with costs. Mr. Woinarski, instructed by Messrs. Mills, Son and Oakley, appeared for the defendant.'

'The Argus' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1848 - 1957) Wednesday 11 May 1904 p 6 Article

'An old-time litigant appeared in the Practice Court yesterday, in the person of Martin Tobin, of A'Beckett-Street. This gentleman's litigious ventures some dozen years ago were so persistent that a direction was made by the Chief Justice prohibiting the issue of any writs at his instance, without the sanction of a judge. Recently Tobin's ancient grievance suffered resurrection by his issue of a writ against Thomas Bowden, of West Melbourne, a former landlord, who is alleged to have been the cause of Tobin's' misfortunes. The claim, in this action was for £2,000 damages for malicious prosecution, in attaching his wages in' the hands of the Railway department...'

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983)

History - Robert Tait had owned a smaller building on this site before this house was built in 1877 as part of a row. He continued to own and reside there until after 1895.

Description - A two-storey, parapeted, stuccoed brick house with a two-level cast-iron verandah, front fence and scrolled arch-shape parapet entablature.

The house is double-fronted, possessing an asymmetrically placed column under the long-span bressumer, presumably one of two originally there. Ornament includes paired brackets at the verandah side walls and the- iron is of an early pattern.

Integrity - Generally original except for parapet urns/orbs.

Streetscape - Isolated building.

Significance - Architecturally, an early and large example of a common type, with some unusual details (compare 175 Hotham Street, East Melbourne for combined columns and iron) of local importance. Historically, owned and occupied for a long period by its developer - now the last one of the row: of local interest.

Recommendations -

Repaint in original or typical colours;

- replace parapet urns/orbs;
- consider zoning provisions to preserve original use and form;
- consider replacement of missing column.

 Description/Notable Features

Two separate, two-storey stuccoed brick houses with two-level cast-iron verandahs, iron pickets and transverse-gable slated roofs. Notable features include the fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, two unusually sited (on either side of a lane) houses, of a distinguishably early, gabled form which are near original and are part of a streetscape: of regional importance. Historically, built and designed by the prolific local builder, John Jones (Refer 74-8 Hawke Street) for owner-occupiers, an unusual circumstance among the proliferation of speculative building: of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Rebuild fence of 152 to match 148; repaint in original or typical colours; consider re-zoning (as part of 148-56) as Special Residential 2 or similar, to preserve their residential use and form. Bricks painted, side (inappropriate - remove by approved method)

Other Comments

Integrity - Iron fence gone from 152.

Streetscape - Commencement of an isolated, but homogenous residential group 148-56 Roden Street.

Builder, John James (qv), constructed both houses; 152 being for fellow builder, Alex Cooper (qv), who must have resold to Hulme.

Description

Two separate, two-storey stuccoed brick houses with two-level cast-iron verandahs, iron pickets and transverse-gable slated roofs. Notable features include the fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure.

Integrity - Iron fence gone from 152.

Streetscape - Commencement of an isolated, but homogenous residential group 148-56 Roden Street.

Significance

Architecturally, two unusually sited (on either side of a lane) houses, of a distinguishably early, gabled form which are near original and are part of a streetscape: of regional importance. Historically, built and designed by the prolific local builder, John Jones (Refer 74-8 Hawke Street) for owner-occupiers, an unusual circumstance among the proliferation of speculative building: of local importance.

Recommendations

Rebuild fence of 152 to match 148; repaint in original or typical colours; consider re-zoning (as part of 148-56) as Special Residential 2 or similar, to preserve their residential use and form.

These two houses were built over a period of two years (1879-80) for Robert Hadden, who lived in 154 Roden Street for fifteen to twenty years. 156 Roden was leased to Thomas Taylor, Stephen Dunkley and Thomas Brearley, a carpenter, who moved there c1890. Architect Henry Shalless and builder, Walter Webster of Carlton carried out the work, having combined also for Hadden, on two row houses in Hawke Street during 1878-9.

Integrity GoodCondition Fair*Original Building Type*History Not Assessed*Description/Notable Features

A pair of richly decorated, stuccoed brick and parapeted row houses, with two-level cast-iron verandahs and iron picket fences, built between large stuccoed corniced piers, each appointed with a pineapple. The entablatures are arched and 'supported' with duplex colonettes, between piers adorned with orbs. Pronounced architraves and colonettes are also used on the ground level. Notable features include the fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure; elaborate/high standard design of cement rendered surface.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, a richly decorated early, and near original, example of a common type which is typical of architect, Shalless', work and reinforced by an adjoining streetscape: of high regional significance. Historically, a partly speculative development by a resident owner, using the prolific local architect, Shalless, and a common builder for other projects in the area: of local importance.

Personal communication from family history research on Hulse.

'Hulse was living in Spencer Street when he married in 1860. Thomas and his brother Allan are very prominent as 'Pioneer Engine drivers' on the Melbourne - Bendigo railway at the very beginning of the lines opening, initially when it was built only as far as Sunbury. He retired as Senior Loco Foreman at the huge 'new' (in 1895) Loco Sheds at North Melbourne, those sheds were unfortunately all demolished in 1963. I have a lot of data about these brothers and all there families. Thomas never had any family, that I am aware off, although married. After retirement in 1895, he was retained as a Railway engineering consultant until 1900 at least, then he must have moved to South Yarra, where he died in 1915 - aged 81. I have a number of stories about him, and have visited the grave of his parents in Cheshire just 12 months ago, I wrote up some material about the Hulse Railway families for the Local History Group in Cheshire where he hailed from. What can you tell me, about the house, or otherwise? History

The building at 135-141 Hawke Street was constructed c.1889. It first appears in the Sands & McDougall directory in 1890, when it was occupied by Drysdale, Briscoe and Co., 'store'. The company later referred to as Briscoe and Co. Ltd, and the premises an iron yard. The company continued to occupy the building into the 1940s. By the 1970s, the building was occupied by Universal Pipelines

Pty Ltd.

Description

The building at 135-141 Hawke Street is a double-storey rendered masonry Victorian industrial building with a corrugated galvanised steel transverse gabled and sawtooth roof which is concealed behind a parapet. The building has two street frontages, to Hawke Street and 160 Roden Street. Both facades are similar, and each is dominated by a large semi-circular arched entrance, and has three wide but shallow piers which stop short of a moulded string course which is the sole decoration. There are six non-original windows over two levels on the Hawke Street elevation.

Significance

The former Drysdale, Briscoe and Co. building at 135-141 Hawke Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. Historically, the building is representative of late-nineteenth century industrial development in West Melbourne. Aesthetically, the building is a reasonably intact industrial building which is characterised by its austere facades to Hawke and Roden Streets, both of which incorporate impressive arched openings.

Grading Review

Upgraded from E to D. Although the building has been altered by the painting of brickwork and the insertion of non-original window openings, its overall form and facade composition remain intact. The building is an important element in both the Hawke and Roden Street streetscapes. Original datasheet: 135-141 Hawke Street, West Melbourne; 160 Roden Street, West Melbourne.

Briscoe had been established in England for over 100 years (as William Briscoe & Son) when they leased this warehouse, having opened in this colony at Elizabeth Street during 1853. By the late 1880s they had branches in New Zealand and New South Wales. Architect, Edward Twentyman, had designed the Queen Street premises; in

BRISCOE AND CO.'S NEW WAREHOUSE.

Within recent years several important additions have been made to the architecture of Melbourne, but there have been few such conspicuous examples of improvement as the new establishment erected for Messrs Briscoe and Co., wholesale ironmongers, in Little Collins-street west. This firm has for years held a foremost position in the trade in Australia, and their retail business centre in Collins-street east, which has just been closed, was one of the finest shops in the city. A change of policy, however, has taken place. The retail connexion has been to a considerable extent relinquished and the firm's operations are to be devoted almost entirely to wholesale trading. To enable them the better to develop this scheme they removed a few weeks ago to the new quarters, which have been built with a thorough regard to their requirements. The freehold is owned by Mr. George Robertson, who has also erected the building, and the value of the entire property is not less than £26,000. Messrs. Briscoe and Co. Arranged that the work should be in their hands, and according to their instructions the plans were prepared by Messrs. Twentyman and Askew, of Bourke-street west...

City of Melbourne Heritage Review 1999 for Hawke & Roden Street buildingsHistory

The building at 135-141 Hawke Street was constructed c.1889. It first appears in the Sands & McDougall directory in 1890, when it was occupied by Drysdale, Briscoe and Co., 'store'. The company later referred to as Briscoe and

SURVEYED PLACES

Co. Ltd, and the premises an iron yard. The company continued to occupy the building into the 1940s. By the 1970s, the building was occupied by Universal Pipelines Pty Ltd.

Description

The building at 135-141 Hawke Street is a double-storey rendered masonry Victorian industrial building with a corrugated galvanised steel transverse gabled and sawtooth roof which is concealed behind a parapet. The building has two street frontages, to Hawke Street and 160 Roden Street. Both facades are similar, and each is dominated by a large semi-circular arched entrance, and has three wide but shallow piers which stop short of a moulded string course which is the sole decoration. There are six non-original windows over two levels on the Hawke Street elevation.

Significance

The former Drysdale, Briscoe and Co. building at 135-141 Hawke Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. Historically, the building is representative of late-nineteenth century industrial development in West Melbourne. Aesthetically, the building is a reasonably intact industrial building which is characterised by its austere facades to Hawke and Roden Streets, both of which incorporate impressive arched openings.

Grading Review

Upgraded from E to D. Although the building has been altered by the painting of brickwork and the insertion of non-original window openings, its overall form and facade composition remain intact. The building is an important element in both the Hawke and Roden Street streetscapes. Original datasheet: 135-141 Hawke Street, West Melbourne; 160 Roden Street, West Melbourne.

`BRISCOE AND CO.'S NEW WAREHOUSE.

Within recent years several important additions have been made to the architecture of Melbourne, but there have been few such conspicuous examples of improvement as the new establishment erected for Messrs Briscoe and Co., wholesale ironmongers, in Little Collins-street west. This firm has for years held a foremost position in the trade in Australia, and their retail business centre in Collins-street east, which has just been closed, was one of the finest shops in the city. A change of policy, however, has taken place. The retail connexion has been to a considerable extent relinquished and the firm's operations are to be devoted almost entirely to wholesale trading. To enable them the better to develop this scheme they removed a few weeks ago to the new quarters, which have been built with a thorough regard to their requirements. The freehold is owned by Mr. George Robertson, who has also erected the building, and the value of the entire property is not less than £26,000. Messrs. Briscoe and Co. arranged that the work should be in their hands, and according to their instructions the plans were prepared by Messrs. Twentyman and Askew, of Bourke-street west...'

`The Argus': 4/11/1937

`BANK BUYS CITY

PROPERTY

The property known as Briscoe's Buildings, at 391-395 Little Collins street, near Queen street, has been purchased by the Bank of New South Wales from Briscoe and Company Limited, hardware merchants. The sale price has not been disclosed.

... adjoins the rear boundary of the bank's chief office in Melbourne at 368 Collins street. The purchase will give the bank a complete block with frontages to both Collins and Little Collins streets and will provide for extension of accommodation for the bank's business and for tenants. The bank has not yet considered plans for a building on the site. The brick building on the site was erected by Briscoe and Company Limited in 1904 and comprises four and a half stories and basement. With McNeil lane on the east side and Briscoe lane on the west the site has excellent natural light. The managing director of Briscoe and Co Ltd (Mr J P McNeil) said yesterday that possession of the property would be given to the bank in April next. Work was beginning immediately on the erection of a modern warehouse building on portion of the company's iron and steel yards at Roden Adderley and Hawke streets West Melbourne. The new building will be 140ft by 200ft and will contain more floor space than the building sold. The removal of the warehouse from the city had been contemplated for some time. Mr McNeil added. The architects for the new building are Messrs Purchas and Teague of Little Collins street.'

Statement of Significance

The former Drysdale, Briscoe and Co. building at 135-141

Hawke Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. Historically, the building is representative of late-nineteenth century industrial development in West Melbourne. Aesthetically, the building is a reasonably intact industrial building which is characterised by its austere facades to Hawke and Roden

Streets, both of which incorporate impressive arched openings.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. Although the building has been altered by the painting of brickwork and the insertion of non-original window openings, its overall form and facade composition remain intact. The building is an important element in both the Hawke and Roden

Street streetscapes. Original datasheet: 135-141 Hawke

Street, West Melbourne; 160 Roden Street, West

Melbourne.

Hawke Street is a double-storey rendered masonry

Victorian industrial building with a corrugated galvanised steel transverse gabled and sawtooth roof which is concealed behind a parapet. The building has two street frontages, to Hawke Street and 160 Roden Street. Both facades are similar, and each is dominated by a large semi-circular arched entrance, and has three wide but shallow piers which stop short of a moulded string course which is the sole decoration. There are six non-original windows over

Description/Notable Features

A parapeted stuccoed brick house with a transverse gabled roof, clad with iron, visible behind. Of a relatively uncommon form generally, but typical of its construction date, this house has a one-level cast-iron decorated verandah and iron picket fence. Quoining decorates the sides of fenestration which is divided about a rainwater head and downpipe which commences at a string-mould, below the dentilated cornice. Notable features include the fence; verandah decoration; verandah roof and structure.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an example of a relatively uncommon form which typifies early house construction; it possesses some unusual details and contributes to a limited streetscape: of regional importance. Historically, another of the owner-builders so common in the area: of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint in typical or original colours; consider zoning provisions to maintain residential use and form. Colours (sympathetic) verandah concreted (inappropriate - reinstate original design/sympathetic alternative) downpipe (inappropriate - reinstate sympathetic alternative)

Other Comments

Integrity - Generally original, although the chimney appears altered. Streetscape - Contributing part of a residential streetscape, 197-203 Roden Street.

`WJ Grassick: An unqualified success

by Reeves, Simon

Abstract: Before the passing of the Architects Registration Act 1922, anybody in Victoria could refer to themselves as an architect. When registration became compulsory in 1923, countless people engaged in various aspects of the construction industry clambered for official recognition as architects. Amongst this hopeful throng was one W J Grassick, a 37-year old Irishman whose application stated boldly that, "for the past ten years, I have designed for architects, engineers and proprietors in Victoria, building construction of factories, warehouses, offices and power houses representing an average of about 250,000 pounds worth of work per annum". While his nomination was supported by Alec Eggleston and Harry Tompkins - two leading architects of the day - Grassick's application was rejected by the board, which noted ruefully that "you do not possess the necessary qualifications". This curt dismissal, however, belied the broad experience that Grassick had built up over the previous decade, and gave no hint of the even grander projects that would follow. ...

MODERN CORSET MAKING.

Now that frocks and coats are being more closely-fitted to the figure the importance of correctly-fitting foundation garments can scarcely be over- estimated Such renowned makes of corsets, brassieres, and other garments, as are purchased under the names of Liberty, Avio, Warner's, Redfern, and Kestos are produced in the Melbourne factory of Messrs R and W H. Symington & Co (Aust) Pty, Ltd , where the most up-to-date of machinery and equipment makes for the efficiency of the productions Spacious and airy rooms on a large block of land in West Melbourne command a grateful view of green lees from the lofty windows Within the white-overalled girls at- tend the electric sewing machines, the electric irons, the cutting machines, and the eyelet equipping devices. For recreation and rest the employees are provided with a tennis court on the roof, a recreation and luncheon hall, In which tea is provided, and a "hospital" in which works is may receive attention if the need arises In addition to the usual time allowed for lunch, the girl employees are allowed an interval for morning tea, and as there is no work done on Saturdays, the employees have plenty of time for the many self-imposed home tasks which most girls like to perform, as well as for outings at the week-end. In addition to the brands of foundation garments mentioned, Symington and Co manufacture exclusively various brands on behalf of the leading ... and retail stores throughout Australia.'

`The West Australian' (Perth, WA : 1879 - 1954) Friday 15 May 1931

A MODERN FACTORY.

An inspection of the recently enlarged factory of R. and W. H. Symington and Co.. (Aust.) Pty., Ltd., brings true appreciation of the rapid progress made by modern industry. The congenial conditions under which the employees work contrast greatly with the lot of industrial workers a few years ago. The large, airy rooms, some occupying the entire space of one floor, are naturally lit, and an atmosphere of cleanliness is enhanced by the white overalls of the girls. Not one of the hundreds of employees engaged in the manufacture of corsets- and allied garments at this factory, it is stated, has been dismissed. Everything that, is possible to increase the comfort of the employees has been done. A tennis court is at their disposal on the roof, and a recreation room and a lunch hall are well patronised. In addition, there is a miniature hospital where employees may receive attention. The week's work ends on Friday afternoon, and no work is done on Saturdays. 'The renewed enthusiasm and energy with which the girls return to work each Monday,' the management says, 'is their practical way of saying 'Thank you.' 'The work rooms are well equipped with modern and easily managed machinery. Symington's, which, it is stated, is the largest manufacturing firm of its kind in Australia, is the Australian branch of the English firm of the same name, which was established nearly a century ago. The factory is at West Melbourne and many different types of corsetry are manufactured. In addition, the firm manufactures exclusively many brands on behalf of leading wholesale and retail stores throughout Australia.

Pty. Recently we had an opportunity of chatting with a member of this well known firm who had a very interesting and enlightening story to tell concerning the background of this enterprising organisation which is so well known all over the world. Symington's have six large factories in England, also they have a factory in Dundalk, Eire, two factories in New Zealand and two in Australia, one in West Melbourne which was opened in 1921, and another, established in 1943' at St. Arnaud. Liberty garments were first manufactured in England at Market Harborough in 1856, and since that time have succeeded in maintaining an- enviable position in the world of corsetry. In Australia, at West Melbourne, where the Liberty factory occupies an extensive -block of land from Howard street to Chetwynd street, all Liberty foundation garments are designed specially to suit the Australian figure requirements, Liberty offers a- garment to suit every figure type, and this is achieved mainly because of a very special method of scientific designing, very interesting to the average person who hitherto -had not realised what a scientific business corsetry really is. While there is a style and. A price to suit every woman, in no instance is quality of materials and workmanship sacrificed for price. All the materials used in Liberty garments are the finest obtainable and are fully guaranteed. Symington's are the manufacturers also of the famous Nu-Back corselettes.etc.'

'Jenyns Corsets (1898-1990s).

Established by husband and wife Ebenezer Randolphus Jenyns (1865-1958) and Sarah Ann Jenyns (1865-1952), in Brisbane in 1898. Jenyns was a family run business, but was run by a family with serious divisions.

What: Jenyns was a leading corset label that pioneered 'surgical' and 'hygienic' corsets for women. The business eventually became one of the country's most significant underwear empires, and one of Queensland's longest running fashion companies.

When: The business was established in the late nineteenth century, and survived in to the last decade of the 20th century. After more than fifty years as a successful enterprise, the company was sold to global brand, Triumph, in the late 1960s, which continued to use the Jenyns name, trading as The House of Jenyns. Triumph sold Jenyns in 1992, when it was split into a medical products company, Jenyns Pty Ltd., owned by Jenyns family members Ken, Pat and Julie Jenyns, and a specialised surgical corset business, Jenyns Bryant Surgical Corsetry Pty Ltd. These continued operating in to the 1990s.

Where: Jenyns corsets were stocked throughout the country in department stores and draperies, shown at exhibitions and fairs nationally, licensed through international retailers, and sold from their own premises. The company had locations in George Street (321 and later 309-315), Brisbane, for several decades, later moving to Melbourne Street, South Brisbane. After Triumph purchased the company in the late 1960s, the then named 'House of Jenyns' operated in Ipswich, until at least the late 1980s, when its once exceptionally popular corsets became a more or less obsolete product for most women. Why: Few Queensland fashion companies have had the rich history and longevity of Jenyns. While initially starting as a partnership between husband and wife Ebenezer and Sarah, it was Sarah who developed Jenyns into a leading corset company that endured for close to a century. Sarah was a passionate advocate for modernising corset designs, and developed side lacing and fan lacing corsets that enabled a wearer to easily get in and out of the garment without assistance (as was the case with older corset designs). She also believed that these garments had great medical benefits; relieving back problems, improving the figure, and supporting posture. Her patented designs were endorsed by the London Institute of Hygiene, a significant tick of approval for the company that 'legitimised' their health claims. An advertisement from 1920 states: "Jenyns supporting and reducing corsets are a health corset of distinctive merit. They are designed to combine the best principles of an abdominal belt with the finest artistry in corset making. The result is a corset unique in its supporting features and modern fashionable lines." By 1911 Sarah Jenyns was running her corset business independently, and continued to be associated with the success and legacy of Jenyns. Ebenezer continued to create surgical corsets as well, though with less success. In a short-lived moment of stability, they formed Jenyns Patent Corset Pty Co. in 1915.

In the 1920s the family business completely split, with Ebenezer and his son John applying for their own patents, and trading as Jenyns Truss & Patent Pty Co. However, this venture did not fair well. By contrast, Sarah's enterprise continued to grow. She brought her son Herbert in to the company, and he worked alongside her for more than twenty years. She secured Jenyns Patent Corset Co. Pty Ltd and continued to expand and patent new designs and improvements. Herbert was manager of Jenyns Patent Corsets by 1928, and instigated the manufacture of foundation garments and underclothing. Herbert became managing director of Jenyns in 1946. His own sons continued in the business in to the late 20th century. The business grew from 15 employees in 1920 to 500 in 1964. During World War II, Jenyns received large contracts from the army and navy to supply garments, and this was a time of rapid expansion for the business. Jenyns did have competition from local and international companies. In Australia their main rival was Berlei, and internationally firms such as Camp and Symington also served a similar market.

Herbert Jenyns led the company once Sarah became too elderly. Her own health failed her and she became senile. In 1951 more familial tension surfaced when it was alleged in the Supreme Court that Herbert had 'unduly influenced his mother to transfer 13,655 shares in the company to him.' Sarah passed away in 1952, and in 1953 the court's decision was reversed in Herbert's favour. He continued to run the business, becoming a millionaire. Jenyns corsets continued to be a fixture of women's wardrobes in to the 1960s, with many women still wearing them until the business was sold in 1992. Today Jenyns corsets are still coveted by collectors.

DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.

A resident of North Melbourne of 37 years standing, passed away very suddenly on Saturday, in Mr Henry Shalless, Architect, of Leveson street. The deceased gentleman sat down to tea on Saturday evening, apparently in good health, but about 10 o'clock was found on the floor of the front room rolling about as if in great pain. He said he thought it was nothing serious, but on Dr Workman being called in, he expressed an opinion that an artery in the region of the heart had been ruptured. Mr Shalless lingered till between 11 and 12 o'clock, when he expired. The deceased gentleman was 68 years of age at the time of his death, and was quiet and unobtrusive in his demeanour, but owing to his gentlemanly consideration towards others and probity in business, was universally respected. Mr Shalless took no part in public affairs, but his friendship was much valued by those who knew him best, and he will be greatly missed by the members of his immediate circle of acquaintances. The funeral took place at 2.30. p.m. on Monday, the Rev. W. C. Bunning officiating, the burial service of the Order of Oddfellows, of which deceased was a member, being also read at the grave. Mr Shalless was interred in the Melbourne General Cemetery.'

Royal commission to inquire as to the best means of developing and promoting the coal industry of Victoria. 1889-91
 1891, No 178, p101-
 (Royal Commission evidence given by George Moore on the Narracan Railway and his coal mine supplying same Taken at Moe.)
 Dr. George :Moore, examined. doctor of medicine.
 ...
 Where do you reside ?
 -At St. Kilda and Moe, Gippsland.
 What experience, have you of coalmining ?
 -I have been connected with coal mining since 1882.
 4333. In this district ?-Yes.
 4334. Where and how ?

-In the Narracan Valley, about four miles from Moe.
 4335. A seam of coal was discovered there ?
 -Yes, some year or two before that by a Mr. Milia.
 A company was formed there by Mr. Mills and his friends, but, in the course of time, that company succumbed, and some time after that I purchased a portion of the land that belonged to this company, knowing that there was coal on the place, there being an outcrop into this land. I made arrangements with my neighbours, :Mr. Stephenson, for instance, and Mr. Lithgow, through whose land the coal ran, by which we were to put our joint properties into one, and they gave me an agreement, and a long time to float a company. I succeeded in floating a company in the time, called the Moe Coal Mining Company.
 43:36. That was how it was formed ?
 -Yes. An outcrop in Mr. Stephenson's ground was discovered in a gully by a man cutting scrub; the coal was visible.
 4337. Is that outcrop near the mouth of the tunnel of the present mine?
 -Half-a-mile this side.
 4338. North-west?-Yes.
 4339. Up the hill ?-Towards Mr. Stephenson's house. The outcrop was visible there. Before I had the company floated I employed miners at my own expense, and I fully equipped them, and put them in that gully, and drove in a tunnel, and laid bare 3 feet of the outcrop, and on that 3 feet the company was floated...
 4358. Do you think the fact of there being coal there had any thing to do with the construction of the Narracan Valley railway line ?
 -I think it had a good deal to do with it., and if it had not been for the mine there never would have been a railway there..
 4359. Do you know as a matter of fact that the Railway Commissioners seeing the coal there recommended the construction of the line ?
 -I believe they did so.
 4360. Do you know as a matter of fact that the railway Commissioners were requested to visit the Moe mine with a view of satisfying themselves as to the existence of coal there in order that they might be able to inform the :Minister as to the need of that line ?
 -That is perfectly correct .. I know they were asked to visit with that object. We had made a definite offer to supply them at a certain sum, and they were then requested to visit the mine and give their opinion, and I have every reason to believe that after that visit the railway was passed. ...etc.'

`SUICIDE AT HOTHAM.

Mr Candler held an inquest at Hotham yesterday on the body of Alice Worthington, aged 42 years, who was found hanging dead in her residence there on the 12th inst. The deceased was the wife of a stonemason, and lived near the swamp...

`George Moore, legally qualified medical practitioner, said he was called to see the deceased on Wednesday evening, and found her quite dead She had been dead for about an hour 'there was a distinct mark of a cord around the neck, but no other marks of violence In his opinion, death had been caused by strangulation From the evidence, he considered that the deceased had been of unsound mind Some years ago, when he attended her, she was suffering from puerperal mania, which frequently left permanent effects on the brain The jury returned a verdict that the deceased hanged herself whilst of unsound mind. '

`Australian Medical Journal'.1884 v6

`The sub-committee appointed by the Society to consider the complaint of Dr. Workman, beg to submit the following report: " " Dr. Workman was public vaccinator for West Melbourne. A case of small pox appeared in one of his club patients named Mrs. Henthorne; he reported the case at once to Dr. Shields, the Inspector of the Central Board of Health, and saw the case with Dr. Shields. At the request of the latter, he agreed to vaccinate the other members of the family; finding, however, that they resided outside the district of West Melbourne, he communicated immediately with the Local Health Officer; and, under his advice, instructed Mr. Henthorne to see Dr. Moore, the proper vaccinator of the district, without delay. Henthorne readily consented, and Dr. Workman's connection with the case then ceased.

" It appears that Henthorne did not visit Dr. Moore; and when Dr. Moore called upon him, he refused to be vaccinated. Subsequently he also developed small-pox. "In consequence of this miscarriage. Dr. Workman was requested to resign his office as Public Vaccinator; and when he sought to learn the reason for this request, he was informed by the President of the Central Board of Health, that it was for no failure in duty as a Public Vaccinator, but because, as a medical practitioner, he had not fulfilled his promise to vaccinate certain of his private, patients. "Dr. Workman refused to resign, alleging that he had placed the vaccination in the hands of the proper local authority, and had thereby virtually fulfilled his promise.

Thereupon he was dismissed from his office by the Governor in Council. "In the opinion of the sub-committee, the dismissal of Dr. Workman was arbitrary and unjust, and little calculated to promote cordial

i*elations between the Government and the profession. "The sub-committee further recommend that the facts of the case as now set forth be entered in the minutes of the Society." Dr. Workman thanked the sub-committee for the trouble they had taken in the matter, but as it was apparent that no action could be taken with the likelihood of redress being obtained, he was content that the matter should be allowed to rest.'

What is significant?

These row houses were built in 1868 for Dr. George Moore, a Queensberry Street surgeon and district public vaccinator. Dr Moore was also an investor in Moe coal mines and was involved with the creation of the Narracan Railway in that district during the 1880s as a potential coal supplier.

Moore leased the cottages to a great range of people including John Piggott, Ephraim Hill, Johanna Cantwell, Charles Templeton and Hugh James. The row was built by Thomas Noble, a local builder(qv) of Capel Street. Another similar cottage row (5) was built for Dr Moore at 62-68 Rosslyn Street, the two rows meeting at the former Sowter's shop & residence at the corner (70-74 Rosslyn Street) also built for Moore. The combination of house rows, with the hillside setting and adjacent parkland square of Eades Place, provides for a distinctive Victorian-era townscape.

Contributory elements include:

- A single-storey, brick row of five cottages in Chetwynd Street and four in Rosslyn Street, all finished in ruled stucco and set on bluestone footings (typically painted over) with end and rear walls face brick (see 68 Rosslyn St rendered over in Chetwynd St);
- corner former shop, set on a hemi-hexagonal in plan at the corner of Chetwynd Street and Rosslyn Street,
- transverse gabled, typically corrugated iron clad, roofs (new tiles on 70-4 Rosslyn);
- cemented chimneys (some cornice details missing) engaged alternately in expressed party walls that are corbelled back to the wall line on the street facade;
- doors typically placed in pairs, except for 12 Chetwynd St where the door is central and 70-74 Rosslyn St where it is set in the splayed corner;

- doors were typically 4 panel with two-light toplights (16 Chetwynd St door now Edwardian-era, 70-74 Rosslyn St changed);
- single double-hung sash windows to houses, except for 12 Chetwynd St which has two;
- three long narrow windows to the former shop at 70-74 Rosslyn St which may be added;
- all built on the street alignment with stone paved lane access to the rear, the small scale and siting being indicative of the age.

The rows form strong streetscape elements, being set hard on the street on both sides of a distinctive triangular site. Trees in Eades Place and Chetwynd Street assist the small and intimate scale of these houses by confinement of the field of vision to them, whilst the former shop obtains maximum prominence.

How is it significant?

Dr Moore's row houses and shop are significant historically and aesthetically to West Melbourne and the City of Melbourne.

Why is it significant?

Dr Moore's row houses and shop are significant:

Architecturally, the rows are of a simple early form with little architectural embellishment individually, but as continuous rows of stepped cottages they form strong streetscape elements, each closely matched to the streets irregular junction angle and the small confined village scale evokes the early Victorian-era well.

Historically, an extensive development by a local active medical practitioner and successful investor, Dr George Moore, who was cited in a number of well publicised medical events in the Victorian-era as well as providing expert evidence to the Royal Commission into the coal industry 1891.

Architecturally, the rows are of a simple early form with little architectural embellishment individually, but as continuous rows of stepped cottages they form strong streetscape elements, each closely matched to the streets irregular junction angle and the small confined village scale evokes the early Victorian-era well.

Historically, an extensive development by a local active medical practitioner and successful investor, Dr George Moore, who was cited in a number of well publicised medical events in the Victorian-era as well as providing expert evidence to the Royal Commission into the coal industry 1891.

Royal commission to inquire as to the best means of developing and promoting the coal industry of Victoria.
 1889-91
 1891, No 178, p101-
 (Royal Commission evidence given by George Moore on the Narracan Railway and his cola mine supplying same Taken at Moe.)
 Dr. George :Moore, examined. doctor of medicine.
 ...
 Where do you reside ?
 -At St. Kilda and Moe, Gippsland.
 What experience, have you of coalmining ?
 -I have been connected with coal mining since 1882.
 4333. In this district ?-Yes.
 4334. Where and how ?

-In the Narracan Valley, about four miles from Moe.
 4335. A seam of coal was discovered there ?
 -Yes, some year or two before that by a Mr. Milia.
 A company was formed there by Mr. Mills and his friends, but, in the course of time, that company succumbed, and some time after that I purchased a portion of the land that belonged to this company, knowing that there was coal on the place, there being an outcrop into this land. I made arrangements with my neighbours, :Mr. Stephenson, for instance, and Mr. Lithgow, through whose land the coal ran, by which we were to put our joint properties into one, and they gave me an agreement, and a long time to float a company. I succeeded in floating a company in the time, called the Moe Coal Mining Company.
 43:36. That was how it was formed ?
 -Yes. An outcrop in Mr. Stephenson's ground was discovered in a gully by a man cutting scrub; the coal was visible.
 4337. Is that outcrop near the mouth of the tunnel of the present mine?
 -Half-a-mile this side.
 4338. North-west?-Yes.
 4339. Up the hill ?-Towards Mr. Stephenson's house. The outcrop was visible there. Before I had the company floated I employed miners at my own expense, and I fully equipped them, and put them in that gully, and drove in a tunnel, and laid bare 3 feet of the outcrop, and on that 3 feet the company was floated...
 4358. Do you think the fact of there being coal there had any thing to do with the construction of the Narracan Valley railway line ?
 -I think it had a good deal to do with it., and if it had not been for the mine there never would have been a railway there.
 4359. Do you know as a matter of fact that the Railway Commissioners seeing the coal there recommended the construction of the line ?
 -I believe they did so.
 4360. Do you know as a matter of fact that the railway Commissioners were requested to visit the Moe mine with a view of satisfying themselves as to the existence of coal there in order that they might be able to inform the :Minister as to the need of that line ?
 -That is perfectly correct .. I know they were asked to visit with that object. We had made a definite offer to supply them at a certain sum, and they were then requested to visit the mine and give their opinion, and I have every reason to believe that after that visit the railway was passed. ...etc.'

`SUICIDE AT HOTHAM.

Mr Candler held an inquest at Hotham yesterday on the body of Alice Worthington, aged 42 years, who was found hanging dead in her residence there on the 12th inst. The deceased was the wife of a stonemason, and lived near the swamp...

`George Moore, legally qualified medical practitioner, said he was called to see the deceased on Wednesday evening, and found her quite dead She had been dead for about an hour 'there was a distinct mark of a cord around the neck, but no other marks of violence In his opinion, death had been caused by strangulation From the evidence, he considered that the deceased had been of unsound mind Some years ago, when he attended her, she was suffering from puerperal mania, which frequently left permanent effects on the brain The jury returned a verdict that the deceased hanged herself whilst of unsound mind. '

`The sub-committee appointed by the Society to consider the complaint of Dr. Workman, beg to submit the following report: " " Dr. Workman was public vaccinator for West Melbourne. A case of small pox appeared in one of his club patients named Mrs. Henthorne; he reported the case at once to Dr. Shields, the Inspector of the Central Board of Health, and saw the case with Dr. Shields. At the request of the latter, he agreed to vaccinate the other members of the family; finding, however, that they resided outside the district of West Melbourne, he communicated immediately with the Local Health Officer; and, under his advice, instructed Mr. Henthorne to see Dr. Moore, the proper vaccinator of the district, without delay. Henthorne readily consented, and Dr. Workman's connection with the case then ceased.

" It appears that Henthorne did not visit Dr. Moore; and when Dr. Moore called upon him, he refused to be vaccinated. Subsequently he also developed small-pox. "In consequence of this miscarriage. Dr. Workman was requested to resign his office as Public Vaccinator; and when he sought to learn the reason for this request, he was informed by the President of the Central Board of Health, that it was for no failure in duty as a Public Vaccinator, but because, as a medical practitioner, he had not fulfilled his promise to vaccinate certain of his private, patients. "Dr. Workman refused to resign, alleging that he had placed the vaccination in the hands of the proper local authority, and had thereby virtually fulfilled his promise.

Thereupon he was dismissed from his office by the Governor in Council. "In the opinion of the sub-committee, the dismissal of Dr. Workman was arbitrary and unjust, and little calculated to promote cordial

i*elations between the Government and the profession. "The sub-committee further recommend that the facts of the case as now set forth be entered in the minutes of the Society." Dr. Workman thanked the sub-committee for the trouble they had taken in the matter, but as it was apparent that no action could be taken with the likelihood of redress being obtained, he was content that the matter should be allowed to rest.'

What is significant?

These row houses were built in 1868 for Dr. George Moore, a Queensberry Street surgeon and district public vaccinator. Dr Moore was also an investor in Moe coal mines and was involved with the creation of the Narracan Railway in that district during the 1880s as a potential coal supplier.

Moore leased the cottages to a great range of people including John Piggott, Ephraim Hill, Johanna Cantwell, Charles Templeton and Hugh James. The row was built by Thomas Noble, a local builder(qv) of Capel Street. Another similar cottage row (5) was built for Dr Moore at 62-68 Rosslyn Street, the two rows meeting at the former Sowter's shop & residence at the corner (70-74 Rosslyn Street) also built for Moore. The combination of house rows, with the hillside setting and adjacent parkland square of Eades Place, provides for a distinctive Victorian-era townscape.

Contributory elements include:

- A single-storey, brick row of five cottages in Chetwynd Street and four in Rosslyn Street, all finished in ruled stucco and set on bluestone footings (typically painted over) with end and rear walls face brick (see 68 Rosslyn St rendered over in Chetwynd St);
- corner former shop, set on a hemi-hexagonal in plan at the corner of Chetwynd Street and Rosslyn Street,
- transverse gabled, typically corrugated iron clad, roofs (new tiles on 70-4 Rosslyn);
- cemented chimneys (some cornice details missing) engaged alternately in expressed party walls that are corbelled back to the wall line on the street facade;
- doors typically placed in pairs, except for 12 Chetwynd St where the door is central and 70-74 Rosslyn St where it is set in the splayed corner;

- doors were typically 4 panel with two-light toplights (16 Chetwynd St door now Edwardian-era, 70-74 Rosslyn St changed);
- single double-hung sash windows to houses, except for 12 Chetwynd St which has two;
- three long narrow windows to the former shop at 70-74 Rosslyn St which may be added;
- all built on the street alignment with stone paved lane access to the rear, the small scale and siting being indicative of the age.

The rows form strong streetscape elements, being set hard on the street on both sides of a distinctive triangular site. Trees in Eades Place and Chetwynd Street assist the small and intimate scale of these houses by confinement of the field of vision to them, whilst the former shop obtains maximum prominence.

How is it significant?

Dr Moore's row houses and shop are significant historically and aesthetically to West Melbourne and the City of Melbourne.

Why is it significant?

Dr Moore's row houses and shop are significant:

Architecturally, the rows are of a simple early form with little architectural embellishment individually, but as continuous rows of stepped cottages they form strong streetscape elements, each closely matched to the streets irregular junction angle and the small confined village scale evokes the early Victorian-era well.

A case of small pox appeared in one of his club patients named Mrs. Henthorne; he reported the case at once to Dr. Shields, the Inspector of the Central Board of Health, and saw the case with Dr. Shields. At the request of the latter, he agreed to vaccinate the other members of the family; finding, however, that they resided outside the district of West Melbourne, he communicated immediately with the Local Health Officer; and, under his advice, instructed Mr. Henthorne to see Dr. Moore, the proper vaccinator of the district, without delay. Henthorne readily consented, and Dr. Workman's connection with the case then ceased.

" It appears that Henthorne did not visit Dr. Moore; and when Dr. Moore called upon him, he refused to be vaccinated. Subsequently he also developed small-pox. "In consequence of this miscarriage. Dr. Workman was requested to resign his office as Public Vaccinator; and when he sought to learn the reason for this request, he was informed by the President of the Central Board of Health, that it was for no failure in duty as a Public Vaccinator, but because, as a medical practitioner, he had not fulfilled his promise to vaccinate certain of his private, patients. "Dr. Workman refused to resign, alleging that he had placed the vaccination in the hands of the proper local authority, and had thereby virtually fulfilled his promise.

Thereupon he was dismissed from his office by the Governor in Council. "In the opinion of the sub-committee, the dismissal of Dr. Workman was arbitrary and unjust, and little calculated to promote cordial i*relations between the Government and the profession. "The sub-committee further recommend that the facts of the case as now set forth be entered in the minutes of the Society." Dr. Workman thanked the sub-committee for the trouble they had taken in the matter, but as it was apparent that no action could be taken with the likelihood of redress being obtained, he was content that the matter should be allowed to rest.'

What is significant?

These row houses were built in 1868 for Dr. George Moore, a Queensberry Street surgeon and district public vaccinator. Dr Moore was also an investor in Moe coal mines and was involved with the creation of the Narracan Railway in that district during the 1880s as a potential coal supplier.

Moore leased the cottages to a great range of people including John Piggott, Ephraim Hill, Johanna Cantwell, Charles Templeton and Hugh James. The row was built by Thomas Noble, a local builder(qv) of Capel Street. Another similar cottage row (5) was built for Dr Moore at 62-68 Rosslyn Street, the two rows meeting at the former Sowter's shop & residence at the corner (70-74 Rosslyn Street) also built for Moore. The combination of house rows, with the hillside setting and adjacent parkland square of Eades Place, provides for a distinctive Victorian-era townscape.

Contributory elements include:

- A single-storey, brick row of five cottages in Chetwynd Street and four in Rosslyn Street, all finished in ruled stucco and set on bluestone footings (typically painted over) with end and rear walls face brick (see 68 Rosslyn St rendered over in Chetwynd St);
- corner former shop, set on a hemi-hexagonal in plan at the corner of Chetwynd Street and Rosslyn Street,
- transverse gabled, typically corrugated iron clad, roofs (new tiles on 70-4 Rosslyn);
- cemented chimneys (some cornice details missing) engaged alternately in expressed party walls that are corbelled back to the wall line on the street facade;
- doors typically placed in pairs, except for 12 Chetwynd St where the door is central and 70-74 Rosslyn St where it is set in the splayed corner;
- doors were typically 4 panel with two-light toplights (16 Chetwynd St door now Edwardian-era, 70-74 Rosslyn St changed);

SURVEYED PLACES

- single double-hung sash windows to houses, except for 12 Chetwynd St which has two;
- three long narrow windows to the former shop at 70-74 Rosslyn St which may be added;
- all built on the street alignment with stone paved lane access to the rear, the small scale and siting being indicative of the age.

The rows form strong streetscape elements, being set hard on the street on both sides of a distinctive triangular site. Trees in Eades Place and Chetwynd Street assist the small and intimate scale of these houses by confinement of the field of vision to them, whilst the former shop obtains maximum prominence.

How is it significant?

Dr Moore's row houses and shop are significant historically and aesthetically to West Melbourne and the City of Melbourne.

Why is it significant?

Dr Moore's row houses and shop are significant:

Architecturally, the rows are of a simple early form with little architectural embellishment individually, but as continuous rows of stepped cottages they form strong streetscape elements, each closely matched to the streets irregular junction angle and the small confined village scale evokes the early Victorian-era well.

Historically, an extensive development by a local active medical practitioner and successful investor, Dr George Moore, who was cited in a number of well publicised medical events in the Victorian-era as well as providing expert evidence to the Royal Commission into the coal industry 1891.

Royal commission to inquire as to the best means of developing and promoting the coal industry of Victoria. 1889-91

(Royal Commission evidence given by George Moore on the Narracan Railway and his cola mine supplying same Taken at Moe.)

Dr. George :Moore, examined. doctor of medicine.

...

Where do you reside ?

-At St. Kilda and Moe, Gippsland.

What experience, have you of coalmining ?

-I have been connected with coal mining since 1882.

4333. In this district ?-Yes.

4334. Where and how ?

-In the Narracan Valley, about four miles from Moe.

4335. A seam of coal was discovered there ?

-Yes, some year or two before that by a Mr. Milia.

A company was formed there by Mr. Mills and his friends, but, in the course of time, that company succumbed, and some time after that I purchased a portion of the land that belonged to this company, knowing that there was coal on the place, there being an outcrop into this land. I made arrangements with my neighbours, :Mr. Stephenson, for instance, and Mr. Lithgow, through whose land the coal ran, by which we were to put our joint properties into one, and they gave me an agreement, and a long time to float a company. I succeeded in floating a company in the time, called the Moe Coal Mining Company.

43:36. That was how it was formed ?

-Yes. An outcrop in Mr. Stephenson's ground was discovered in a gully by a man cutting scrub; the coal was visible.

4337. Is that outcrop near the mouth of the tunnel of the present mine?

-Half-a-mile this side.

4338. North-west?-Yes.

4339. Up the hill ?-Towards Mr. Stephenson's house. The outcrop was visible there. Before I had the company floated I employed miners at my own expense, and I fully equipped them, and put them in that gully, and drove in a tunnel, and laid bare 3 feet of the outcrop, and on that 3 feet the company was floated...

4358. Do you think the fact of there being coal there had any thing to do with the construction of the Narracan Valley railway line ?

-I think it had a good deal to do with it., and if it had not been for the mine there never would have been a railway there.

-I believe they did so.

4360. Do you know as a matter of fact that the railway Commissioners were requested to visit the Moe mine with a view of satisfying themselves as to the existence of coal there in order that they might be able to inform the :Minister as to the need of that line ?

-That is perfectly correct .. I know they were asked to visit with that object. We had made a definite offer to supply them at a certain sum, and they were then requested to visit the mine and give their opinion, and I have every reason to believe that after that visit the railway was passed. ...etc.'

Mr Candler held an inquest at Hotham yesterday on the body of Alice Worthington, aged 42 years, who was found hanging dead in her residence there on the 12th inst. The deceased was the wife of a stonemason, and lived near the swamp...

`George Moore, legally qualified medical practitioner, said he was called to see the deceased on Wednesday evening, and found her quite dead She had been dead for about an hour 'there was a distinct mark of a cord around the neck, but no other marks of violence In his opinion, death had been caused by strangulation From the evidence, he considered that the deceased had been of unsound mind Some years ago, when he attended her, she was suffering from puerperal mania, which frequently left permanent effects on the brain The jury returned a verdict that the deceased hanged herself whilst of unsound mind. `Felton Grimwade & Co was established in Melbourne in about 1867, soon after moving from Russell Street to Flinders Lane where its importing business flourished. The firm operated as wholesale druggists but developed into a large manufacturing enterprise with products including acids, salt, glass bottles, fertilisers and eucalyptus oil. In 1870 they were operating a chemical works at their Port Melbourne manufacturing site and as early as 1872 the Port Melbourne Council opposed the manufacture of sulphuric acid at its plant. Nevertheless, company activities from the outset were to include the manufacture of sulphuric acid and other mineral acids including bisulphide of iron. By 1894 the Ingles Street building was the principal manufactory at Felton Grimwade and CO's. Chemical works. The works was extensively damaged by fire in 1895, but was rebuilt and continued to operate into the mid twentieth century. 38 The complex was later occupied by Arthur Vale and Co. Pty. Ltd., oil stores, Cotton Dressing Pty. Ltd. and the United Oil Co. Pty. Ltd. oil store. 39 And more recently became part of AMI and then Toyota. 40 Alfred Felton is remembered for the generous bequest he gave to the National Gallery of Victoria, which continues to fund the purchase of artworks for the state collection.'

The building at 133 Rossllyn Street is first listed in the Sands & McDougall directory of 1946. Its first occupants were Felton Grimwade & Duerdins, Wholesale Druggists and Importers and Manufacturing Chemists. The company was established in 1867. Frederick Sheppard Grimwade, a shrewd English businessman, borrowed funds from his father to purchase the Melbourne drug company from Edward Youngman, renamed Felton Grimwade & Co. Alfred Felton, Grimwade's partner, was originally apprenticed to a ...

Description/Notable Features

The former Felton Grimwade and Duerdins Factory is a three-storey Moderne style factory constructed of red brick with a projecting four-storey corner bay and parapeted roof. Relatively austere, the cubic building is punctuated by a series of square and rectangular steel-framed windows with horizontal glazing bars.

Statement of Significance

The former Felton Grimwade and Duerdins Factory, at 133 Rossllyn Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. Historically, the factory derives significance by its association with the prominent Grimwade family and Alfred Felton, prominent Melbourne philanthropist. Aesthetically, the building is a typical and relatively intact example of an inter-War factory, and a prominent element in the streetscape.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Previous grading of D confirmed. The building is a representative and intact example of its type and style. The historical connection with the Felton Grimwade & Duerdins Company is of interest.

'Victoria & Its Metropolis' 1887-8

'Dixon , P. G., and Co., aerated waters and cordial manufacturers, Rosslyn-street, West Melbourne. This firm affords a striking illustration of the success which attends the manufacturer who studies the public benefit by maintaining his products at the highest standard of excellence. The business-now one of the most extensive in Australasia-was founded in 1851 by Mr. P. . G. Dixon, from whom the present proprietors, Mr. Matthew Lang and Mr. Alexander Scott, acquired it by purchase in 1883. Since that date magnificent premises have been erected, in which the finest machinery embodying the latest improvements is constantly at work.

A brief description of this superb factory may not be uninteresting to our readers. The Main Building has no less than six floors, access to which is gained by an elevator worked by hydraulic power. On the Sixth Floor are huge tanks, moored side by side, containing a supply of the purest Mount Macedon spring water. This water is brought constantly by special railway truck from the Mount to the Melbourne station, whence it is carted to the factory, and raised by steam-pump to its present high level. At some distance is a room specially built as a boiling-room, in which are several large steam-jacketed coppers, whose inner surfaces are coated with pure tin, in which syrups for aerated waters and cordials are prepared. (Here it may be remarked that block-tin pipes are a notable feature throughout the establishment.) Descending to the Fifth Floor, the attention is arrested by an enormous cylinder, which we are informed is the casing of the Gigantic Filters, through which even the limpid Macedon water must pass. The capacity of these filters is 6000 gallons per diem. Proceeding inward, we reach the Sugar Store, where many tons of the finest Dutch crushed loaf await conversion into delectable beverages. Here a huge refrigerator, which extends the whole length of the building, cools the syrup on its way front the coppers above to the Syrup Vats' Chamber on the Fourth Floor. As you enter, you notice that on either hand, resting on a leaden floor , range rows of large vats , whose stone - coloured sides, relieved by chocolate-hued hoops, present an exquisitely fresh and clean aspect. Of these vats there are no less than twenty-two, the capacity of each being 225 gallons. Down the centre of the room is a range of white enamelled tanks, from which the syrups are drawn off to the bottling racks below, there to be mixed in proper proportion with the water which has been aerated in the manner we shall shortly describe.

Descending to the Third Floor, the chilliness of the atmosphere is strikingly apparent. The reason is soon obvious . This is the Macedon water reservoir . Here, in massive slate tanks 8 ft. deep , the crystalline fluid awaits its destiny. (engraving of complex, show existing buildings).

There are eight 1000 -gallon tanks on one side of this " cool grot," and thirteen mineral-water tanks on the other. Descending to the Machine room below, the first impression is that one has by mistake got into the Royal Mint. This fancy owes its rise to the beauty of the elegant, yet powerful, machinery which noiselessly does its work in this spotlessly clean chamber. The massive pumps, resplendent with polished steel and gun-metal, which incorporate the carbonic acid gas, drawn from gasometers underneath, with the water from above, are as perfect in their action as it is possible to conceive. Two of these pumps are capable of producing 3500 dozen each per diem, and two of smaller size 1500 dozen each per diem. The total producing power of these pumps therefore is 10,000 dozen daily. To each pump is attached a condenser, in which the incorporation of gas and water is finally completed. Thence the highly charged fluid proceeds to the Bottling Room on the same floor. This spacious hall, 100 ft. by 64 ft., is fitted up with no less than fifteen racks of various descriptions. Particularly worthy of notice are the Automatic Steam Bottling Racks, which can bottle at a rate of speed far exceeding those operated by hand. The floor of this room is of asphalt, and tramways intersect it, on which trucks pass to and fro with full and empty bottles. Mention should here be made of the source of the gas with which the waters are charged. The gas is generated on the first floor in two of Hayward, Tyler and Co.'s largest oak generators, to which are attached two very large gasometers, fitted with purifiers of the most approved description. From these gasometers the splendid pumps above, also by Hayward, Tyler and Co., draw their supplies. The motive power is derived from a beautiful horizontal high-pressure engine of 10 horsepower nominal, fed by a steel-ended, double-rieveted boiler, capable of working up to 150 lbs. pressure. We now turn to the provision for storage, which is a most important feature, as first-class soda water can be made only in cold weather, when the thermometer is in the forties. The Soda water Cellars are models of capacity, cleanliness, and coolness. Roofed with concrete and floored with asphalt, they remind one of the rock-hewn " caves" of the Rhenish vineyards. No expense has been spared to reach the utmost attainable perfection in these cellars, whose contents promise much icy consolation to hot and thirsty denizens of the metropolis in the ardent summer days. The provision for the reception and storage and washing of bottles is most efficient. A form of bottle invented by a member of the firm, and brought to perfection by the South Melbourne glass works, bids fair to hold its own against any imported article of the class. The Liqueur Department is as complete as that for the production of aerated waters. From the refrigerator previously mentioned, the syrups pass to the compounding tuns, whence they descend to a large number of huge oval vats, to be thence drawn off for bulk or bottle. P. G. Dixon and Co. 'a liqueurs comprise curagoa, maraschino, ginger wine, ginger brandy, quinine wine, &c. The Delivery Department is adequate to every requirement. Here all day long the familiar green vans, blazoned with the name of the firm in golden letters, may be seen leaving with double decked loads of lemonade, soda water, ginger ale, tonic water, &c., and returning with empties, whose contents have fulfilled their natural destiny.

The whole establishment is alive with push and ability, its proprietors being determined to spare no pains or cost to maintain the high place to which the possession of over one hundred prize medals and awards, including first prize at the International Exhibition of 1881, proves them to have already attained.'

Felton Grimwade & Co was established in Melbourne in about 1867, soon after moving from Russell Street to Flinders Lane where its importing business flourished. The firm operated as wholesale druggists but developed into a large manufacturing enterprise with products including acids, salt, glass bottles, fertilisers and eucalyptus oil. In 1870 they were operating a chemical works at their Port Melbourne manufacturing site and as early as 1872 the Port Melbourne Council opposed the manufacture of sulphuric acid at its plant. Nevertheless, company activities from the outset were to include the manufacture of sulphuric acid and other mineral acids including bi-sulphide of iron. By 1894 the Ingles Street building was the principal manufactory at Felton Grimwade and CO's. Chemical works. The works was extensively damaged by fire in 1895, but was rebuilt and continued to operate into the mid twentieth century. 38 The complex was later occupied by Arthur Vale and Co. Pty. Ltd., oil stores, Cotton Dressing Pty. Ltd. and the United Oil Co. Pty. Ltd. oil store. 39 And more recently became part of AMI and then Toyota. 40 Alfred Felton is remembered for the generous bequest he gave to the National Gallery of Victoria, which continues to fund the purchase of artworks for the state collection.

Description/Notable Features

The houses at 120-124 Rosslyn Street are double-storey attached Victorian residences with double-storey verandahs and hipped corrugated galvanised steel roofs.

The houses are of rendered masonry and share similar details, although No. 124 is wider and has a segmented arched vehicular entrance and bluestone pitched drive.

The verandahs have simple timber slatted balustrading and terminated at wing walls embellished with consoles and pine cones. French doors open onto the verandah at the first floor level; ground floor windows are timber-framed double-hung sashes. Chimneys are brick with corbelled cappings. The cast iron palisade fences appear to be original or early. No. 120 has undergone the most severe alterations. A projecting double-storey wing dating from the inter-War period has been added, obscuring the original facade.

Statement of Significance Rosslyn Terrace, at 120-124

Rosslyn Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historic interest. Constructed in 1865, the houses are representative of the early development of the suburb in the mid-nineteenth century. Aesthetically the houses are important heritage elements in the streetscape; of particular note are the bluestone pitched drive and the carriageway. The appearance of the house at No. 120 has been marred by inter-War addition.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. Superficially altered externally, the houses are important remnants of the early development of West Melbourne and are an important heritage elements in a very mixed and altered streetscape.

'185 Rosslyn Street West Melbourne is a prime 9,200 sqm site which has been earmarked as a benchmark for development in the area, although which is currently offered for sale as a development site with the associated planning application attached. Currently before the State Government, the Australia Post-owned site has the potential to support a development which can revitalise the immediate precinct and provide key improvements to the public realm.

Designed by Rothelowman, the island site currently a two-three storey warehouse and at-grade car park, located within 400m of the CBD. With delivery expected over three stages, the development will ultimately comprise five buildings accommodating 501 residential units, 1,205 sqm of retail space and 396 car parking spaces.

In addition to a northern public forecourt, north-south block access is included providing connectivity to a range of retail/commercial spaces within the site and beyond. ..Current 9,200 sqm site use: Australia Post call centre. Planning application lodged July 2014.'

`OUR INDUSTRIES.

AUSTRALIAN BISCUIT CO. LIMITED.

On Thursday evening last the Australian Biscuit Company (late J. H. Walker and Son) opened their large and spacious factory in Jeffcott street (24 Jeffcott St -since redevelopment) , West Melbourne, by a social. The second floor was illuminated and decorated by colored lanterns and flowers, and each window all round the building was lighted up by a number of candles. The large floor of the building. which is four stories in height. was crowded by the workpeople and a number of invited guests, many of whom came from Port Melbourne. The proceedings opened with an entertainment in which Misses Vine, Haines, Harrison, Emblin and Rendall, and Messrs. Brooke, Francis, Rendall, Price, Stevens, Elder and Williams and Master Schraefer took part.....

During the evening Mr. P. M. Salmon proposed the health of the directors, coupled with the name of Mr. C. A. Walker, the managing director. Mr. Salmon, in the course of his remarks, referred to the narrowing of the gulf which once existed between capital and labor, and the action of Mr. Walker in giving each girl or boy a new dress and a suit of clothes, and 200 shares distributed among the senior hands of the firm. This did much to cement the good feeling which existed between employer and employees. Mr Walker had entered the firm as office boy, and had climbed to his present position by sheer hard work. Protection was their main-stay, and he would like to see the system, as often the employee amassed a fortune and the employees had the same wage no matter how skilful they had become. He was a man of energy and business aptitude, and he hoped to see him climb the ladder like Mr. Walker had done. Mr. Salmon was frequently applauded during his earnest and powerful address, and concluded amidst cheers and applause ...Mr. Rendall proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. C. A. Walker for his kind hospitality ' that evening. This was carried by three cheers, and one for his respected father. The meeting shortly after broke up, all being delighted with the entertainment and their entertainer.'

`The Argus': 15/6/1889

`AUSTRALIAN BISCUIT COMPANY.

The second half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the above company was held at Scott's Hotel yesterday. Mr. W. W. Thomas occupied the chair, and there was an attendance of about 12 shareholders, The directors' report stated that a profit of £956 9s. had been made, and though it was not as great as they could have desired, this result was wholly attributable to the unsettled state of the working plant, the whole period having practically been spent in the pulling down, removing, and re-erecting plant and ovens from the old factory and the Exhibition. Under these circumstances, they had, in many instances, been obliged to refuse orders, but were now settled in the new factory, and in thorough working order. The month of May showed an increase in biscuits alone of 33 per cent, over the average output, thus showing that the business was fast securing a sound footing. As regarded the profit shown, it was sufficient to pay 10 per cent, on the called-up capital, with the exception of the shares allotted for goodwill to the vendors, and the directors felt assured of the future success of the undertaking. The report was received and adopted, on the motion of Mr. J. K. Joynt, seconded by Mr. H. G. Cook. Mr. J. K. Joynt was unanimously re-elected a director. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings.

An extraordinary meeting was subsequently held, at which verbal alterations were made in the rules providing for a change of date in holding the half-yearly meetings and presenting the half-yearly statement.

The Melbourne Assessment Prison is an Australian remand and reception prison located in Spencer Street, West Melbourne, Victoria. The facility is operated by the Department of Justice, of the Victorian Government.

Function and history...

The prison is also known by the nickname 'The Map'. Previously known as the Melbourne Remand Centre, the Melbourne Assessment Prison was originally built to accommodate Melbourne's remand prisoners and sits on the site of the former Western Hotel on the corner of Spencer Street and La Trobe Street just west of Melbourne's central business district.

The primary purpose of the facility is to provide statewide assessment and orientation services for all male prisoners received into the prison system.[1]

In 1997 the prison became the main reception prison for all male prisoners in Victoria. Initial planning for the prison commenced in 1974. Construction commenced in December 1983 and was completed in 1989 at a cost of A $80m. The prison was officially opened on 6 April 1989, and received its first prisoners on 29 May 1989.[1]

At least two prisoners have escaped from the Melbourne Assessment Prison. In one incident explosives smuggled into the unit were used to blow open the armoured plastic windows of a cell, while the two inmates hid behind mattresses (see Peter Gibb). Since then steel bars have been added to the windows to prevent a repetition.[citation needed]

The prison has seen a small expansion of its capacity over the years and now holds 305 prisoners as of mid 2014.

Architecturally, like many other store/factory buildings of the period and earlier, this dominates its contemporaries in scale and like the Victoria bond and Lonsdale free store, 541-51 Lonsdale street (1890), adopts classical ornament in the commercial oeuvre current since the 1850s.

however, both of these examples are comparatively altered. other examples include the former wool stores, brougham street; Geelong and the former robur tea building in Clarendon street, south melbourne. a later example is the former Victorian sugar company works which is architecturally later and a larger more varied complex. this building is a large and original, prominently sited and competently ornamented 19th century factory building, which possesses early use of all iron fire-proofed framing and was designed by the distinguished architectural firm, Thomas watts and sons. it is of state importance as an indicative and surprisingly original, example of the fast disappearing large industrial buildings of the late 19th century. historically, the earliest known surviving and most substantial building linked with this most well known of stationary firms: of state importance.

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983)

History - Sands and Kenny (.. 1857-61) and Sands and McDougall, (1862-c1974) were the publishers of the directory to commercial and general Melbourne, later, the Melbourne and suburban directory and the 'Directory of Victoria ' providing the longest issue of any other directory publisher in Victoria . They also published a directory of Canberra. 1
 From their first retailing outlet, the Victoria Stationery Warehouse in Collins Street West (No.46) and stores in Little Flinders Street, their expansion provided for the erection of this factory building to the design of Thomas Watts and Sons, by builder F. Lavers of Hawthorn. Products made there included cardboard and paper containers, those associated with book binding and general stationery and letterpress printing was combined with general publishing. 4
 Watts is also known for, commercial buildings, such as 'Robb's Building (1866) formerly in Collins Street; the early buildings of the Gordon Institute of Technology in Bowen Street, Melbourne; stores for the City Property Co. in Flinders Lane (1889); stores for Alston and Payne in McKillop Street (1888) and the similarly gigantic and brick Victoria Sugar Company Works, Beach Street, Port Melbourne.5

Description - A large six-storey, red brick and stucco factory building with basalt sills and parapeted roof line. Three facade bays are expressed by parapet pediments and some storeys divided by string-moulds, below the parapet cornice.

Reputedly riveted wrought-iron columns and beams are the internal structure with timber floors fire-proofed by the Traegerwellbech arched corrugated plate linings, with in combustible infill (refer . Victoria Bond 565-71 Lonsdale Street, Melbourne - a five-storey store claimed as the first to use the all-wrought-iron frame combined with the Traegerwellbech system, 1887). As befits its manufactory function, ornament derived from the Italian Renaissance is applied sparingly (refer later Laurens - Munster Terrace complex).

Integrity - Generally original, some openings altered.

Streetscape - A corner site, original condition and gigantic proportions set amongst low-rise neighbours, determine that this is a period landmark.

Significance - Architecturally , like many other store/factory buildings of the period and earlier, this dominates its contemporaries in scale and like the Victoria Bond and Lonsdale Free Store, 541-51 Lonsdale Street (1890), adopts Classical ornament in the commercial oeuvre current since the 1850s . However, both of these examples are comparatively altered. Other examples include the former wool stores in Brougham Street Geelong and the former Robur Tea Building in Clarendon Street, South Melbourne . A later example is the former Victorian Sugar Company Works which is architecturally later and a larger more varied complex. This building is a large and original, prominently sited and competently ornamented 19th century factory building which possesses early use of all iron fire-proofed framing and was designed by the distinguished architectural firm, Thomas Watts and Sons. It is of State importance as an indicative and surprisingly original example of the fast disappearing large industrial buildings of the late 19th century. Historically, the earliest known surviving and most substantial building linked with this most well known of stationary firms: of State importance.

History - Sands and Kenny (.. 1857-61) and Sands and McDougall, (1862-c1974)were the publishers of the directory to commercial and general Melbourne, later, the Melbourne and suburban directory and the 'Directory of Victoria ' providing the longest issue of any other directory publisher in Victoria . They also published a directory of Canberra. 1

From their first retailing outlet, the Victoria Stationery Warehouse in Collins Street West (No.46) and stores in Little Flinders Street, their expansion provided for the erection of this factory building to the design of Thomas Watts and Sons, by builder F. Lavers of Hawthorn. Product s made there included cardboard and paper containers, those associated with book binding and general stationery and letterpress printing was combined with general publishing. 4

Watts is also known for, commercial buildings, such as 'Robb's Building (1866) formerly in Collins Street; t he early buildings of the Gordon Institute of Technology in Bowen Street, Melbourne; stores for the City Property Co. in Flinders Lane (1889); stores for Alston and Payne in McKillop Street (1888) and the similarly gigantic and brick Victoria Sugar Company Works, Beach Street, Port Melbourne.5

Description - A large six-storey, red brick and stucco factory building with basalt sills and parapeted roof line. Three facade bays are expressed by parapet pediments and some storeys divided by string-moulds, below the parapet cornice.

Reputedly riveted wrought-iron columns and beams are the internal structure with timber floors fire-proofed by the Traegerwellbech arched corrugated plate linings, with in combustible infill (refer . Victoria Bond 565-71 Lonsdale Street, Melbourne - a five-storey store claimed as the first to use the all-wrought-iron frame combined with the Traegerwellbech system, 1887). As befits its manufactory function, ornament derived from t he Italian Renaissance is applied sparingly (refer later Laurens - Munster Terrace complex).

Integrity - Generally original, some openings altered.

Streetscape - A corner site, original condition and gigantic proportions set amongst low-rise neighbours, determine t hat this is a period landmark.

Significance - Architecturally , like many other store/factory buildings of the period and earlier, this dominates it contemporaries in scale and like the Victoria Bond and Lonsdale Free Store, 541-51 Lonsdale Street (1890), adopts Classical ornament in the commercial oeuvre current since the 1850s . However, both of these examples are comparatively altered.

Other examples include the former wool stores in Brougham Street Geelong and t he former Robur Tea Building in Clarendon Street, South Melbourne . A later example is the former Victorian Sugar Company Works which is architecturally later and a larger more varied complex. This building is a large and original, prominently sited and competently ornamented 19th century factory building which possesses early use of all iron fire-proofed framing and was designed by the distinguished architectural firm, Thomas Watts and Sons. It is of State importance as an indicative and surprisingly original example of the fast disappearing large industrial buildings of the late 19th century. Historically, the earliest known surviving and most substantial building linked with this most well known of stationary firms: of State importance.

Recommendations- Prepare a conservation/restoration strategy for the building; restore and conserve.

 `A STRANGE CASE.
 In the County Court on Wednesday, Alexander Dick, a contractor, was sued for £200 damages for a violent assault alleged to have been committed by him on Henry Axton, a laborer, residing in West Melbourne. From the evidence for the plaintiff it appeared that on the 4th July last one of his children wheeled another in a perambulator near to a building the defendant was erecting, and the defendant took the child out of the perambulator and beat it. Plaintiff went to ask defendant why he beat the child, and defendant then struck him, and he returned the blow. Later in the same day the defendant went to plaintiff's house and demanded an apology, which plaintiff would not give, and defendant then assaulted him violently and knocked him down, and kicked him while he was down. Plaintiff was so much injured about the head and face that he had to go to the hospital and stay there over f fortnight;, Defendant's case entirely traversed that for the plaintiff. It was denied that defendant beat the child in the first instance, and averred that plaintiff struck defendant first at the building. Defendant also said that he only went to plaintiffs house to know why he struck him in the day time, and that plaintiff then at once assaulted him, and fell down while he was doing so. A good number of witnesses were examined on each side, and the jury of four who heard the case returned a verdict for plaintiff. damages £20.'

SIR AARON DANKS.

`DEATH AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS.

Noted Charitable Worker.

We regret to announce the death of Sir Aaron Danks, which occurred at his residence, Balwyn road, Canterbury, on Monday evening, after a brief illness. Several years ago Sir Aaron Danks was in poor health, but there was some improvement following a tour abroad in 1925. Sir Aaron Danks was a noted worker in many charitable causes, and an able business administrator and his death will remove from the community one of its most generous and energetic figures, For nine years he was president of the Melbourne Hospital, and in that capacity alone his work was sufficient to have earned deep gratitude from the people of Melbourne. The large amount of time given to work to the Melbourne Hospital, however was only a portion of that which he devoted to philanthropic institutions. Sir Aaron Turner Danks was born at South Melbourne in 1861, and was educated at Wesley College and at Horton College, in Tasmania. After leaving school he entered the business of John Danks and Son (one of the oldest in Melbourne) of which his father. Mr. John Danks, was managing director. The business progressed rapidly under the capable management of father and son, and upon the death of Mr. John Danks the son became head of the firm, which continued to expand as a result of his wise direction. Through his charitable work Sir Aaron Danks was very widely known. Many philanthropic and charitable causes have been indebted to his sympathy. For 23 years he was a member of the Melbourne Hospital committee. Throughout the long period of his association with the Melbourne Hospital he had taken a leading part in the control and management of the institution. He was a past president of the Metropolitan Hospitals' Association, He was also Chairman of the Walter and Eliza Hall Research Institute, and had occupied that position since its inception. Sir Aaron Danks had taken particular interest in movements to promote the welfare of children both as a special children's magistrate, and for several years as president of the Child Welfare Association. He acted several years ago on the executive of the Protectionist Association of Victoria, and was a leading member of the Chamber of Manufacturers. He was also a member of the Melbourne Rotary Club. In 1925 he received the honour of Knight Bachelor. Only last Wednesday Sir Aaron Danks attended a meeting at his office in his capacity as managing director of John Danks and Son Pty. Ltd. He is survived by Lady Danks, by a son (Mr. Frederick Danks, who was his co-director in the business), and by a daughter (Miss Annie Danks). His elder son, Mr. John Danks, died several years ago. The funeral will take place this afternoon in the Melbourne General

SURVEYED PLACES

Cemetery. It will be preceded by a short service at the Methodist Church, at the corner of Balwyn road and Erica street, Canterbury. Hospital Committee's Regret. When the committee of management of the Melbourne General Hospital assembled for the monthly meeting yesterday afternoon Dr. J. H. Stawell, who was elected chairman, said that they met with the knowledge of the death of their president (Sir Aaron Danks). Dr. Stawell explained that, after the transaction of one item of formal business, the committee would adjourn out of respect to the memory of its late president. He then submitted the following resolution, which was passed while members, of the committee stood in silence:- "The committee of management has learned with profound regret of the death of the president Sir Aaron Danks, and desires to express its deep sympathy with Lady Danks and her family in their bereavement. From the date of his election to the committee of management in ??? Sir Aaron Danks took an active part in its deliberations and his election to the office of president in 1918 was a recognition of his abiding interest in everything which promoted the welfare of the hospital. He never spared himself in the advocacy of its claims upon the support of the community. He was always eager to see the adoption of every improvement in medical science to alleviate suffering, and to enhance the prestige of the Hospital and of its research institute, established by the Walter and Eliza Hall trustees. He was a regular visitor to the wards and cheered and encouraged many patients by his kindly disposition, which was touched so readily in the presence of the sick. His courtesy, patience and generosity admirably fitted him for the position which he filled, and his colleagues on the committee of management deplore the loss of one with whom their associations have been so happy. Auxiliary Meeting Postponed. Owing to the sudden death of Sir Aaron Danks, president of the Melbourne Hospital, the annual meeting of the Melbourne Hospital Red Cross auxiliary, which was to have been held today, has been postponed indefinitely. Members are asked to accept this notification as it has been impossible to notify them individually by letter. At the rehearsal of the Melbourne Philharmonic Society last evening the choir stood in silence as a tribute to the memory of Sir Aaron Danks, who was for many years a vice-president and a generous supporter of the society.'

Timeline

John Danks & Son Pty Ltd began as a plumbing business in 1859, established by brothers John and Samuel. It occupied a prominent site in Bourke Street, Melbourne, for 100 years.

The business quickly grew to include factories in Melbourne and Sydney which manufactured and supplied a variety of plumbing and engineering products such as brassware, pumps, windmills and bells.

John Danks & Son Limited was formed

1902

Following John Danks' death in 1902, his son Aaron, later Sir Aaron led the company. Aaron's son Fred, became Chairman and Managing Director upon his father's death in 1928.

1951

In 1951, Danks Holdings Limited was incorporated as a public company and John Danks & Son Pty Ltd became its wholly owned subsidiary. At this time, the company was operating retail and wholesale shops in Bourke Street, Melbourne, and Pitt Street, Sydney, as well as its manufacturing plants in Melbourne and Sydney.

1956

In the mid 1950s, the decision was made to phase out retailing and manufacturing to concentrate on distribution to independent hardware retailers. This decision spurred the construction of a new warehouse in Alexandria, New South Wales, in 1956 and in South Melbourne in 1958 - both situated on the company's previous factory sites. The city premises were then sold.

1958-70

1958 John Danks was appointed as General Manager and subsequently in 1966 Managing Director. Over the next two decades, the company acquired the hardware interests of EL Yencken & Co Pty Ltd and JS Kidd & Co Pty Ltd. To accommodate the rapidly expanding businesses, a decision was made in 1970 to construct the company's first high-rise distribution centre at Braeside, Victoria, and expand facilities in Alexandria New South Wales.

1971

Homestead (hardware) was established as a marketing group for the benefit of the company's independent retailer customers.

1974

Victorian operations were moved to a purpose built, state of the art, distribution centre in Braeside.

1993

Recognizing the need to have a strong retail brand to combat the rapidly emerging corporate warehouse operators, Danks united the members of its Homestead and Homesaver retail groups under one banner - Home Timber & Hardware. Home featured a distinctive turquoise colour scheme and the loveable Sandy and Rusty as advertising icons for the new brand.

2004

The company employs over 400 staff dedicated to servicing the needs of over 240 Home Timber & Hardware Stores, nearly 400 Thrifty Link Stores Hardware Stores, and 100 Plants Plus Garden Centres.

The company has restructured to ensure a clear focus on the functions that drive the business with the appointment of a National Supply Chain manager and the realignment of other operations to increase focus on customers, consumers and suppliers.

Danks continues to develop products, systems and services to help make independent retailers successful in a highly competitive market.

Australian Dictionary of Biography, 2015

Danks, John (1828–1902)

by J. Ann Hone

This article was published in Australian Dictionary of Biography, Volume 4, (MUP), 1972

John Danks (1828-1902), businessman, was born in January 1828 at Wednesbury, Staffordshire, England, son of John Danks, a wrought iron and gas tube manufacturer, and his wife Hannah, née Hickman. At 8 he was apprenticed to his father but finished his training with another firm and then joined his brothers, Samuel and Thomas, in starting an iron and tube works in Wednesbury. In 1857 the brothers and their families arrived in the Shaftesbury at Melbourne. After several unsuccessful ventures the brothers became hardware manufacturers, dealing 'in nearly everything suitable for plumbers, engineers, gasfitters and water supply'; one of their first jobs was the manufacture of pipe connexions for the Yan Yean water supply.

In 1860 Thomas retired and the firm continued as J. & S. Danks until 1871 when Samuel retired. The next twenty years brought rapid expansion: branch shops were established in Sydney and in Christchurch, New Zealand; John's son, Aaron, became a partner and in 1885 started a brass foundry in England; Danks won prizes at the Philadelphia, Sydney and Melbourne International Exhibitions. The number of his employees grew from 35 to 150 and his contemporaries attributed his success to his being 'just the man for the time', one 'whose business was continually enlarged by the demands of a growing city'. Danks believed more in his own ability and in the beneficial effects of the tariff which he had forcefully advocated when the question was vital to manufacturers. In September 1874 he had helped to form the Manufacturers' Association and next year called the meeting from which the Protection League developed; Danks became president of the Emerald Hill (South Melbourne) branch.

The first serious check to Danks's success was the depression of the 1890s; by the end of 1892 the sheet lead mill was idle and 1894 brought a £1503 deficit. Danks was severely shocked but his son could soon write, 'my father has quite pulled himself together again and looks as well as ever'. Indeed, in that year manufacturing was started in Sydney, to the annoyance of their Melbourne rival, John McIlwraith, with whom, however, they reached an agreement. In 1896 Danks won the contract for the City of Melbourne sewerage and two years later it was still making up for the decline in ordinary business. By 1900 he had 200 employees and a capital of £300,000.

Danks was a member of the Emerald Hill Council in 1871-80 and as mayor in 1874-76 was painstaking in his efforts for the ratepayers. In 1877 he unsuccessfully contested the Emerald Hill seat in the Legislative Assembly. He was a founder and director of the Australian and European Bank and a commissioner at the 1888 Paris Exhibition. Deeply religious, he was active in the Methodist Church and a Sunday school-teacher for thirty years. He gave £3000 to the Cecil Street Wesleyan Church, supported many charities and hospitals, and towards the end of his life marked each birthday by giving away £100.

A charming man of slight build, Danks was little changed by success. In his few years of semi-retirement he was happiest at his turning lathe, explaining 'I was always a mechanic and all my people before me were mechanics . . . [there are] few better mechanics here than myself'. He loved his garden and enjoyed music, being able to 'knock out a tune on almost any instrument'. He filled his house with paintings (he gave £100 to the Wednesbury Art Gallery) and his fine library included many books on art, science and metal-work. He continued to own land in Staffordshire but had no wish to return there because 'an Australian can never get used to the English climate'. He died after a short illness at his home, Vermont, Merton Crescent, South Melbourne, on 28 February 1902; he was survived by his wife Ann, née Turner, and by one daughter and one son of their eight children.

`The Carron Tavern:

A two storey brick hotel. Built for Carlton United Breweries in 1973 at a cost $223,000. It features a steel deck roof, skylights and a central atrium. There has been a hotel on this site since the 1870's with several name changes. Initially known as Lemmes Family Hotel in the 1880's it became Stewart's Family then Pecotshs and when Emily Mehrten became the licensee in 1893 it became Mehrten's Family. By 1905 it was known as the Carron. Last refurbished in 2004.'

Heritage Inventory: `Comments: 1, 2 & 3 storey building currently on site 1866 map shows building on corner extending along both Spencer and Dudley Streets.'

National Trust of Australia (Vic) Statement of Significance
 `What is significant?

No. 420 Spencer St. is one of the few Streamline Moderne buildings in West Melbourne, and is an outstanding example of this style of building. It was constructed in 1930 and extended to its current form in 1937. The building was commissioned by Australian Glass Manufacturers Co. Ltd. and designed by HW and FB Tompkins. It utilizes both flat and curved surfaces, has little external ornamentation and features vertical fins and horizontal spandrels. The use of materials such as metal windows and door frames reflects an innovative approach to construction consistent with the style.

The building was constructed as a showroom, with large spaces. It reflects the desire for a building in 'the latest' style which was sure to attract attention and prominence for the manufacturers products.

How is it significant?

The building is significant for aesthetic/architectural, historic, social, reasons at a local level.

Why is it significant?

No. 420 is an excellent intact example of the Streamline Moderne style of architecture. The style was more typically used for commercial properties.

The building was designed by the firm of HW and FB Tompkins, who were responsible for a number of significant commercial buildings in the Melbourne business centre in the interwar period, notably Myers in Bourke Street. Whilst this building differs in scale from their larger commissions in the centre of the city, it also represents their most innovative work in the use of the Streamline Moderne building style.

420 Spencer is a rare example of a Moderne building in the western end of the City of Melbourne, and is of a scale appropriate to the lower levels of activities in this area.

Given its corner location, it is significant as a local landmark and should be preserved and re-developed to serve the needs of the local community.

The building is located in an area that does not include many other heritage buildings. Neighbouring buildings include a service station, double storey commercial building, Metropolitan Fire Station and a Motor Inn. Other neighbouring properties are generally of a commercial nature with some residential developments. The integrity of the building stands alone, regardless of its neighbours, and the lack of other heritage buildings is even more reason for preserving this example. There is a scarcity of buildings of this type and style in the City of Melbourne, and the building's architectural style is rare in this area of Melbourne, thus adding to its physical character and visual quality.

Clearly the major architectural significance of the building is found largely in its exterior. The interest is aroused by its use of modernistic styling to create a striking appearance in a utilitarian building housing showrooms, and by the fact that the building is highly visible from Spencer Street and Dudley Street.

According to conservation architects Allom Lovell and Associates, the existing building is:

"of architectural, aesthetic and historic significance at the local level", and

"is significant at the local level within West Melbourne as a building with landmark qualities in a prominent corner location, and a typology which reflects the suburb's industrial character"

(420 Spencer Street, West Melbourne: Heritage Assessment; Allom Lovell & Associates, June 2002)

Historically, the building was the local headquarters and showroom of Australian Glass Manufacturers. The innovations in glass manufacture was an important factor in the development of Moderne buildings in the pre-war period.

Original Building Type Shop

History

The shop and dwelling at 441 Spencer Street was constructed c1868. The Sands & McDougall directories seem to indicate that there was an earlier building on the site, occupied by Nankivell Fanning & Co. stores, but described as vacant in 1865 and 1866 and then not listed at all in 1867 and 1868. In 1869 the building reappears, occupied by John Crabtree. In 1872 the building was occupied by John Andrews, a tailor, and then from 1873 until 1890 by a number of hairdressers and tobacconists.

Description/Notable Features

The building at 441 Spencer Street is a double storey rendered Victorian shop, with a splayed corner and a corrugated galvanised steel roof. The plinth is of bluestone. The entrance is located on the corner, and the narrow Spencer Street facade has a shopfront, now altered. All of the other windows have also been replaced, probably originally double hung sashes.

Statement of Significance

The building at 441 Spencer Street, West Melbourne is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The building is demonstrative of the early phase of development of the suburb in the mid-nineteenth century. Despite alterations, the overall nineteenth century form of the shop is intact.

'The Preston Carrying Company was started in 1912 with the belief that one day trucks would replace horse drawn vehicles. The business thrived, operating five-tonne chain driven trucks principally to transport milk from the dairy farms of Thomastown and Epping to Melbourne.

In the spirit of innovative customer service, the company's Buick doubled as a hire vehicle on weekends to chauffeur city folk around the countryside. One weekend, a passenger asked where she could buy a Buick. And so, Preston Motors was born...Australia's own car, the Holden was launched in 1948 with Preston Motors operating as an appointed distributor from the inception of Holden vehicles. The Essendon North location continues to serve their loyal Holden customers.'

History

The rate books and Sands & McDougall directories are unclear as to the history of the house at 491 Spencer Street. A house on this site, then numbered 89, is recorded in the rate books as early as 1865, described as a brick house with four rooms, valued at 26 (pounds) and owned by William Clark, who also owned adjacent properties. There appears to have been a wooden house at the rear, with 2 rooms and valued at 14 (pounds). From 1866 David Clark is recorded as the owner, presumably a relative, and the Clark family continued to own the property until the 1880's; in 1880 the owner is listed as Mrs Clark, presumably a widow, who resided next door at No. 87 for a brief period. By 1890 the owner was listed as Mrs A Cook (she appears in the Sans & McDougall directories from c1885), by which time the Average Annual Value of the property had increased to 70 (pounds), suggesting that the original house had been replaced or substantially refurbished and enlarged. The wooden house is still recorded as being at the rear at that time.

Description/Notable Features

Ethelboro is a double storey rendered brick Italianate style residence. Windows at first floor level are semi circular arched with moulded architraves, while that at ground floor level is a tripartite double hung sash with segmented arched heads and no architraves. The house has a double storey verandah terminated by wing walls embellished with ornate consoles, the timber verandah decoration is not original. The roof is concealed behind an ornate pierced parapet with a central panel bearing the name of the house in raised rendered lettering above a dentilated cornice.

Statement of Significance

Ethelboro, at 491 Spencer Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The house is representative of residential development of the nineteenth century Boom period, an important phase in the history development of West and North Melbourne. Superficially altered externally, the building is a typical example of a Boom style terrace form residence, and is an important heritage element in the streetscape.

`DEATH OF AN OLD RESIDENT.

A resident of North Melbourne of 37 years standing, passed away very suddenly on Saturday, in Mr Henry Shalless, Architect, of Leveson street. The deceased gentleman sat down to tea on Saturday evening, apparently in good health, but about 10 o'clock was found on the floor of the front room rolling about as if in great pain. He said he thought it was nothing serious, but on Dr

Workman being called in, he expressed an opinion that an artery in the region of the heart had been ruptured. Mr

Shalless lingered till between 11 and 12 o'clock, when he expired. The deceased gentleman was 68 years of age at the time of his death, and was quiet and unobtrusive in his demeanour, but owing to his gentlemanly consideration towards others and probity in business, was universally respected. Mr Shalless took no part in public affairs, but his friendship was much valued by those who knew him best, and he will be greatly missed by the members of his immediate circle of acquaintances. The funeral took place at 2.30. p.m. on Monday, the Rev. W. C. Bunning officiating, the burial service of the Order of Oddfellows, of which deceased was a member, being also read at the grave. Mr Shalless was interred in the Melbourne General Cemetery.'

History

The entries in the Sands & McDougall directories are unclear for the building at 493 Spencer Street. A building at this address is first listed in the directory for 1889, when it was occupied by Alexander Maitland. However, in 1900, no building is recorded at this address, but in 1905 it reappears and was occupied by Clark & Heron, plumbers.

Description/Notable Features

The building at 493 Spencer Street is a double storey shop and dwelling constructed of red brick with a parapeted roof. At first floor level there is a pair of timber framed double hung sash windows. A simple moulded brick cornice extends across the upper level of the facade, above which is an unusual curved parapet which, together with the red face brickwork, imparts an Edwardian character to the building. The shopfront has been altered c1970's.

Statement of Significance

The building at 493 Spencer Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The building is demonstrative of late nineteenth and early twentieth century commercial development of the inner city area, and contributes the heritage nature of this part of Spencer Street. Of note is the unusual sinuous parapet.

The pair of shops at 495-497 Spencer Street was constructed c1886. It first appears in the Sands & McDougall directory for 1887, when No. 495 was occupied by John R Greenwood, and No. 497 was listed as vacant. In the following year, the occupants were William Beech and Mrs Catherine Morris.

Description/Notable Features

The building at 495-497 Spencer Street is a single storey rendered Italianate style building, originally two shops but now combined as one. A moulded string course extends across the facade between corbels, and the parapet is surmounted by a pair of scrolled segmented arched pediments. The shopfronts have been altered.

Statement of Significance

The building at 498-497 Spencer Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical significance. The building is demonstrative of commercial development of the nineteenth century Boom period, a major phase in the history of West and North Melbourne. Despite alterations, the overall nineteenth century form of the building is apparent, and contributes to the heritage character of the streetscape in this part of Spencer Street.

`DIVORCE COURT.

Thursday, 13th December.

The Divorce Court made very good progress with the list of cases to-day. Proceedings opened with Campbell v. Campbell, which was, a petition by James Campbell, a blacksmith, resident of West Melbourne, for a divorce from his wife on the grounds of adultery and cruelty. The union took place in 1874, but soon after wards Mrs. Campbell went in for steady drinking, which involved her husband in debt, and resulted, as is so often the case, a falling away from the paths of virtue. The co-respondent, Edward Flannagan, appeared in court to defend himself, and denied that he had acted so as to place himself in that position, but after hearing the evidence of his own sister and that of other witnesses the court dissolved the marriage.'

History

The building at 502 Spencer Street first appears in Sands & McDougall directories in 1882-83. Melbourne City Council rate books first list the buildings in 1882, describing it as a brick house of five rooms. Originally one of a pair, or possibly a row of four similar houses, it was owned by a Mr James Campbell.

Description/Notable Features

The building at 502 Spencer Street is a double storey rendered Victorian residence built to the property and with a parapeted roof. The upper level is intact, comprising a tripartite arrangement of timber framed double hung sash windows with a rendered hood mould and bracketed sill. The facade has quoining, and the parapet is surmounted by a scrolled pediment. The ground floor has been altered.

Statement of Significance

The building at 502 Spencer Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical significance. The house is demonstrative of residential development of the nineteenth century Boom period, an important phase in the history of West and North Melbourne. Although altered at ground floor level, the overall nineteenth century form is apparent.

History

The Sands & McDougall directories suggest that this building was constructed c1878. A building, which may be this shop at 507 Spencer Street, appears in the directory for 1880, then numbered 91 (later No. 505), occupied by J Weeding, a baker. The owner is recorded in the rate books as William Yule, and the building is described as a brick shop with six rooms, valued at 80 (pounds).

Description/Notable Features

The building at 507 Spencer Street is a double storey rendered Italianate style shop built to the property line. The first floor is intact and comprises three double hung sash windows with moulded architraves and bracketed sills. Above these, a rendered cornice extends across the parapet between console brackets. Scrolled decoration terminates the ends of the parapet, an unusual element. The ground floor shopfront has been altered.

Statement of Significance

The building at 507 Spender Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The building is demonstrative of commercial development of the nineteenth century Boom period, a major phase in the history of West and North Melbourne. Except for the shopfront the building is substantially intact and contributes to the heritage character of the streetscape in this part of Spencer Street.

`WEDDING BELLS.

McDONALD — DOYLE.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was celebrated on Thursday, July 27th, at St. Mary's Church, Star of the Sea, West Melbourne, when Dr. Edward McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McDonald, of Carlton, was married to Miss . Esther Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Doyle, West Melbourne^ The Rev. Joseph Egan officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very pretty and dainty in a smart costume of cream gabardine, with small silk hat to match. The bridesmaids wore Miss Mary McDonald, sister of bridegroom, and Miss Fraser, cousin of the bride, the best man and groomsman being respectively Mr. John McDonald and Mr. Joe Doyle. After the ceremony an adjournment was made to the Café Francais, where a sumptuous dejeuner was partaken of. After the usual toasts were honoured, the -happy couple left for their home in Bacchus Marsh, carrying .with them the good wishes of their large circle of friends. Many useful and beautiful presents were received. '

Newspapers:

'Advocate' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1868 - 1954) Thursday 21 June 1934

'MRS. HANNAH O'BRIEN.

The death of Mrs. Hannah O'Brien took place at her home, "Neirboh," 35 Mitford-street, St. Kilda, on June 2. A native of County Tipperary, Ireland, Mrs. O'Brien came to Victoria with her husband, Dennis O'Brien, and a short time after their arrival they took over the management of the Royal Mail Hotel, Spencer-street, West Melbourne. After the death of her husband, Mrs. O'Brien carried on the business for many years before retiring with her family to St. Kilda. Three years ago she again took over the licence of the Royal Mail, assisted by two of her daughters, Betty and Nancy. Mrs. O'Brien is survived by her four daughters, Nellie (Mrs. O'Sullivan), Betty, May (Mrs. F. Conlon), and Nancy. A Requiem Mass for the repose of her soul was celebrated at St. Columba's

Church, Elwood, at 9.15 on June 4, and after the Mass the funeral left for the Melbourne General Cemetery, Carlton.'

`Dictionary of Unsung Architects

HIPWELL, WEIGHT & MASON (later HIPWELL, WEIGHT & ROSS)

Biographical Overview

Like the more well-known partnership of Grounds, Romberg & Boyd, the firm of Hipwell, Weight & Mason (later Hipwell, Weight & Ross) was founded by three young Melbourne architects who had already made names for themselves as individuals: John Hipwell (1920-2007), Charles Weight (1927-1968) and Peter Mason (1932-1962). Sadly, after a very promising start in the early 1960s, the firm had petered out by the end of the decade after the early and tragic deaths of two of its three original partners.

Born on 30 November 1920 in the Victorian town of Leongatha, John Buckland Hipwell was educated at the state school in nearby Maffra and later attended Scotch College in Melbourne. His architectural studies at the University of Melbourne were interrupted by the Second World War, during which Hipwell served with the 3rd Australian Survey Company (as did several other soon-to-be prominent Melbourne architects, including Neil Clerehan, Robin Boyd and Kevin Pethebridge). Completing his degree in 1948, Hipwell worked for architects Fritz Janeba and later Martin & Tribe. When Horace Tribe left to begin his own practice in mid-1949, he took Hipwell with him. Elected as an associate of the RAI in 1951, Hipwell opened his own office two years later. He started by designing a striking flat-roofed glass-walled house for himself in Warrandyte, which was widely published in the local architectural press. Hipwell went on to design several other houses, most of which were located in Melbourne's outer north-eastern suburbs, near where he lived. One of Hipwell's more unusual commissions was re-dressing the lower room of the Melbourne Town Hall to resemble the interior of a ship, the SS Australiana, for an exhibition of local literature organised by the Australian Book Fair Council.

Seven years Hipwell's junior, Charles Ernest Weight began his architectural career in the early 1950s in the office of Frederick Romberg. Weight was elected as an associate of the RAI in 1952 and, by the following year (coinciding with Romberg entering into partnership with Roy Grounds and Robin Boyd), had opened his own office. Like John Hipwell, Weight commenced his independent practice by designing a house for himself, which (as had been the case for Hipwell) garnered much attention in the architectural press. Weight went on to complete several other residential projects, as well as commissions for factories and a medical clinic.

Five years younger than Weight and twelve years younger than Hipwell, Peter Mason completed a Diploma of Architecture at the Melbourne Technical College (now RMIT) and a Bachelor of Architecture at the University of Melbourne. He became an associate of the RAI in 1955 and obtained a position in the office of H A & F L Norris. In 1957, while still working there, Mason and three other young architects entered a design competition for the "Ideal Family Home", and won second prize. '

Fishermans Bend Heritage Study -2013

'One of the earliest of the noxious trades was Kitchen & Sons soap and candle works on Ingles Street. Established initially in 1856 as a backyard concern, but forced to move by the council, the company acquired the Ingles Street site in 1859 manufacturing candles, washing blue, soap, soda crystals, glycerine and baking powder. 33 The works was substantial with more than a dozen buildings, marked as the "Apollo Candle factory" on MMBW Plans (note a similarly named Apollo candle factory was on the Maribyrnong River at Flemington).34 Kitchen had acquired the Apollo company in 1883. In 1962 J. Kitchen & Sons Pty Ltd joined fellow soap manufacturer Lever Brothers Pty Ltd, forming Lever & Kitchen Pty Ltd. The firm was later restructured as Unilever in 2000, and later taken over by Pental and very recently Symex Holdings Limited. The Ingles Street works progressively expanded with its southern boundary street moving twice. Initially this was "Kitchen Street", which aligned with White Street on the west side of Boundary Street, 37 then opposite the 'Unnamed govt road' (1950s photo) and finally becoming Munro Street to align with the through route to Montague Street.'

'The first sulphuric acid manufacture in Victoria goes probably back to 1862, when Messrs. Forbes and Co. produced it on the Yarra Bank 'in a very small way'. The enterprise was followed by Clarke and Hoffman, later Smith and Co. and finally Cuming Smith and Co., who round about 1872 built a modern, medium scale mineral acids complex producing concentrated sulphuric acid, nitric and sulphurous acid, ammonium nitrate and phosphatic fertiliser. The acid chambers were sizeable 90 x 20 x 14 feet, compared with the UK plant built shortly before then by Muspratt 120 x 24 x 20 feet. The manager of the establishment, James Cuming, the entrepreneur's son, had received his chemical education in Victoria; the firm received two gold medals at the Melbourne International Exhibition and was 'recommended for the Emperor of Germany's grand prize to the premier industry in the colony'.[11] The Victoria Bone Mills at Yarraville founded 1870 was part of this early complex.[12] Remarkably, 3 000 tonnes of calcium superphosphate were exported to Mauritius and New Zealand. Also at Yarraville were the Victorian Pyrites and Smelting Works and a substantial sugar refinery, the Victorian Sugar Company's Works, and Melbourne Woollen Mills. Nearby, at Footscray, the Apollo Company Works, established in 1873, produced organic chemicals from slaughter yards, glycerine, stearine, oleine and household soap. The company's successor in Sydney, Apollo Stearine Candle Cpy, and another Melbourne soaper,[13] J. Kitchen and Sons eventually, in 1912-14, were absorbed by Lever Bros. Ltd.'

'Australasia's history

William Hesketh Lever was the first person to stamp soap with a brand name and wrap it before selling it to the public. The brand was Sunlight soap and the year was 1885. In the late 1880s, Lever Brothers Sunlight soap was first imported to NZ from the UK. In 1899, Lever Brothers began soap production at Balmain in Sydney, followed by the commencement of production in New Zealand in 1919.

On 2 September, 1929, the UK-based Lever Brothers and the Dutch union of fats and oils businesses Margarine Unie, signed an agreement to create Unilever. The businesses initially aimed to negotiate an arrangement to keep out of each other's principal interests of soap and margarine production, but ultimately decided on an amalgamation instead.

The years following saw significant expansion around the world, and Australasia was no exception. In 1959, Unilever acquired McNivens Ice Cream in Australia followed by Streets and Sennitts. In 1963, the business acquired Rosella Foods (established 1896). In 1968, the John West operation began in Australia and in 1971 Unilever acquired Lipton Tea.

Modern history

In 1982, the Rosella factory in Richmond, Victoria, closed and dry foods production transferred to Knoxfield. In 1988, the Bushells, Rosella Lipton and John West businesses combined to form Unifoods in Australia. In the same year, the New Zealand acquisitions of Oxo, Bushells, Faggs and Quality Packers merged with John West to form Unifoods NZ...'

`INSOLVENCY COURT. MONDAY, 2ND DECEMBER. (Before Judge Noel.) re Thomas Hearty, of Melbourne, brewer '

`The Age' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1854 - 1954) Saturday 29 May 1880

`A case was heard yesterday before Mr. Justice Molesworth, Chief Judge of the Court of Insolvency, in which Thomas Hearty, an insolvent, whose certificate was suspended for six months by Judge Noel, on the ground of fraud and negligence, appealed against the decision. Judge Molesworth upheld the finding of the lower court, but so far varied the Order as to strike out the ground of fraud, and suspended the certificate only upon the plea of gross negligence. His Honour thought that the insolvent's conduct was culpably negligent, but not fraudulent, but in other respects he confirmed the decision given by Judge Noel.)'

`LICENSING CASE.

Catherine Shearer, of the Eagle hotel, Spencer-St., West Melbourne, was proceeded against by Inspector Hillard. Mr. Gillott defended. The first charge -was-of allowing drunken persons to assemble on her premises.....'

`North Melbourne Courier and West Melbourne Advertiser' (Vic. : 1895 - 1913) Friday 1 June 1906

`DEFINING DELAY.

`...report of a licensing case heard at the local court last Monday, in respect to which the defendant was charged with "delaying admission " to a member of the police force. ... on Sunday, the 15th inst., three constables went between 1 and 2a.m., to the Eagle hotel, Spencer and Hawke-Sts., West Melbourne, and one of them knocked, and, on the licensee looking out of an upstairs window, called out that the police had an order from a licensing inspector to visit the hotel, and demanded admission. The spokesman of the two then looked at his watch, and noticed that it was 1.26 .when he demanded admission, and on the door being opened by the licensee again glanced at it and found that it was 1.29. On these facts a prosecution for delaying admission was launched, and a conviction obtained. Technically the lapse of time between the disappearance of the landlady from the window, and her appearance at the door, no doubt, is "delay," but the case has an aspect of straining the law. ...when the police came her daughter was ill, at the time supposed to be past recovery, and the defendant was nursing her.. Under such circumstances surely a woman cannot be expected to rush downstairs, and open the door with the alacrity of a fireman swinging himself on a hose cart, and the time that elapsed cannot be said, in view of the surroundings, to be 'unreasonable'.'

 History

Robert Taylor, the owner of these row houses, was also their architect and builder in 1876. He lived in 239 Spencer Street until 1886, but retained ownership for another 10 years. The other occupants included William Stubbs, Richard Manly, Edward Day before 1896, when all the tenants were women, Sarah Williams, Margaret Anderson, Caroline Malony, Mary-Ann Barber.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration and verandah roof and structure.

A two storeyed, parapeted and stuccoed brick row of four, with cast iron two level verandahs and iron fences. Typical of their time and type, the houses have little decoration except the roundel pattern iron cornices and other stucco mouldings, together with the parapet urns. Integrity - Parapet urns missing on Nos. 592-6. See No.590.

Streetscape - Contributing part of a long residential streetscape, with limited integrity.

Statement of Significance Architecturally, an early and near original row of a common form type and part of a streetscape, of regional importance. Historically, a speculative row by the architect-owner-builder.

Recommended Alterations Colours (sympathetic - no recommendations) Parapet urns gone (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative) Recommendations - Repaint in typical or original colours, replace urns.

 History

The house at 591 Spencer Street was built c1881. The house is first listed in the Sands & McDougall directories in 1882, occupied by Benjamin Woods. In 1890, when the house was given its present street number, the house was owned and occupied by James T Millerd. At that time the house was described in the rate books as a brick house with four rooms.

Description/Notable Features

The house at 591 Spencer Street is a single storey, single fronted Victorian cottage. The walls are of brick, and the steeply pitched transverse gabled roof is clad in corrugated galvanised steel. It has a concave profile verandah which spans between wing walls. The facade is presently obscured by a high fence.

Statement of Significance

The house at 591 Spencer Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical significance. The house is representative of the cottages which were constructed in large numbers in West and North Melbourne in the nineteenth century. Although a high brick fence presently obscures the facade, the house otherwise relates visually to the its neighbour at No. 589. Its unusual side elevation also contributes to the streetscape.....???

City of Melbourne Heritage Review (1999)History

The house at 591 Spencer Street was built c1881. The house is first listed in the Sands & McDougall directories in 1882, occupied by Benjamin Woods. In 1890, when the house was given its present street number, the house was owned and occupied by James T Millerd (sic). At that time the house was described in the rate books as a brick house with four rooms.

Description

The house at 591 Spencer Street is a single storey, single fronted Victorian cottage. The walls are of brick, and the steeply pitched transverse gabled roof is clad in corrugated galvanised steel. It has a concave profile verandah which spans between wing walls. The facade is presently obscured by a high fence.

Significance

The house at 591 Spencer Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical significance. The house is representative of the cottages which were constructed in large numbers in West and North Melbourne in the nineteenth century. Although a high brick fence presently obscures the facade, the house otherwise relates visually to the its neighbour at No. 589. Its unusual side elevation also contributes to the streetscape.

Grading Review

Previous grading of D confirmed. The house is representative of modest Victorian residential development in West and North Melbourne. The appearance and streetscape value of the house would be enhanced by the removal of the high brick fence ,

 History

Robert Taylor, the owner of these row houses, was also their architect and builder in 1876. He lived in 239 Spencer Street until 1886, but retained ownership for another 10 years. The other occupants included William Stubbs, Richard Manly, Edward Day before 1896, when all the tenants were women, Sarah Williams, Margaret Anderson, Caroline Malony, Mary-Ann Barber.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the fence, verandah decoration and verandah roof and structure.

A two storeyed, parapeted and stuccoed brick row of four, with cast iron two level verandahs and iron fences. Typical of their time and type, the houses have little decoration except the roundel pattern iron cornices and other stucco mouldings, together with the parapet urns. Integrity - Parapet urns missing on Nos. 592-6. See No.590.

Streetscape - Contributing part of a long residential streetscape, with limited integrity.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early and near original row of a common form type and part of a streetscape, of regional importance. Historically, a speculative row by the architect-owner-builder.

Recommended Alterations

Parapet urns gone (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative) Recommendations - Repaint in typical or original colours, replace urns.

'The half yearly meeting of the Melbourne Builders' Lime and Cement Company was held yesterday evening, at Phair's Hotel Mt Samuel Amess, who presided, moved the adoption of the balance sheet This was seconded by Mr. Kenneth Gunn and agreed to. Mr. Alexander Dick proposed, and Mr. James Moore seconded, the adoption of the directors' report, which was carried unanimously. The report stated that the business of the company had been exceedingly good during the last half-year, so that after paying a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent, they could afford to divide a bonus of £1,500, the reserve fund standing at £3,000. On the motion of Mr. James Moore, seconded by Mr. Alexander Dick, the directors' remuneration was increased to £200 a year amongst them. Councillor Richardson moved, Mr. James Moore seconded, and it was resolved, to increase the salary of the manager, Mr. George Baker, by £50 a year.'

History

These row houses were built in two separate stages by and for Alexander Dick, who was a carpenter. Nos. 599 to 607 Spencer Street were built in 1867, with Alexander Dick himself living in No.599 for the first ten years, the other four houses were added in 1879 and were all leased, first by Alexander, then after 1890, by John Dick, an estate agent of Collins Street, and probably Alexander's son. The many tenants were transient, such as Hugh O'Brien, Thomas Hoare, William Bailey, James and Isabella Nicholls, to name but a few.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the verandah roof and structure and unpainted decorative brickwork. A parapeted, single storey row of nine coloured brick and stucco houses, possessing cast iron decorated verandahs and stuccoed, corniced chimneys. A segment arched entablature, flanked by urns on pinnacles, occupies the parapet centre.

Integrity - What presumably were timber picket front fences have been replaced. Streetscape - An isolated, but long row creating in itself, a streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of a common type but extensive in size and prominent in the street, of local importance.

Historically, Alex Dick exemplifies the developer-builder who converts his builders yard to house lots, of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Fences replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative) Bricks part painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method) Recommendations- Replace picket fence (arrow head or original), repaint trim with typical or original colours, consider zoning provisions to maintain original form and use.

'The Argus': 9/8/1884

'The half yearly meeting of the Melbourne Builders' Lime and Cement Company was held yesterday evening, at Phair's Hotel Mt Samuel Amess, who presided, moved the adoption of the balance sheet This was seconded by Mr. Kenneth Gunn and agreed to. Mr. Alexander Dick proposed, and Mr. James Moore seconded, the adoption of the directors' report, which was carried unanimously. The report stated that the business of the company had been exceedingly good during the last half-year, so that after paying a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent, they could afford to divide a bonus of £1,500, the reserve fund standing at £3,000. On the motion of Mr. James Moore, seconded by Mr. Alexander Dick, the directors' remuneration was increased to £200 a year amongst them. Councillor Richardson moved, Mr. James Moore seconded, and it was resolved, to increase the salary of the manager, Mr. George Baker, by £50 a year.'

599-615 SPENCER STREET

History

These row houses were built in two separate stages by and for Alexander Dick, who was a carpenter. Nos. 599 to 607 Spencer Street were built in 1867, with Alexander Dick himself living in No.599 for the first ten years, the other four houses were added in 1879 and were all leased, first by Alexander, then after 1890, by John Dick, an estate agent of Collins Street, and probably Alexander's son. The many tenants were transient, such as Hugh O'Brien, Thomas Hoare, William Bailey, James and Isabella Nicholls, to name but a few.

Description

A parapeted, single storey row of nine coloured brick and stucco houses, possessing cast iron decorated verandahs and stuccoed, corniced chimneys. A segment arched entablature, flanked by urns on pinnacles, occupies the parapet centre.

Integrity - What presumed were timber picket front fences have been replaced.

Streetscape - An isolated, but long row creating in itself, a streetscape.

Significance

Architecturally, of a common type but extensive in size and prominent in the street, of local importance. Historically, Alex Dick exemplifies the developer-builder who converts his builders yard to house lots, of local importance.

Recommendations- Replace picket fence (arrow head or original), repaint trim with typical or original colours, consider zoning provisions to maintain original form and use.

History

These row houses were built in two separate stages by and for Alexander Dick, who was a carpenter. Nos. 599 to 607 Spencer Street were built in 1867, with Alexander Dick himself living in No.599 for the first ten years, the other four houses were added in 1879 and were all leased, first by Alexander, then after 1890, by John Dick, an estate agent of Collins Street, and probably Alexander's son. The many tenants were transient, such as Hugh O'Brien, Thomas Hoare, William Bailey, James and Isabella Nicholls, to name but a few.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the verandah roof and structure and unpainted decorative brickwork. A parapeted, single storey row of nine coloured brick and stucco houses, possessing cast iron decorated verandahs and stuccoed, corniced chimneys. A segment arched entablature, flanked by urns on pinnacles, occupies the parapet centre.

Integrity - What presumably were timber picket front fences have been replaced. Streetscape - An isolated, but long row creating in itself, a streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, of a common type but extensive in size and prominent in the street, of local importance.

Historically, Alex Dick exemplifies the developer-builder who converts his builders yard to house lots, of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Fences replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative) Bricks part painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method)

proposed, and Mr. James Moore seconded, the adoption of the directors' report, which was carried unanimously. The report stated that the business of the company had been exceedingly good during the last half-year, so that after paying a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent, they could afford to divide a bonus of £1,500, the reserve fund standing at £3,000. On the motion of Mr. James Moore, seconded by Mr. Alexander Dick, the directors' remuneration was increased to £200 a year amongst them. Councillor Richardson moved, Mr. James Moore seconded, and it was resolved, to increase the salary of the manager, Mr. George Baker, by £50 a year.'

History These row houses were built in two separate stages by and for Alexander Dick, who was a carpenter. Nos. 599 to 607 Spencer Street were built in 1867, with Alexander Dick himself living in No.599 for the first ten years, the other four houses were added in 1879 and were all leased, first by Alexander, then after 1890, by John Dick, an estate agent of Collins Street, and probably Alexander's son. The many tenants were transient, such as Hugh O'Brien, Thomas Hoare, William Bailey, James and Isabella Nicholls, to name but a few.

Description/Notable Features Notable features include the verandah roof and structure and unpainted decorative brickwork. A parapeted, single storey row of nine coloured brick and stucco houses, possessing cast iron decorated verandahs and stuccoed, corniced chimneys. A segment arched entablature, flanked by urns on pinnacles, occupies the parapet centre. Integrity - What presumably were timber picket front fences have been replaced.

Streetscape - An isolated, but long row creating in itself, a streetscape.

Statement of Significance Architecturally, of a common type but extensive in size and prominent in the street, of local importance. Historically, Alex Dick exemplifies the developer-builder who converts his builders yard to house lots, of local importance.

Recommended Alterations Fences replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative) Bricks part painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method) Recommendations- Replace picket fence (arrow head or original), repaint trim with typical or original colours, consider zoning provisions to maintain original form and use.

'Trustee Companies

Towards the end of the 19th century, as the gold-rush generation died, an opportunity arose for companies to administer deceased estates. William Templeton issued a prospectus for the Trustees Executors & Agency Co. Ltd in 1878, but the company's commencement was delayed until the passage of a special Act of Parliament in 1879.

The novelty of the concept and considerable controversy surrounding aspects of the company's articles of association notwithstanding, four new firms followed: the Perpetual Executors' and Trustees' Association of Australia

Limited and the Union Trustees, Executors and Administrators' Co. Ltd were both established on 8

December 1885, and the National Trustees, Executors, &

Agency Co. of Australasia Ltd and the short-lived Colonial Permanent Trustees, Executor & Agency Co. Ltd were formed in late 1887.

These trustee companies - whose offices were in the heart of the financial district west of Elizabeth Street, mostly in either Collins Street or Queen Street - were important participants in the investment market, particularly before World War II. Restricted by government regulation to government securities and mortgages, they were run conservatively by boards drawn from the banking and insurance industries. The four Melbourne firms had a disproportionate share of the national industry up to the end of World War I, despite the emergence of provincial and interstate competitors. There was little change until the early 1960s, when the Union and the National absorbed smaller rivals, while the Perpetual became part of the new Sydney-based Perpetual Trustees, comprising Victorian, New South Wales and Queensland partners. The industry was rocked in 1983 when the oldest and most prestigious firm, Trustees Executors & Agency, failed after abandoning its conservative investment practices to make

Primitive Methodist Church
 59-61 John Street, Williamstown

Background history

Earliest members of the Methodist sect arrived in Port Phillip in 1840. The first Minister, Rev. John Hide who arrived in January 1850, conducted the first service held March 1850 in a small church in La Trobe Street, Melbourne. A Church in Heidelberg was built in 1854 and headquarters at a new Church was built in 1864 in Lygon Street, Carlton.

Williamstown reputedly received the first protestant services outside of Melbourne town, in c.1838 (A Ackerly: cites Curtain, History of Williamstown [1889]). Reputedly, Charles Stone's day school was used then as a chapel until a timber chapel and school house were provided on a reserve in Ann Street in 1841, when regular services began (Ada Ackerly queries Stone's presence in the town pre 1841, and cites tenders called by Stone in 1841). Stone, an ardent Wesleyan, was a builder by trade and had come to Williamstown from Tasmania.

In 1902, various sects of the Methodist and Wesleyan churches formed a union...'

 History
 John T. Young, was possibly manager of the London Chartered Bank in Collins Street West, at the time this house was built for him in 1887. He continued to own and live here for over 10 years.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the verandah and fence.
 A single storey stuccoed brick parapeted row house with an iron fence and panelled cast iron decoration to the verandah. Balustrading, an arched entablature, a shell tympanum, and rosettes beneath a pronounced cornice, comprise the more rich than usual decoration.
 Integrity - Generally original, presumably urns have gone.
 Streetscape - Part of a long, mainly single storeyed streetscape of 19th century row houses (693-705) which echoes the similar isolated group further to the east (599-615).

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, a typical near original example of a common type and part of a streetscape, of local importance. Historically, possibly identified with a prominent personality in the area, of local importance.

Recommended Alterations

Bricks painted (inappropriate - remove by approved method) Parapet urns (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative) Recommendations - Repaint in typical or original colours, consider zoning provisions to maintain residential form and use.

History

The builder, William Hardie, built both of these houses as an investment in 1875, selling them several years later to John Harris. After 1885, they were sold separately, 701 Spencer Street going to Michael Shanahan, who lived there until at least 1897, James Ward bought 699 Spencer Street and leased it to Andrew Kilgour, a Queensberry Street tailor.

Description/Notable Features Notable features include the verandah and fence. Built as three of four similar houses (see also 695-5), these single storeyed houses are single fronted, were of polychrome brickwork and stucco and possess cast iron fences and decorated verandahs. Arched entablatures with shells, are used alternately with balustraded and guilloche decorated parapet walls, an acroterion and scrolls are also used on 701.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an altered pair which represents a common type but which is also part of a streetscape, of local importance.

Historically, one of the many owner builder speculations in the area, of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Bricks stuccoed, parapet urns (inappropriate - reinstate original design or sympathetic alternative)

Recommendations - Repaint trim in original or typical colours, consider restoration of No. 699, consider zoning provisions to maintain residential form and use.

Alexander McKenzie of Abbotsford Street who was probably a saddler, had this house built in 1876. Anthony

Callinan purchased the house in 1885 and owned it for the next ten years. As neither owner lived there, it was leased to such people as Ellen Scanlon and John McNaughton.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the verandah and fence.

A two storey, stuccoed brick house with a segment arched parapet entablature, a cast iron verandah, iron picket fence and urns at the parapet extremities, the balustrade iron is of an unusual pattern. Integrity - Generally original.

Streetscape - Part of a 19th century residential

streetscape.

Statement of Significance

Architecturally, an early and near original example of a common type and part of a streetscape, of regional importance. Historically, a speculative housing development, of local interest.

METROPOLITAN MERCHANTS, IMPORTERS, AGENTS, ETC.

'Dean, Wm., and Co., Melbourne. This business of oil and colour and drysaltery merchants was established about 1859 by Mr. Reuben A. Fitch, who came from London for the express purpose, in the interests of Messrs. Blundell, Spence and Co., London, oil and colour merchants; Chas. Turner and Son, London, varnish manufacturers; Walter Carson and Sons, London, anti-corrosive paint manufacturers; Heywood, Higginbotham, Smith and Co., Manchester, paperhangings manufacturers; the Leather Cloth Co. (Crockett's patent); G. B. Kent and Sons, London, brushmakers; Winsor and Newton, London, artists' materials manufacturers, and numerous other influential firms of England, America, and the continent of Europe. The partners each retired, with a competence, 1st April 1874, when the entire stock was purchased by, and the most important of the agencies transferred to Mr. William Dean, by whom the business has since been conducted under the style of Wm. Dean and Co. Mr. Fitch in 1869 took into partnership Mr. J. B. French, the business being carried on as Fitch and French in premises adjoining those now occupied. Under the new management the business, although altered in some of its details, suffered no diminution in its extent. Mr. Dean's intimate acquaintance with the trade, acquired from his connection with the business established by him in 1854 in Elizabeth-street (now Wm. and Geo. Dean) enabled him to anticipate every requirement necessary for the trades of house painters, decorators, paperhangers, artists, coach and ship painters, &c., and the business has so increased that other stores are held under rent for the storage of large stocks of goods, exclusive of those in bond. The premises, 91 Flinders-lane east, are Mr. Dean's freehold, and have a frontage of 76 ft., consist of a cellar and three flats, and are fitted with a hydraulic lift, capable of raising two tons. The cellar is principally used for the storage of oils in bulk, also paints, white lead, &c., and iron. The ground floor is devoted to office accommodation, packing, oils in drums, dry colors and sundries. The paperhangings department occupies the entire first flat, and affords facilities for keeping a very large stock of the newest goods open for the convenience of the trade, besides accommodation for bulk stock. There is also a sponge department, that being an article in which the firm deals largely. The top flat is used for the reception of all light dry goods, colors, &c., in bulk. The business was carried on solely by Mr. Dean until 1st October 1882, when Mr. A. W. Walsh was admitted a partner. Mr. Walsh retired in 1887 and proceeded on a visit to England. Mr. Dean paid his first visit to Europe, after an absence of twenty-nine years, in 1881, via America per C. P. route, and returned in ten months. In March 1883 Mr. Dean repeated his visit to Europe, accompanied by his wife and daughters, again going by America, but by the new southern route (Atchison and Topeka line) which traverses the entire territory of California, and passes through Arizona and New Mexico, and by way of Kansas, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Washington, and Philadelphia to New York. On the way the party "stopped-off" at many interesting places and important cities on the route.

After staying about two months in London they went to the Continent by way of Amsterdam (where Mr. Dean had to attend the International Exposition in his capacity as commissioner for Victoria), thence up the Rhine, through Switzerland, across the Simplon pass into Italy, where they visited all the principal cities; thence to Sicily, and on to Paris, by way of the Riviera, reaching England early in May, and Melbourne in December 1884. Mr. J. B. French, formerly of Fitch and French, is now the active partner in the firm, and Mr. Dean contemplates an early retirement, after forty years of business life.'

(Differs from the V&M account)

`Established in 1854 by brothers William & George Dean, the first Dean & Co. emporium was located off Elizabeth St, adjoining The Age newspaper's office. As Melbourne grew, so too did Deans, expanding into the Age building and then to a 5 storey complex in Equitable Place (off Collins St), where the extensive business in brushes, paints, wallpapers and artists materials serviced the soon to be hub of the art trade in Melbourne. Their range included materials designed to "fulfil the ambition of every man, to gratify the sense of beauty, and to elevate the intellect" wrote George Dean. In 1880 W & G Dean & Co. was one of the first businesses in the new Edison-Bell phone directory in constant use in Melbourne. The completion of a new cable tramway in 1887 brought the opportunity to expand into the inner suburb of Fitzroy. By the mid 1980's the amalgamation with the Camden Art Centre (est 1946) saw Deans become one of the largest retailers of art supplies in the southern hemisphere. 2006 saw the opening of our Brunswick store; and 2007 an amalgamation with Natart; a Footscray based supplier of art, craft, technology and stationery materials to schools, childcare, and business; strengthening an already successful commercial and education division within Deans.'

History

William Gillespie moved from Dryburgh Street, to occupy and own this house from 1884 until he sold it in 1890 to William Dean, who was one partner in a large firm of Flinders Lane wall paper importers, and sold hangings and paints of all sorts. By 1895 the house had passed onto another firm in a similar line of business, Crawford & Co. also of Flinders Lane. The two latter owners leased the house to William Tralor and Henry Nind. William Dean was the founder of William Dean & Co. now Deans Art and Handicrafts Supplies of Lonsdale Street. The business was initially established by him in 1854 in Elizabeth Street and the expertise gained there enabled him to take over a larger concern from Fitch and French in Flinders Lane. From here he supplied paint to house decorators, artists, coach builders, etc. so successfully that he was able to open up many outlets throughout the metropolis. William Gillespie, the first owner, was a partner in a large cartage firm, Hall and Gillespie. He was one of those thousands who tried his luck on the gold fields after 1852, eventually returning to Melbourne to set up his own cartage firm. By the time he built this house, the firm operated with thirty horses and drays. Renowned architect, William Pitt designed this house, one of his few small residential commissions, to be constructed by builder, D. Richards of Emerald Hill.

Description/Notable Features

Notable features include the verandah, fence and bricks. Closely confined by its site, this double fronted, single storey face brick house has twin window bays, reflected by a bayed iron verandah and hipped roof bays, set against a transverse gable iron clad roof. An iron fence is used at the frontage, whilst other decoration is confined to brackets at the eaves. (Compare with 69 Campbell Street, Castlemaine, 1894, 1421 and 1407 Sturt Street, Ballarat. `STATE SCHOOL IN WEST MELBOURNE. Mr. David Blair has been making himself very busy interviewing the Minister of Lands, with the object of preventing a piece of ground in King street being used as a site for a State School. Mr. Blair pointed out that if the school was erected a number of the residents would at once remove from the district, as the value of property would be greatly reduced. M. Casey explained that he was almost powerless to interfere in the matter, as the erection of state schools came properly within the control of the department of Public Instruction. The site in question had been originally granted to the City Corporation for the erection of baths, but during the past few months negotiations had been in course of progress between the department and the corporation for. an exchange of this site for a piece of ground near the meat-market, which the council considered would be of more service to them. A promise had also been made to the Minister of. Public Instruction, that if the exchange were made the King street site should be available for the erection of a state school. lie recommended the deputation td have an interview with the Minister of Public Instruction and the City Council. On the subject, and in the meantime promised that the Lands department would not take any steps for the alienation of the land until after the expiration of 14 days. The committee of ratepayers in West Melbourne should watch the proceedings of Mr. Blair with attentive solicitude. It stated that the books of the society were in a very imperfect state, and no entries had been made in either the-borrowers' or investors' ledgers from last December, 1874, and the cash book and general .ledger were blank from 30th April.....

The paid auditors of the society were Messrs. James Dixon and William "Boyd, and when they made their last audit,, in' April, 1876, they reported that the accounts were in a satisfactory state. Mr; McDonald remarked that that was very extraordinary conduct, and as things were now found to be, he thought they had been guilty of receiving money on false pretences, as they could not have made a proper audit. He, and friends for whom he appeared, had determined to have the matter sifted further, as their auditors had been misleading them. Several other shareholders expressed themselves strongly on the conduct of Messrs. Dixon and Boyd. Mr. F. C. `Blair, David (1820–1899)

by Jill Roe

This article was published in Australian Dictionary of Biography, Volume 3, (MUP), 1969'

`David Blair (1820-1899), journalist, was born on 4 June 1820 in County Monaghan, Ireland, son of Thomas Blair, soldier, and his wife Jane, née Burns, both of Scottish descent. After elementary education he became a 'juvenile teacher' and then went to the Hibernian Military School, Dublin, where he was a model pupil, gifted in composition. He left in 1835, worked in an uncle's business but found it distasteful and in 1840 joined the Ordnance Survey of Ireland as a calculator stationed in Limerick and then Cork. In 1841 he transferred to Southampton where for almost nine years he worked on the triangulation of England and the survey of London. Intelligent, zealous and ambitious, he remained unsatisfied in his work, even speculating in 1848 on a military career, and found expression in supporting the Chartists as a lecturer in Southampton, in reading and in church activities. Deeply interested in intellectual movements he professed social reformist ideas within a Presbyterian piety which provided him at 30 with the missing direction. Attracted by an advertisement in the British Banner, he joined John Dunmore Lang's contingent of trainee clergymen for New South Wales and arrived in the Clifton at Sydney in March 1850.

He was ordained in October and appointed to the Bathurst Street Church. Influenced by Lang's republican views and democratic activism, Blair clashed with him and by November 1851 was at the Turon goldfield, lecturing, preaching, writing and even prospecting. The life was rough and unrewarding and he soon returned to Sydney, joining (Sir) Henry Parkes on the Empire. By January 1852 he was in Victoria, eagle-eyed for advancement. He soon achieved prominence as secretary of the Anti-Transportation League. He was also the Sydney Morning Herald's correspondent and sub-editor on 'The Argus' until 1854 when, dissatisfied with his wage and angered by the conservatism of the Argus during Eureka, he tried unsuccessfully to start a more radical paper. Not surprisingly, he joined Thomas Bright, an ex-Empire man, on the raw, outspokenly egalitarian Age. Involved in political problems similar to those he had pondered as a Chartist, he continuously advocated such principles as fully representative responsible government, totally free selection and the complete separation of church and state especially in education, while attacking inequality, the squattocracy and corrupt politicians. As a supporter of the diggers he also attacked illegal and unjust actions of government at public meetings as well as in print, and so became associated with the radical Land Reform League of 1855. He entered politics himself in 1856.

Periodic employments characterized Blair's career, but his first years in Melbourne were stabilizing. In 1852 he had married Annie Macpherson, sister of James Grant, later minister of lands, and settled to a career as journalist, politician, controversialist and litterateur. With a slashing style, relentless principles and prodigious knowledge he contributed more than the ten thousand leaders attributed to him and the innumerable speeches, lectures, articles, dramatic criticism and letters-to-the-editor on such subjects as surveying, spiritualism, drinking, democracy, Shakespeare or immortality. His articulate involvement in his intellectual milieu, local and British, established him as a man of quality. The Victorian Review could depend on Blair for an abstruse article, the Beefsteak Club for a speech, the Shakespeare Society for a debate, at a time when such men were not abundant. Privately Blair saw himself not only as an intellectual but as a Christian. The man who in 1860 claimed to know the lost secret of Christianity and followed scientific developments remained assured of literal New Testament truth and his own immortality. He had attacked the earlier 'mental hanky-panky' of spiritualism, phrenology and free-thought and was in 1893 debating with theosophists in the Bacchus Marsh Express. His confidence sustained him throughout his multifarious activities.

As a politician Blair achieved little, though as member for Talbot in 1856-59 and Crowlands in 1868-71 he served his constituents' concerns with roads, water and leases; as a parliamentarian his fidelity to constitutional forms made him unpopular. In the 1860s and 1870s he served on the technological commission and was secretary to the commissions on religious education, penal discipline and friendly societies. His public career culminated in the publication of three historical works: in 1876 the fulsome introduction to Henry Parkes, Speeches on Various Occasions Connected With the Public Affairs of New South Wales 1848-1874; in 1878 the pioneering work, The History of Australasia; and in 1881 the grandiose Cyclopedia of Australasia, confidently presented as the essential reference book. He intended to further patriotism and to make a permanent contribution to the civilization of the south, but his work was marred by unashamed plagiarism, inaccuracy and subjective assessments. He died on 19 February 1899 at his home, Oyama, Armadale, and was buried in the Melbourne general cemetery. He was survived by two sons and four daughters.

Too dogmatic as a scholar, too unimaginative as a literary man and too principled as a politician, Blair's contribution came from his role as a man of letters and his talent for journalism. Lack of humility and sympathy led to an unpopularity entirely unrelated to the high standards by which he lived and wrote.

Other Surviving Brewery Buildings

- A single store building is all that remains of McCrackens City Brewery of Collins Street, Melbourne.
- Two buildings of the Foster Lager Brewing Company in Rokeby Street, Collingwood remain on the site, a four-storey building and a detached single storey building.
- A malt tower and one other building survive from Burton's Brewery in Stanley Street, West Melbourne.
- The former Volum brewery in Geelong is largely demolished with only three walls of a bluestone store remaining.
- The Carlton & United Breweries operation at Abbotsford is a very extensive, but mostly modern complex.
- Much of the former Ballarat Brewery has been demolished however a brewing tower and a chimney stack remain.'

'Table Talk' (Melbourne, Vic. : 1885 - 1939) Thursday 1 January 1903

A chicken which comes home to roost after 14 years, is a very rare bird, and dear at £40,000. In February, 1888, Mr. W. T. Jones acted as broker in floating the Montgomerie Brewery. Mr. Robert King Montgomerie received £105,000 for his West Melbourne Brewery, but the investing public paid to the promoters £140,000, a slice of the profit going into the pocket of Mr. Jones. Now the wealthy broker, who is residing in London, has been ordered to pay the liquidators of the Montgomerie Brewery Company £40,00 and the cost of a fourteen days' trial.'

Melbourne Breweries, The First & Last Factories

(City of Melbourne -City Gallery exhibition catalog)

'...The other common feature of brewery architecture was the combination of closed arches and arched windows with polychromatic brickwork. This industrial interpretation of the Romanesque style may have been introduced to Melbourne by the leading architect James Wood after a visit to Italy during the 1860s, some time before the Romanesque revival in the USA began to influence commercial and public buildings in Australia. Most of the surviving brewery buildings in Melbourne express this distinctive aesthetic, as do several other industrial and warehouse buildings'

'3. Yorkshire Brewery, Wellington Street, Collingwood. Yorkshireman John Wood built a small brewery in 1861 next to his Yorkshire Hotel in Wellington Street, and was sufficiently successful to finance the construction of a six story brewing tower in 1876.

A successful architect of residences, factories and hotels, Wood's son James excelled himself with his father's brewing tower, creating one of the most visible landmarks'

Original Building Type Factory

History Not Assessed

Description/Notable Features

The building at 61-63 Stanley Street is an Edwardian red brick factory with a gabled parapeted roof. The facade has a centrally located vehicular entrance, which appears to be a later alteration, fitted with a steel roller door.

Flanking the entrance are segmented arched windows within recessed segmented arched panels. The gable end has a red brick capping and corbelled piers at each end.

Statement of Significance

The building at 61-63 Stanley Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The factory is demonstrative of industrial development of the area in the early twentieth century. Substantially intact, the shop is a typical Edwardian utilitarian structure, relieved by robust red brick detailing. Of particular note is the broad gabled facade.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. Since the previous study, render infill to the gable end has been removed. Despite alterations to the central opening, the building is a good example of a utilitarian Edwardian factory.

'As the name suggests Barrett Bros. and Burston is a combination of two families. Both the Barrett's and the Burston's have been associated with the Australian malting industry for much more than a century. The two families had widely different origins in the malting business. The Barrett family the founding father William Barrett, was an enterprising bank clerk in England who began malting and a part time operation; in the Burston family, Samuel Burston was a storekeeper in a small Victorian country town who saw the opportunity to buy barley from his clients and use it for malting. In the years which followed, a move to Australia by the family Barrett and much competition between the two dynasties, the merger finally took place in 1912 with the founding of Barrett Bros. and Burston and Co. Pty Ltd. Despite the enormous increase in production following the end of WWII, Barrett Bros. and Burston and Co Pty Ltd were still unable to keep pace with the growing demand for malt. Over the years it has changed ownership from many including Elders IXL, ConAgra Foods, United Malt Holdings (UMH) and now GrainCorp. The houses at 95-97 Stanley Street, originally Nos. 43-45, were built c.1878. The pair is first listed in the Sands & McDougall directories in 1879, when the occupants were Alfred Webb and Thomas Dougall. That year, the rate books list the houses, owned by Moses Parkes, as a pair of four-room brick houses each with an Annual Average Value of #32.

Description/Notable Features

The houses at 95-97 Stanley Street comprise a pair of single-storey, Victorian, semi-detached, rendered brick cottages with a transverse gabled corrugated galvanised steel roof. Each house has a small skillion-roofed verandah between wing walls which are embellished with rendered consoles. The verandahs retain their cast iron lacework friezes and brackets, although the cast iron palisade fence at No. 95 has been removed. A parapet with a moulded cornice extends across the facade, surmounted in the centre by a scrolled pediment. Chimneys are rendered, with moulded cappings. The side wall of No. 95, facing a bluestone pitched lane, is of face brick, now painted.

Statement of Significance

The houses at 95-97 Stanley Street, West Melbourne, are of local aesthetic and historical interest. The pair is representative of the modest dwellings which were erected in the late nineteenth century in large numbers in West and North Melbourne. Largely intact externally, they are typical examples of the Italianate style applied to small houses.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Previous grading of D confirmed. The houses are representative and substantially intact examples of their type and style.

Statement of Significance

The houses at 99-101 Stanley Street, West Melbourne, are of local aesthetic and historic interest. Reasonably intact externally, albeit painted, the houses are typical examples of modest late nineteenth century dwellings which were constructed in large numbers in West and North Melbourne. The houses are important elements in the streetscape.

Recommended Alterations

Other Comments Upgraded from E to D. The pair is a representative and substantially intact example of its style and type.

City of Melbourne Heritage Review (1999)

History

The pair of houses at 99-101 Stanley Street was built c.1877. The houses are first definitely listed in 1878, when they were occupied by James Cullen and Alexander Hart. The following year the rate books show John Fernand and Hart as the occupants of two three-room brick houses owned by a Mrs Burns, each with an Annual Average Value £22.

Description

The houses at 99-101 Stanley Street comprise a pair of single-storey Victorian brick cottages with transverse gabled roofs. The roof to No. 99 is clad in corrugated galvanised steel, whilst that at No. 101 is slated. Each house has a skillion-roofed verandah and a high metal fence, not original. Part of the verandah roof at No. 99 has been removed. The facade to No. 101 retains its timber-framed double-hung sash window. The appearance of the houses have been marred by the painting of the brickwork.

Significance

The houses at 99-101 Stanley Street, West Melbourne, are of local aesthetic and historic interest. Reasonably intact externally, albeit painted, the houses are typical examples of modest late nineteenth century dwellings which were constructed in large numbers in West and North Melbourne. The houses are important elements in the streetscape.

Grading Review

Refer 138-140 Stanley Street:

An estimate of £2400 was made for the erection of two brick factories in Stanley St, West Melbourne for successful master baker, Joseph Doyle. W J Davy consulting engineer, 430 Bourke St, Melbourne was the designer of this former factory pair (142-144 refaced but still existing). The roof was saw-tooth in profile, supported on timber trusses, entry was via timber folding doors and once inside the factory floor was open with a small toilet

(Assessed as not individually significant)

The following assessment found that the building was not above the locally significant threshold but was contributory to the general theme of Interwar factory development in West Melbourne.

What is significant?

For an estimated £1800, this parapeted brick factory with its sawtooth roof and steel-framed multi-pane glazing, was erected in 1938 for R. C. or E. W. Brown Esq in place of three Victorian-era houses. Building permit application drawings show a much wider building than has survived and a proposed flag flying from the parapet bearing the acronym 'C.A.B.'. The design engineer was L. Boyd Mercer. Early occupiers were the Commonwealth Steel Company, steel merchants.

Although possessing some unusual coloured brickwork, major changes have taken place to this building since the design stage, with apparent reduction in its façade length, and bricking in of openings.

How is it significant?

Brown's factory is indicative only of the Interwar industrial growth theme in West Melbourne.

Why is it significant?

Brown's factory is of contributory significance only, historically, to the Interwar industrial theme in West Melbourne generally but not to a heritage precinct. The building is below threshold for a locally significant individual heritage place.

Cullens of Carrick, Ballinlough, Co. Roscommon, Ireland Gerry Cullen of Australia sent me this story:

"My great great grandfather was James (or at least we are led to believe from one old land notice) who was said to be married to Sarah Cullen, of Carrick, Ballinlough, Co. Roscommon, Ireland. Sarah died circa 1861 and the land and house was inherited by my great grandfather Michael Cullen who was married to Mary Scarry, Michael was born circa 1829 and died 1881 aged 52. Therefore his mother Sarah would have been born in the early part (or possibly even before) the 1800's.

"There is no mention of James Cullen in any other documents but an Andrew Cullen appears between the years 1832 and 1840's and I am anxious to find out if this

SURVEYED PLACES

Andrew was in fact an elder brother of Michael or perhaps Sarah's husband (and not James). It is also possible that this Andrew may have died or emigrated during the Great Famine period in Ireland as his name is not mentioned in any documents after. The name Andrew was inherited by my grandfather Dominick Andrew Cullen so there may be a very close family connection.'

Also known as the Primary Valuation of Ireland, the work of surveying landowners and tenants throughout Ireland for taxation purposes was carried out between the years of 1848 and 1864. Description/Notable Features

The house at 200 Stanley Street is a single-storey, single-fronted Victorian brick cottage with a transverse gabled roof between parapeted end walls. The skillion-roofed verandah has timber posts and a timber fence, which is not original. The facade has a timber-framed double-hung sash window and a timber-panelled entry door. The brickwork and the roof cladding have been painted. An early bluestone right-of-way exists alongside the house.

Statement of Significance
The house at 200 Stanley Street, West Melbourne, is of local historical and aesthetic interest. It is representative of the type of modest workers' housing that proliferated in Melbourne's inner suburbs in the late nineteenth century. Aesthetically, the house, with its adjacent bluestone laneway, is an important element in the streetscape.

William Henry Fitchett, clergyman, writer and educator was born in 1841 at Grantham, Lincolnshire, a son of William and his wife Hannah Hubbard. The father, mother and five children settled in Geelong in 1849. William Henry's formal schooling was brief at a Wesleyan denominational school and he was mainly self-educated by his voracious reading. Multiple laboring jobs were replaced by his becoming an accredited local preacher in 1865 and the following year he entered the Wesleyan ministry with positions at numerous Victorian towns from 1866 until 1881. In 1870 he married Jemima Shaw and in 1875 he graduated from the University of Melbourne with a B.A.

He was founding president of the Methodist Ladies' College Kew, Victoria in 1882 and was elected president of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference of Victoria and Tasmania in 1886. His career as a journalist and writer began with a weekly column, 'Easy Chair Chat' in the Methodist Spectator and Wesleyan Chronicle under the pen name 'XYZ' (1875-79). In 1882 he became the editor of the Southern Cross, a weekly religious paper, and in April 1900 his son, Thomas Shaw Fitchett (? ca.1871-1949), a printer and publisher ... became manager. In 1902, Thomas Shaw Fitchett published the New Idea, a women's magazine which became Everylady's Journal in 1911. William Henry wrote occasional articles for this as well as becoming editor in 1904 of his son's companion publication, Life. A run of T. Shaw Fitchett's WWI Military Life Magazine 1916-17 ...The popularity of new adventure comic strips was not lost on Fitchett Bros. Pty Ltd. of West Melbourne, the proprietors of the New Idea, Australia's oldest women's magazine. The company's founder, Thomas Shaw Fitchett, couldn't have failed to notice the growing success that its main rival The Australian Women's Weekly, was enjoying with its new comic strip, Mandrake the Magician, which made its Australian debut on 1 December 1934.....Part of the New Ideas editorial response to this new competitor was to introduce new features.... the New Idea unveiled Buck Rogers as its new comic strip serial on 17 April 1936.'

'Two storey brick building built in the early 1920's (sic) & refurbished 1991'

Newspapers:

Neos Kosmos 22 Jun 2012

'A dinner dance held by the Cephalonian Society of Victoria is set to rock West Melbourne next Saturday night.

The night will include stand-up comedian Jim Liamatos, the Manasis dancing group entertaining the crowds with traditional dance, the Greek band Xrises Notes will be providing the dancing tunes and there will be raffle prizes, catering by Meraklis and the night will be filmed for Channel 31 for a new Greek show called 'Peter, are you serious?' Peter Diakrousis - assistant treasurer of the Cephalonian Society - says this dinner dance is a great opportunity for the youth to get involved once again and explore their cultural heritage.

"I am trying to create a young group," he told Neos Kosmos, "teach the young all about Cephalonia - the island and its culture; its food and wine; its sweets sold around the world." He says by involving the youth, he can teach them about Cephalonian traditions and dancing but also they can help keep the club alive. By getting involved in the Cephalonian Society of Victoria, youth will be able to network with other members, stay in touch with Cephalonians in Greece for easy travel advice, as well as network with members in Victoria in a professional capacity too.

As it stands, there are only about four young members of the society and through getting the youth involved, Peter says the club will stay stronger than ever.'

North and West Melbourne Conservation Study (1983)History -

Robert Walton, the original grantee and builder and plasterer of Lygon Street Carlton, probably built these shops as an investment, during 1864-5. He owned them for over thirty years and leased them to such traders as William Marsden, a tobacconist, who was in 175 Victoria Street for over 10 years; Isaac Long a shoemaker, Sam Jacobs' 2 a dealer; James Nesbitt a fruiterer; and James Hogan a bootmaker.³

Of note is that the rated valuation increased from 30 pounds to 54 pounds each c1890, when the description changed to 'brick shop, four rooms' from that with ••• 'three rooms'.⁴ This may mean the addition of a storey..⁵

Description -

A two-storey stuccoed brick shop and residence row of three with an iron Corporation verandah and parapeted roof line. The central wall bay of the three parts, is elevated and given a gabled entablature with vermiculation, flanking piers and pilasters, pineapples and an acroterion as decoration. Architraves and stepped string and cornice moulds provide further ornament. Timber shop fronts exist on 175.

Integrity -Ingo-shop fronts have been replaced and the street

verandah removed on 179-81

Streetscape -A major corner element in the Victoria Street commercial .

precinct, paralleling with 187-9 on the contiguous corner of the block at Capel Street.

Significance -

Architecturally, a shop and residence row of mixed derivation and integrity, but generally exemplifying the late nineteenth century with its upper facade splayed, return street verandah and shop front remnants constituting a major streetscape element: of regional importance.

Historically, a shop row with an early beginning, built by one of the many developer-builders in the area and occupying a prominent location in the retail area: of local importance.

An action for libel was tried in the Supreme Court yesterday, in which a tinsmith named Morgan, residing at Hotham, sued Walter H. Hughes, a connexion of his by marriage, for Publishing in the North Melbourne

Advertiser some verses reflecting on Morgan's character.

The verses were of a stupid description. The editor of the paper explained that he only pat them in because Hughes, who was a respectable man, assured him that the poetry

did not refer to anyone in the district. The defendant allowed judgment to go by default, and did not appear, so that the jury had only to assess the damages. The jury gave the plaintiff £50.

Description/Notable Features

The building on a corner site at 187-189 Victoria Street is a double-storey rendered Italianate style shop and dwelling with a parapeted roof. The principal facade, to Victoria Street, has three timber-framed double-hung sash windows with moulded architraves at first floor level and an altered shopfront at ground floor level. A moulded cornice terminates the facade and returns along the side elevation which similarly has timber-framed double-hung sash windows at first floor level. Part of the shopfront on the side elevation has been infilled. The cornice steps down to the rear section, which is lower in height.

Statement of Significance

The shop at 187-189 Victoria Street, West Melbourne, is of local aesthetic and historical interest. The building is representative of commercial development of the late nineteenth century in West and North Melbourne. With the exception of the shopfront, the building is substantially intact and is a contributory heritage element in the streetscape.

History -

These buildings were built as shops in 1873 for Robert Pringle, a baker of Hotham. By 1876, 195 was run as the Prince Albert Hotel (also listed as the Albert Hotel) 2 still under the ownership of Robert Pringle until near the turn of the century. His licensees included Alfred Hardham, Michael Coffey and Ellen Farrell. 3 197 was Pringles' own bakers shop being occupied later by other bakers such as James Shiels.4

Description -

A two-storey stuccoed brick parapeted former hotel, set on a corner site and built to the street alignment. A simple Italian Renaissance derived facade with arched fenestration, cornice, impost and string-moulds, and pilasters located around doorways and the former bar window. A similar upper level facade exists on 197. Integrity -Generally original, blind windows noted; painted sympathetically; parapet orbs missing 195; Shop front replaced (ingo type) 197 and cantilever verandah added.

SURVEYED PLACES

Streetscape - A corner and major element in the Victoria Street Commercial precinct, relating strongly to 197, 199, 201-3 and 205 Victoria Street.

Significance -

Architecturally,

(195) a typical corner hotel of the period, but near original, conservatively but competently elevated and forming a major part in the streetscape: of high regional importance.

(197) a generally altered shop and residence but linking with the important 195 above the verandah: of local importance.

Historically,

(195) as a former hotel and on a corner site, thus achieving social prominence: of regional importance.

(197) the shop and residence of the hotel's owner-builder, Pringle, until his death: of local importance.

Recommendations -

Paint 197 to match 195 or repaint both in typical or original colours; consider removal of cantilever verandah from 197-9 and replacement with a typical (ornamentation verandah; consider restoring ingo shop front of 197, using typical or original details.

History -

These buildings were built as shops in 1873 for Robert Pringle, a baker of Hotham. By 1876, 195 was run as the Prince Albert Hotel (also listed as the Albert Hotel) 2 still under the ownership of Robert Pringle until near the turn of the century. His licensees included Alfred Hardham, Michael Coffey and Ellen Farrell. 3 197 was Pringles' own bakers shop being occupied later by other bakers such as James Shiels.4

Description -

A two-storey stuccoed brick parapeted former hotel, set on a corner site and built to the street alignment. A simple Italian Renaissance derived facade with arched fenestration, cornice, impost and string-moulds, and pilasters located around doorways and the former bar window. A similar upper level facade exists on 197. Integrity -Generally original, blind windows noted; painted sympathetically; parapet orbs missing 195;. Shop front replaced (ingo type)197 and cantilever verandah added.

SURVEYED PLACES

Streetscape -A corner and major element in the Victoria Street commercial precinct, relating strongly to 197, 199, 201-3 and 205 Victoria Street.

Significance -

Architecturally,

(195) a typical corner hotel of the period, but near original, conservatively but competently elevated and forming a major part in the streetscape: of high regional importance.

(197) a generally altered shop and residence but linking with the important 195 above the verandah: of local importance.

Historically,

(195) as a former hotel and on a corner site, thus achieving social prominence: of regional importance.

(197) the shop and residence of the hotel's owner-builder, Pringle, until his death: of local importance.

Recommendations -

Paint 197 to match 195 or repaint both in typical or original colours; consider removal of cantilever verandah from 197-9 ~and replacement with a typical (ornamentation verandah; consider restoring ingo shop front of 197, using typical or original details.

partnership with Williams had been dissolved by deed. There was also a deed of partnership signed when they joined in business.

The firm had an account at the National Bank. He could not say whether he had a private account at the bank afterwards. The deeds of partnership and dissolution were at his house, in Nelson-street, Windsor. The witness was directed to fetch the deeds from his house to the court, and was allowed about two a hours to go for them. He had not returned at 2 o'clock, to which time the case had been adjourned, and it was then further adjourned until the following Monday. The deeds were brought to the court by the insolvent shortly before half-past 2 o'clock, and delivered to the solicitor for the trustee.'

Description/Notable Features

A large two-storey stuccoed brick shop/factory and residence with a parapeted roof line, arched architraved and shuttered upper windows and a rebuilt lower level and verandah. Cornice and string-moulds, lions heads and paired brackets are the only other ornament.

Statement of Significance Architecturally, a large, conservatively designed building of low ground level integrity, but it possesses interesting details (shutters) and a role in the streetscape: of local importance. Historically, interesting as a variation in the use pattern of the street and identified by long tenure to individual firms and use types: of local interest.

Recommended Alterations

Repaint in original or typical colours; consider restoration of shop front using original or typical details and central ingo; consider restoration of verandah, as original or as Corporation type. Shutters (sympathetic - reinstate original design) shopfront replaced (large centre ingo); street verandah replaced (inappropriate - reinstate original design/sympathetic alternative)

Other Comments

Integrity - The former central-ingo timber shop front has been removed as has the street verandah; parapet orbs/urns may have existed once. Streetscape - Part of the Victoria Street commercial precinct.
